The Chivas Regal of Liqueurs.

Chivas Brothers make the world's finest Scotch. And the same renowned Chivas quality and tradition goes into its equally-regal Lochan Ora Liqueur. With a unique taste all its own. Lochan Ora is to be lingered over—sipped slowly, savored fully. It's expensive but, then, good taste invariably is.

bring you super-rich nourishment:

Swiss Performing Extract

Its amazing capabilities can help your skin look better instantly.

Fact: Swiss Performing Extract is more than a moisturizer. It is a super nourishing lotion blended in the U.S.A. with natural ingredients including soluble protein: a substance plentiful in young skin.

Fact: Science tells us this natural substance has outstanding capabilities. It penetrates right down to the base layer of cells to help promote resilience, good tone and to maintain optimum moisture balance.

Fact: Swiss Performing Extract performs 24-hours a day. Use it under makeup all day, or before bedtime. Specifically, dryness lines will become less noticeable instantly and you will be on your way to better looking skin. Estée Lauder skin.

Swiss Performing Extract.
Because makeup and moisturizers can't do it all.

Downward mobility.

Despite steady gains in income, many families are facing a decline in purchasing power. For marketers, it means rethinking the meaning of "middle class."

Just a few years back, a comfortable middle-class income might have been $20,000 a year.

Today, that same income barely covers essentials. This is the meaning of downward mobility.

After spending $5,800 for food, $5,500 for shelter, and $1,300 for clothing, the average middle-income family of four will have less than $2,000 a year left over in discretionary income; less than $2,000 to spend on things like stereos, cable TV, and the family vacation—let alone education. If you're a marketer, however, you're looking for people with money left over to spend on your products.

The most responsive consumers these days are families with incomes in excess of $30,000. TIME magazine is a sure way to reach this kind of family. More than half of TIME subscribers earn incomes of over $30,000 a year, and a lot of them earn a lot more.

In fact, when you advertise in TIME, you're reaching a group of consumers that has twice as much discretionary income as the average consumer. Together, TIME magazine subscribers earn a collective income of over $183 billion a year.

So, to avoid getting thrown into the spiral of downward mobility yourself, show your products to prospects who have the money to buy them. In TIME.

Get more out of it.

DIAMONDS ARE FOREVER. THAT'S A LONG TIME TO LIVE WITH A MISTAKE.

At Kimber we'll show you how to avoid mistakes.

And we'll do it for a very selfish reason: We believe that the more you know about diamonds, the more you'll insist upon buying them from us.

Because, as a major worldwide diamond company, we're able to offer a selection of diamond jewelry that's literally an embarrassment of riches. Including solitaires, engagement rings, earrings, pendants, and loose stones.

And while we offer diamond jewelry for well below $1000, we also sell diamonds that equal those found in the finest jewelry stores.

For an appointment to see and learn about diamonds in our private showroom, call us at (212) 752-0543.

And if you're not ready to visit us yet, call and we'll begin your education in diamonds by sending you a free copy of our brochure.

Columbus Discovered

AS AN ARTIST OF NO REPUTE WHATSOEVER, it is always disheartening and exciting to read articles like "Downward Mobility" and "Hello, Columbus!" ["New York's New Left Bank," by Peter Hellman, August 30]. I came to New York in the fifties as a wide-eyed mid-western youth. The first place I lived was a loft on West 24th Street, for $28 a month. When that went up to $38, I moved to a railroad flat on Jones Street. It had a fireplace in the kitchen and one in the living room. When that went up to $95, I moved to West 79th between Amsterdam and Columbus. It was a seven-room apartment with five walk-in closets and a buzzer in the floor to call the maid. When that went up to the outrageous price of $135, I bought a house and moved to Staten Island. Yes, I sold a seven-room apartment on West 79th for $500 to move to Staten Island.

For artists of no repute and very few sales, there is now no place to move. In a year or two I will again sell, and move to Hawaii. I love you, New York, but cannot afford you.

WHAT PRICE THAT je ne sais quoi OF A summer night on the Left Bank of Paris? Overcrowded, pompous, and blasé are the adjectives that spring to mind to describe an abysmal dinner at Nikki & Kelly. Specifically, our waitress was rude, uninformed, and slow. The food (I waited twice to be told, "Oops, pardon, we are out of that this evening"), cold, dull, and tasteless. I played bumper chairs with my neighbor's chair all evening. I had taken out-of-town friends for a special evening on Columbus Avenue for all those reasons you mentioned in your article. But, mon Dieu, what a disappointment!

I MUST TAKE EXCEPTION TO MOST OF Peter Hellman's panegyric. Mr. Hellman canonizes Michael Weinstein. Did he realize that Nanny Rose, which Weinstein owns, is in violation of the sidewalk-café guidelines of the city's Department of Consumer Affairs, which prohibit both an enclosed and an unenclosed café on the same site? Another of the anointed is Elliot Klepper, whose disregard for the residents of 57 West 75th Street, where Ruelles is located, and the community in general has occasioned several meetings of the Planning and Zoning Committee of Community Board 7, of which I am a member. Check the City Planning Department and the Buildings Department and you will find that the sidewalk café at Nikki & Kelly is illegal as well, because the original zoning of the property is residential.

Therefore, let us agree that the bottom line with these good gentlemen is the profit to be made. The more the merrier, and never mind that Columbus Avenue is now like West 8th Street. For some, there is secret satisfaction that the once despised West Side has now become a "hot ticket." But for the true believers, who have lived here while others scoffed, the new commerciality, the crowds, the carnival on Columbus are no cause for rejoicing.

THE ARTICLE MADE NO MENTION OF AN eatery I loved when I lived in that unfashionable neighborhood, in the late forties. Was Barney Greengrass's place (where a sturgeon sandwich cost $1.25) "gentrified" out of existence?

Shipshape Saudis

I MUST TAKE EXCEPTION TO YOUR "Intelligencer" report "Saudi Sailors: No Dirty Hands" [August 30]. I served with Saudis aboard a U.S. Navy amphibious ship three years ago. I found them to be friendly, hardworking, and devout Muslims. They only complained about not enough work in the engine room and our unfamiliar diet. Also, the Saudis had been crewmen aboard U.S. patrol boats long before their government purchased its own. To my knowledge, the only complaints were cultural ones misinterpreted by Americans—usually the press.

WHY ARE YOU ENCOURAGING WOMEN TO spend thousands of dollars to look like bag ladies ["Fashion: Choices for the Eighties," by Anna Wintour, August 23]? The only thing that saves Kirsti Toscani is her obvious beauty. Those of us who are merely attractive would look ghastly in those getups. I think there's something more serious going on here than just making "women of fashion"

Papp Art

"JOE PAPP'S THIRD ACT" [BY MARIE Brenner, August 9] could not be more wrong in the impression that it gives to your readers. I have watched it all from the beginning, as the first chairman of the Mayor's (Robert F. Wagner) Committee for Free Shakespeare in the Park, as a trustee of the New York Shakespeare Festival since its incorporation, and as its longtime secretary-treasurer. First, the summer productions in Central Park (and more recently also in the other boroughs) remain after 27 years New York City's most outstanding cultural event, enjoyed by thousands each year and emulated by cities and towns all over America. Joe Papp deserves full credit.

Second, the Public Theatre is acknowledged as America's most creative source of new plays and new ideas for the theater. Where else can young authors and artists come to test out their fledgling wings? Joe Papp is their seminal supporter and inspiration. Thus, the festival's board does not expect that each play will be another Chorus Line, Pirates of Penzance, or one of the many Papp plays that have won Tonys or Pulitzer Prizes. Only a small fraction of first plays and new concepts in the theater are commercial successes.

Third, it follows that playwrights and artists have not left the festival because of conflict with Joe, but rather have gone on to other exploits and successes in the conventional theater and in Hollywood. The nonprofit festival has given them their start.

Finally, the New York Shakespeare Festival is one of the few nonprofit, publicly oriented theater ventures to be in the black. Our reserve fund is not sufficient to finance more than a small portion of our activities, but it does give us a base upon which our fund-raising efforts can build. Here again, the credit belongs to Joe Papp, fund-raiser without peer.

Cartier Boss Plays Name Game

WHEN Time MAGAZINE called Cartier's retailing department to find out what was behind this month's unprecedented clearance sale at the jeweler's Fifth Avenue store, the firm's 30-year-old French chairman, Nathalie Hocq, took the call—under a nom de telephone.

A Time researcher had asked to speak to Tom Wendorff, Cartier's retailing vice-president. Calling herself "Cora McGee" and "Mr. Wendorff's assistant," Hocq told the staffer that the clearance was just part of a change in marketing strategy, and Time reported this as fact last week.

A Cartier spokesman also initially offered New York a "statement" from Cora McGee, maintaining this would be the inside story because "she was taking the minutes when management was proposing the sale." However, the firm's personnel department told us they had no such employee.

One source suggested Hocq didn't want Time to reach Cartier staffers who might reveal that "sales are really down," but the firm officially denied business was sagging: "Nathalie used the [pseudonym] she uses when she travels, Cora McGee," said Cartier president Ralph Destino.

Mario Cuomo, Media Consultant

Mario, Matilda: Rewriting campaign copy.

HAD TROUBLE FATHOMING the slogan that appears in Mario Cuomo's TV ad, "Concerned enough to be strong and strong enough to be concerned"? You're in good company.

"I heard there were people in his camp who argued that no one understood that line," said one source close to the lieutenant governor's campaign. "Mario told me he wrote it himself."

That doesn't surprise at least one Cuomo acquaint-tance, who told New York that the last time the politician was fighting Ed Koch—in the 1977 mayoral primary—he had a habit of consulting his wife, Matilda, about ads proposed by his media consultants: "Then he'd rewrite the copy. It drove his ad people wacky."

Still, Harvey Cohen, Cuomo's media man for this campaign, said he didn't mind when the candidate inserted the "concerned" slogan into a professionally drafted script. And Cuomo himself said the slogan's meaning is self-evident: "Society has to be concerned about its protection, and so we need to stay strong, but strong enough to stay compassionate."

Arms-Control Chief Giving Soviets an Opening?

PRESIDENT REAGAN'S nominee for a top nuclear-non-proliferation job has quietly abolished the government unit that monitors technology deals with countries like the Soviet Union.

Norman Terrell's confirmation as chief of nuclear-weapons control for the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency has been blocked since March by Senate conservatives who contend he's "soft" where the Soviets are concerned. But Terrell has begun working at the job, and in a recent internal memo he announced that he was disbanding the department's technology-transfer section.

"To do this when he's awaiting confirmation is just stupid," said one Senate source. Another, who complained that Terrell spent much of the summer and a large amount of his bureau's budget "roaming Europe," charged, "Now they'll be allowing the Soviets to get American computers to design bombs to drop on New York."

Terrell would not return New York's calls, but his assistant, Arch Turrentine, said that though the technology section—which advises the Commerce Department on licensing exports of hardware that might have a military use—has been eliminated, sensitive overseas deals will be screened elsewhere in the bureau. As for Terrell's travels, they were for "non-proliferation consultations," Turrentine said.

Kennedy Center: A Charge in the Air

AS THE ONLY MEMORIAL TO John F. Kennedy in the nation's capital, the Kennedy Center is open to tourists free under a law that applies to all presidential monuments. But that will end if a California investment banker who was Zsa Zsa Gabor's fourth husband has his way.

Herbert Hutner, recently appointed head of the center's advisory committee by President Reagan, wants to charge visitors a $1 admission fee. "We want to raise money for the performing arts, not keep up a memorial," he said. Hutner pointed out that the complex, which has been host to 40 million sightseers since it opened, in 1971, doesn't get any federal funding beyond some help with the building upkeep.

A spokesman for the Interior Department agreed that there might be a case for exempting the center—set up by Congress to be a national cultural flagship—from the free-access law.

But Hutner's idea has drawn indignation in other quarters. Cornelius Heine, the former chief of presidential monuments who is now executive secretary of the U.S. Capitol Historical Society, told New York, "It is almost the birthright of citizens to come to the hallowed shrines of great Americans. Tax dollars made them possible, and they should stay free."

WHEN YITZHAK SHAMIR, THE ISRAELI foreign minister, was in New York a few weeks ago, he was visited in his Regency Hotel suite by Ed Koch. Shamir had a few hours before leaving for Jerusalem, and Koch was paying a courtesy call. But habit is habit and Koch is Koch, so the mayor couldn't resist lecturing the minister. "You should have visited the papers while you were here," said Koch. "You're getting a bad rap in the press, and you should have gone to the papers to make your case."

"No, Ed," said Shamir, lecturing back, "the papers are of little importance. It's the TV that hurts most, with its pictures of the wounded. And it hurts most of all because that's what your president watches. That's how he gets his news, and that's why he's so furious with us."

"That was only part of it," says a Reagan aide who has been involved in formulating the new American line on the Middle East. "Two presidents in a row have now had serious problems with Menachem Begin's word. Jimmy Carter thought Begin had promised no more Israeli settlements in the West Bank when the Camp David accords were being negotiated. But Begin said he promised no such thing, and he's been building settlements ever since. Ronald Reagan thought Begin meant it when he said Israel wasn't interested in moving beyond the 25-mile security line in Lebanon that everyone agreed was necessary to remove northern Israel from the P.L.O.'s artillery range. But Begin went further and then said he had never promised to stop short.

"So of course this rankled the president. And, yes, in a sense we got even by first informing the Arabs of our new proposals. We knew that Begin would blow at this slight even if he liked our ideas. But you have to understand that this method suited our purpose. We want to stir things up—both between Israel and the Arabs and within Israel itself. We expected the bad blood that now exists, and there's no question that we'd welcome a more reasonable Israeli response to our plan, a plan that is moderate in general and which guarantees Israel's security specifically."

"A more reasonable Israeli response" can be freely translated to mean a more reasonable Israeli, which means almost anyone but Begin. And that's why the key paragraph in the Reagan plan is the one that contains these words: "In the pre-1967 borders, Israel was barely ten miles wide at its narrowest point. The bulk of Israel's population lived within artillery range of hostile Arab armies. I am not about to ask Israel to live that way again."

The president's understanding that Israel's security needs cannot permit a return to the pre-1967 borders has the capacity of splitting Israel down the middle. There are many in Israel, not including Menachem Begin, who believe that security matters most. They dismiss Begin's assertion that the West Bank should be Israel's because the Bible says so. If they can feel secure behind a newly drawn border, they'll be happy to give up part of the West Bank in exchange for peace. In fact, Reagan's plan in this regard is a near carbon copy of an earlier proposal offered by a recent Israeli Labor-party government. That's why today's Labor leadership has welcomed the Reagan plan while Begin has rejected it. And now that Begin has said he will call new elections for next May or June, all Israelis will have the chance to vote on the future of the West Bank.

None of this may come to pass, however—not the election, not even any meaningful discussion of the American plan—if the Arab states fail to display moderation. For no matter how bold and thoughtful the Reagan plan is (and it is), the president will in no way handcuff Israel if the Arabs trot out their tired, rejectionist response.

So far, the word from the Fez, Morocco, Arab League summit meeting is not very encouraging. To begin with, the Arabs have re-anointed the P.L.O. as the legitimate representative of the Palestinians. Israel has vowed never to negotiate with the P.L.O., and even a Labor government would probably find it absurd to deal with an enemy Israel had just vanquished.

Moving to the specifics of the Arab League proposal—in so far as they were known late last week—the ideas seem all too familiar. Although they are being touted as incorporating other peace plans, including Reagan's, the "new" Arab proposals smell much like warmed-over Fahd—the old ideas of King Fahd, of Saudi Arabia.

Nevertheless, two Reagan-administration officials with whom I spoke last week detect a softening in the Arab position and see an Arab move toward conformity with United Nations Security Council Resolution 242, the guiding document for a comprehensive Middle East peace. Since this appears to be the developing administration stance toward Fez, it is useful to recall where the Fahd plan and 242 do not converge—which is just about everywhere.

To begin with, the Fahd plan calls for the "Israeli evacuation of all Arab territories seized during the 1967 Middle East war, including the Arab sector of Jerusalem." Resolution 242, however, seeks "withdrawal of Israeli armed forces from territories occupied in the recent conflict." Notice the absence of the word "all." Israel—and Reagan too—realizes that Israel must hang on to some of that territory to survive.

Article 2 of the Fahd proposal called for "dismantling of the settlements set up by Israel on the occupied lands." Resolution 242 makes no mention of the Israeli settlements, and even the Reagan proposal, as fleshed out in the State Department's "talking points," opposes wiping out the existing settlements.

Resolution 242 seeks a "just settlement of the refugee problem." Reagan goes farther and speaks of Palestinian "rights." Fahd and the "new" Arab plan go farther still, envisioning a Palestinian state with East Jerusalem the capital.

Most important, Fahd affirms "the right of all countries in the region to live in peace." This does not approach 242, which requires the "termination of all claims or states of belligerency and respect for and acknowledgement of the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of every state in the area and their right to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries free from threats or acts of force." But the Arabs still do not view Israel as a nation. They call her an illegal "Zionist entity" that must eventually be replaced by a Palestinian state. So far, it is only whispered that the Arabs will finally recognize Israel—if Israel agrees to a Palestinian state.

The Fahd plan resurrected all the old positions of the most intransigent Arabs. It was tagged "moderate" only because it was rejected by other Arab nations who wouldn't recognize Israel under any circumstances. Now that it is back the Arabs are asking that their position be viewed as conciliatory and responsive to the Reagan proposals.

The Arabs may be right—and so may President Reagan when he says that the various sides are merely "staking out" positions prior to hard bargaining. Would it were so. In the end, Begin, despite his petulance, may indeed be speaking for the majority of his countrymen. "Things are never static," says a Begin aide. "When I went to school, we would go on field trips to tour the country. They were called 'sea to sea' trips, and that meant from the Mediterranean to the Galilee. Today, my children go on 'sea to sea' trips, but now 'sea to sea' means from the Mediterranean to the Jordan River, and that includes the entire West Bank. It is going to be very, very difficult for Israelis to give up much of the West Bank, and that even goes for those Israelis who hate Begin. This will not be easy, and it may well be impossible, no matter the nature of the peace the Arabs and Reagan may offer in return. The country is going to be torn apart over this, and only a fool would predict the outcome."

STARTING OVER

Magazine Face-Lifts

THE TOP EDITORS, THE ART AND AD DIRECTORS, the publisher, and other executives at Condé Nast had spent years mulling over what to do about House & Garden. The magazine wasn't exactly floundering, but it wasn't flourishing either. Ad pages were off 11 percent in 1981 (and even more in the first half of 1982). And the field had grown very crowded in the last four years as new want margarine, you get margarine.")

The regular fix-it and recipe columns will be gone, and so will the $1.50 cover price. That, along with the weight of the paper used, has soared—the magazine will go for $4 a copy. There will be more white space on each page, and fewer readers to notice. The circulation will be slashed from a million to 550,000. But what a difference in readers! The old ones had an average household income of $25,000; the new ones will be in the and gore, is now a photojournalistic magazine that celebrates life, and Apartment Life, née Apartment Ideas, is now Metropolitan Home.

Why the make-over mania among magazines? The big reason is that many magazines are hurting. From 1976 through 1978, the industry grew more than 20 percent a year. But in the last two years—although a number of magazines are flourishing—overall growth has been slow, says Robert Farley, senior vice-president of the Magazine Publishers Association. Last year, ad pages inched ahead only 3 percent. "For most magazines, revamping is not a matter of staying alive but of doing better," Farley says. Magazine consultant W. Ronald Kops, of Miller & Kops, says otherwise: "Most redos are done out of necessity rather than anything positive."

Certainly this was the case with Geo, a glossy, lime-green, $4-a-copy coffee-table magazine that lost more than $1-million a month in its first two years. When Knapp Communications, publisher of Bon Appétit and Architectural Digest, bought the struggling magazine, in September 1981, "we knew we had to do something," says publisher Harry Myers. "The old format, because of either its editorial or marketing effort, simply wasn't working." The result is what Myers calls "more a move-over than a make-over. The name is the same and the physical quality of the magazine is the same. The marvelous photos are the same. But we're not focusing on dying Biafrans or Mexico as a disaster area. Instead, we're emphasizing people and things positive: women astronauts, growing up Amish in Pennsylvania, a British butler school. We're getting lots of applause for what we're doing"—but not a flood of paid ad pages. "We had found that advertisers were just stymied by violence."

Nine times out of ten, economics is behind a magazine make-over, but sometimes the connection is not so clear-cut. Publishers go where the money is, and that means catering to affluent readers. The fact that a growing portion of the population consists of educated people with money is not lost on magazine executives. In fact, marketers in virtually all fields are dressing up their products to appeal to moneyed people. And Farley admits, "I can't think of any magazine that has revamped downward."

Sometimes magazines change just to keep pace with their audiences—witness

Before and after: The new House & Garden (right) is due out in January 1983.

"shelter" magazines cropped up. House & Garden's overseers fretted that the magazine was losing its identity. They commissioned Louis Harris and their own internal pollsters to probe how people really live, and to see if the magazine fit that life-style. In many ways it didn't. They thought of ways to patch it, including dropping some regular columns and adding new ones. And then, at one afternoon session in late October 1981, editor-in-chief Louis Oliver Gropp concluded, "There isn't any halfway."

Condé Nast budgeted millions to fund the most massive revamping in House & Garden's 82-year history. Judging by the prototype, the result, due out in January, will be a lush magazine about design, decoration, architecture, and the arts, rivaling Architectural Digest. (Architectural Digest editor Paige Rense said in a speech last week that while she didn't welcome her competitor's spruce-up, she did "think better of Condé Nast than that they would be copyists.") She added, "If you want butter, you get butter; if you

$50,000-to-$100,000 range. "We went from chintz and prints," says publisher William Bondlow Jr. "It's a revolution."

Bold as House & Garden's move is, such reformulation is not uncommon in the magazine world today. For this is a season of make-overs, sweeping changes that are usually more than cosmetic. Consider that in the last few years Fortune doubled its frequency and underwent a face-lift, Mademoiselle became much more like Cosmopolitan, and Rolling Stone went from tabloid to magazine format after thirteen years. Prevention is now trying to go mainstream, and Woman's Day and Psychology Today are in the process of changing their looks (the latter, according to founding and returning editor Nicolas Charney, is undergoing a rebirth to become again what it was a dozen years ago). Sports Afield has been transformed from a blue-collar happy-hunting guide into a classy magazine for outdoorsmen with taste and money. Geo, a photojournalistic magazine that formerly reveled in violence

Even more impressive is the fact that almost 70% of our magazine is bought at the newsstand. She really wants her Mademoiselle, and so do our advertisers, who continue to receive handsome circulation bonuses and effective retail merchandising. Rolling Stone's de-emphasis of music as its readers have aged. And sometimes a magazine changes to break out of a cluttered or constrained field. Mademoiselle presented its new face in June 1981. Now it appeals to "the single, heterosexual, working woman who is educated, ambitious, and interested in herself and herself in relationship to the world," says Amy Levin, editor since 1980. "Before, it was a fairly colorless little magazine that hadn't been doing well, a step-sister to Glamour. People thought it aimed at the college girl, though in truth it bounced all over the lot and really dealt with whomever walked by. But, look, college is a transition point that people quickly grow out of. The college girl is nobody for us to target a magazine for."

The revamping process ordinarily starts a few years before the actual renovations. Studies are done to determine the costs and benefits. Often a new printer is selected, and weightier paper and cover stock are chosen. The editorial budget is enlarged, and the circulation is trimmed to weed out less demographically desirable readers. The subscription and newsstand prices are hiked. A new editor may well be involved, either initiating sweeping changes or being brought in to carry them out. There's usually a publicity blitz as the magazine tries to let the world know what it's up to, and a period in which the publisher sweats a lot watching the readers and advertisers churn.

"We had some pretty dark hours in 1978 when we thought we might have made a mistake," admits Alan Waxenberg, publisher of Sports Afield. The monthly had undergone a complete redesign in 1977, at age 89, after a decade of decline. The first year after the change, ad pages tumbled from 971 to 788. "When you have that kind of page loss you say, 'Hey, wait a minute. Are we sure what we're doing is right?' The reader response said yes, but advertisers don't necessarily share your belief. They pull in their horns and wait and see." They waited and saw, and then supported the new Sports Afield wholeheartedly. In the first half of this year, Sports Afield's revenues were 32 percent ahead of those a year earlier, showing more than three times the growth of rival outdoor periodicals.

Make-overs are naturally risky and are bound to make those who undertake them jittery. But surely the most anxiety-producing situation is when the look isn't the only thing changed—when the name goes, too. That happened in April 1981, when Apartment Life became Metropolitan Home.

"We were scared to death every step of the way," concedes editor Dorothy Kalins. "We conducted laboratory test markets for the magazine with Yankelovich, Skelly and White, as if it were a new brand of laundry detergent. That ratified all our impulses, but no security blanket keeps the worries away. We knew we had to do it. 'Apartment' had become an old word we had to discard. Otherwise, people would say that Apartment Life was a magazine they used to read but now they've bought a house. Our title would be getting in our way. It had outlived its purpose.

"We lost the sixties-minded person for a new reader," Kalins continues, "and it was a tricky dance to keep our old advertisers while attracting new ones in the home-furnishings field. Before, they thought our readers smoked grass and sat around on Indian-print bedspreads. When we showed the new magazine at High Point [America's furniture capital, in North Carolina], advertisers for the first time looked at our faces rather than their shoes. They responded." Metropolitan Home's revenues were up 16.3 percent in the first half of 1982.

Fortune enjoyed similarly happy fortunes when, in January 1978, it converted from a monthly with the approximate dimensions of a briefcase into a sprightlier fortnightly. In the first six months after the switch, the number of ad pages climbed 27 percent, and new readers swarmed to the magazine.

Not every make-over works miracles, though. New York founder Clay Felker put his stamp on Esquire in March 1978, turning the venerable literary monthly, read by both men and women, into a life-style-service fortnightly targeted at professional and managerial men. A year later, the owners of 13-30 Corporation, two young men from Knoxville, bought Esquire and branded it according to their vision. That included making it a monthly again.

Esquire got another lease on life; Saturday Review exhausted all its chances. The 58-year-old magazine had escaped brushes with death before—in 1971, it split into four separate special-interest monthlies; two years later, it was wrested from bankruptcy and reacquired by former editor Norman Cousins. In 1978, new owner and editor Carll Tucker gave it a new look, and in 1980, it changed hands and looks yet again when Macro Communications, owners of Financial World, bought it and spruced it up with fuller cultural coverage. The only thing that didn't look rosier was the balance sheet. This summer, Saturday Review was laid to rest.

The specter of such costly failure surely flits through the minds of all those on the magazine operating table. Lately, though, the surgery has usually proved successful. At House & Garden the mood is certainly optimistic. Says Bondlow, "We're ready. Cut!"

INVESTING IN THE COMPUTER REVOLUTION

New Rules of the Game

"IN THE 1980s, THE COMPUTER user WILL reign supreme, in contrast to the rule of the technologists and the hardware manufacturers," says Ulric Weil, Morgan Stanley's computer-industry analyst and one of Wall Street's leading authorities in this highly complicated field.

According to Weil, given the ready availability of sophisticated computer equipment at relatively modest cost from numerous manufacturers, the industry's focus today is shifting from equipment to software, and to meeting the specific requirements of the many users of computers. This means that the book by Weil, Information Systems in the 80's: Products, Markets, and Vendors, published by Prentice-Hall. The book provides what is probably the best overview available on the many changes happening in a business that last year took in $500 billion in worldwide revenues. All topics, from the office of the future to personal computing, large scientific "number crunchers," the revolution in microelectronics, the development of packaged software, CAD/CAM (computer-aided design and computer-aided manufacturing), the prospects for a cashless society, and Japanese inroads into information processing, are discussed at length.

ment practices, an orientation toward high productivity, low costs, and an emphasis on quality products." Since both benefit from vast economies of scale, they are leaders in pricing and can easily cut prices, forcing less efficient competitors with lower profit margins to follow their lead.

Weil believes that I.B.M. (recent price, $72 a share) could hit $100 a share within the next eighteen months. "I.B.M. is also being considered a safe harbor in a storm by some investors who would rather have 100 shares of its stock than the same amount in a bank certificate of deposit. Given the suspicion about the integrity of the international banking ground rules for success in the entire field of computers, data processing, and information systems "are about to change noticeably." The market is growing increasingly indifferent to technology and more interested in companies that can offer services that meet a computer user's precise needs.

The computer market is ceasing to be constrained by limited supplies, which were a big problem in the 1970s. A few years ago, large computer systems had to be ordered a year in advance to give the manufacturer the time needed to get through his backlog of orders and build such a complex and expensive machine; today, most big computers can be purchased virtually off the shelf.

Industry emphasis is shifting "from a fascination with MIPS [millions of instructions per second], machine cycle times, and data rates to improving in-house-programmer productivity or avoiding the programmer problem altogether by utilizing the universal services of tomorrow's computer utility—the ultimate in processing services," Weil explains. "This decade, in other words, will see the liberation of the end user, and the vendors at last will have to cater to his needs and desires."

This argument is central to a new

Most valuable to readers who are interested in investing in this area are Weil's detailed descriptions of the many players in the game. Unless you're an expert in the field, you'll be hard-pressed to explain the difference between Prime Computer and Tandem Computers, or between Cray Research and Paradyne. That's where the book is particularly handy. There are also lengthy discussions of I.B.M. and of the implications of the breakup and reorganization of A.T.&T.

Who will be the winners and losers as the industry changes? Among the large manufacturers, says Weil, only those companies that can produce large numbers of machines at low unit cost while also maintaining a high standard of quality will thrive. Two names stand out: I.B.M. and Digital Equipment. Both have spent heavily on increasing their production capability, and both have the potential to increase their market share in the next few years, Weil believes. Among the multi-billion-dollar industry giants, I.B.M. and Digital Equipment are his leading investment choices.

"Both companies have made investments in highly automated production," says Weil. "They are essentially run like Japanese companies, with full-employ-system, I.B.M. seems the less shaky investment."

Digital Equipment (86), the leading manufacturer of minicomputers (I.B.M. builds chiefly large systems), holds a similar attraction for investors.

Weil also likes two other large computer firms, Hewlett-Packard (53), which makes a wide range of computers and is heavily involved in the aerospace and defense fields, and Wang Laboratories (37), a strong contender in providing products for the office of the future.

Among smaller, entrepreneurial companies, the strongest are those that offer proprietary products or services and thereby have found a special niche in the business. Among these, Weil likes:

□ Apple Computer (18), a leader in the personal-computer market, which has held its own as a number of larger competitors have come into the market.

□ Automatic Data Processing (27), whose sole business is to provide data services. It has managed to maintain a high return on equity and keep its profit margins robust.

□ Cray Research (27), a company that sells its very large computers to universities and government for scientific and defense work.

□ Cullinane Database Systems (35),

The essence of a good coat...

When asked to think about one's favorite coat, you often find yourself remembering very special occasions during a particularly bitter Winter. And how the coat got you through. That coat took on almost human qualities, more like a good friend.

And so it is with the coats of Harvé Benard. With the understanding that a coat is perhaps a woman's single most important garment, Harvé Benard's goal is to produce a coat that will be with the wearer through years of memorable experiences. To endure is simply not enough. But to endure and continue to satisfy the owner years after the purchase... that is the essence of a good coat.

We begin with the basics. The cloth, carefully chosen by Harvé Benard, is woven from a blend of the very finest Australian Merino (the thoroughbred of sheep) lambswool and superior domestic lambswool. It is, in fact, a true double cloth - which, when woven together, proves far more durable, more comfortable and better feeling than ordinary fabrics.

...Now the craftsmanship of Harvé Benard takes over. Hundreds of minute steps (many by hand) combine to create a coordinated whole. Such confusing sounding procedures as underbasted facings, tacked open gorges and hand felled undercollars reveal themselves in the way the coat performs year after year.

The styling is critical. To design a coat that always looks current—and correct—is no easy trick. And so it was the philosophy years ago that Harvé Benard concentrate on producing the finest in classic styling—updating only the details that were required to be most flattering to the wearer. Ask the woman who owns a Harvé Benard coat if this philosophy was worthwhile.

We at Harvé Benard feel secure in saying that the culmination of our efforts is a good coat... a coat that will provide fond remembrances, many years later.

considered the leading company in the emerging, independent software-package industry (which provides the programs that make computers really useful). Since 1977, Cullinane's revenues have grown 59 percent a year, and its per-share earnings have climbed 54 percent annually.

□ Paradyne (35), a manufacturer of modems, devices fitted to telephone receivers that make it possible for one computer to communicate with another computer or a terminal over phone lines. Paradyne has also developed a whole system using telecommunications technology to enable remote data-processing equipment to function as if it were in a central computer room.

□ Prime Computer (27), a main force in developing the "supermini" computer and a broad range of software to go with it. Prime's emphasis on user software gives it a strong position in this market, although competition is intensifying.

□ Tandem Computers (24), the developer of systems that virtually eliminate the time during which computers are "down" due to any intermittent failures. These so-called all-tolerance systems are on the way to becoming the standard for the computer industry, and Weil expects Tandem to keep growing by 40 or 50 percent a year.

What about A.T.&T., now free to move into information processing in a big way since its antitrust settlement with the Justice Department?

"The new A.T.&T. will not be in place until January 1984 and could turn out to be very interesting," says Weil. Most likely, anyone who purchases shares of A.T.&T. today will in eighteen months be holding eight pieces of paper, one for the new A.T.&T. and seven for each of the regional telephone companies that Ma Bell is spinning off.

"I would wait eighteen months and then buy that eighth piece of paper, uncluttered by the seven other new companies," Weil advises. "The new A.T.&T. could turn out to be another I.B.M., provided management is able to shed its utility mentality."

While a number of computer companies have enjoyed significant stock-price increases during the market's dramatic recent advance, Weil believes the stocks still have substantial room to move if the market continues to improve. Institutional investors, he notes, still have plenty of cash to put into the stock market, and an enormous hoard of cash remains in money-market funds.

The computer stocks he has mentioned, because they have the ability to register handsome earnings gains even in a deep recession, should continue to appeal to large and small investors. He expects computer stocks, as a group, to outperform the market averages in coming months.

BEN KINGSLEY

The saintly Gandhi is reincarnated by a brilliant young British actor in an old-school epic.

FOR MORE THAN 30 YEARS, UNTIL the day of Indian independence, August 15, 1947, one small, shrewd, persistent man—a man in a loincloth, obsessed with diet and sanitation—commanded the respect of his British masters, the devotion of his countrymen, and, finally, the bewildered admiration of the world. The life of Mahatma Gandhi is one of the most astonishing of modern stories. Indeed, Gandhi's success in ending British rule without hatred or terror is an achievement that appears more curious every year. When people think of the tactics of militant nonviolence now, it is with a certain wistfulness. But in a world generally ruled by force, it remains an infinitely moving possibility.

Though he never put forth any such claim himself, Gandhi was considered a saint by many. But he was also one of the craftiest of men—a political leader who understood the psychology of mass movements and the use of the press. What actor could play this holy politician? For years Sir Richard Attenborough (Young Winston, A Bridge Too Far) was determined to make a film about Gandhi, but many potential investors wanted a star in the role. (Dustin Hoffman was reported to be interested at one point.) Attenborough, however, had someone else in mind, and he held out. He finally put together $22.5-million, from Indian, British, and American investors, and has now brought his efforts to a triumphant conclusion. Gandhi, which opens here December 8, is a stirring old-fashioned movie, an epic vision of the birth of modern India made with great detail and love for its subject and also an honorable seriousness about a most difficult theme—the discipline of nonviolence. It spans 55 years in Gandhi's life—his struggles against the British, his relations with Indian politicians, his horror at the independence movement's degeneration into religious civil war. And when it opens, moviegoers will greet yet another great British actor.

Ben Kingsley, 38, has been a member of the Royal Shakespeare Company for fifteen years. He has played Hamlet, Brutus, Ford in The Merry Wives of Windsor, and major roles in plays by Ben Jonson and Chekhov. And he has another qualification: He is half Indian. His paternal grandfather was born near Bombay but at the age of twelve was shipwrecked off Zanzibar and was adopted by a spice grower there. Kingsley's father emigrated to England and became a successful doctor. The boy was raised as an Englishman (in Manchester), and he now says that he "feels totally English. But there were little eccentricities in the household—shades, colorings, accents—that I must have picked up."

Whether inherited or learned, Kingsley's affinity for Gandhi is startling. There is a basic physical resemblance—the same handsome brownish skin, the full, slightly curved nose—but what's more remarkable is the way Kingsley uses his body. He makes the young Gandhi—a British-trained barrister defending the rights of Indians in South Africa—an eagerly polite but arrogant and naïve poseur with shining eyes. Later, when Gandhi has returned to India, a shaved head brings out the aggressive thrust of Kingsley's chin, and a white loincloth reveals a sinewy but graceful torso—that much exposed, much fussed over body that Gandhi would put in jeopardy again and again, in marches, in frequent beatings by the imperial police, and in long periods of fasting. Gandhi's repressed sensuality emerges in the supple bend of Kingsley's waist, his eagerness to touch and hold.

In playing a man who ruled by moral force, the temptation to gravitas must have been great, but Kingsley typically modulates his full, theatrically trained voice and reaches for the lighter tone. Kingsley must have known that there was an element of comedy in the spectacle of this half-naked man sitting before a spinning wheel and moving the entire empire with his word; because he realizes this and delivers his lines with a glint of mischief, he prevents the movie from becoming a dutiful exercise in hero worship.

When a British actor was announced as the star, there was considerable dismay in India, but Attenborough had the support of Indira Gandhi (Nehru's daughter and no relation to Gandhi) and the film went forward, with much advice from all sides. Even some of the simplest scenes would attract an audience of thousands of onlookers. "Twenty times a day people would press their ideas on me," says Kingsley. "And when we shot Gandhi's funeral, with 300,000 extras, I was the body that all those people were looking at. I learned to listen patiently to what everyone had to say, but also to listen to the voice inside telling me to be true to myself. From playing Gandhi, I got a glimpse of what his life must have been like, of what his task was."

At home in England, Kingsley lives with his wife and infant son in a sixteenth-century house near Stratford-on-Avon. His wife—he describes himself as "very happily married to a glorious woman"—is Alison Sutcliffe, a director who worked with the Harrogate Theatre when he was off in India. "She has directed me in a marvelous one-man play about the Shakespearean actor Edmund Kean. That was the acid test—being directed by your wife." Kingsley has also acted in another movie since Gandhi was completed, a version of Harold Pinter's Betrayal. Meanwhile, he waits for Gandhi to open. "When I was in India," he says, "I was so utterly convinced that there was nothing better to do in the whole world than what I was doing then. And such close scrutiny from everyone made me think I owed it to these people to give everything I had."

A Creepshow, a Streep show, a couple of Moores. Airplane II: The Sequel and Halloween 3. De Niro acts funny, Hoffman acts flirty, Newman acts flinty. Pavarotti acts! And the Film Festival turns twenty.

SERIOUS STUFF

Based on William Styron's best-seller, Sophie's Choice tells of a young would-be writer, the beautiful Auschwitz survivor he falls in love with, and the brilliant, terrifying man she loves. Directed by Alan J. Pakula, who wrote the screenplay, the film stars Meryl Streep, Kevin Kline, and Peter MacNicol. (December 10.)

Paul Newman stars in The Verdict as an attorney who's been nearly disbarred through no fault of his own. He is handed a malpractice case no one could possibly win, and accepts it in an attempt to resurrect his career. Featured in Sidney Lumet's film are Charlotte Rampling, James Mason, and Milo O'Shea. (December 17.)

Frances Farmer was a beautiful actress whose Hollywood career ended abruptly with her commitment to a mental institution in the forties. Jessica Lange stars in her story, Frances, with Sam Shepard, Kim Stanley, Bart Burns, and Christopher Pennock. Graeme Clifford directed. (December 10.)

A Francis Coppola presentation, Hammett offers a fictitious account of the mystery writer Dashiell Hammett (Frederic Forrester). There is a grisly murder and a blackmail plot, and Hammett at his typewriter puts the pieces together. Assisting him are Peter Boyle and Marilu Henner. (Early October.)

Jessica Lange plays the ill-starred actress Frances Farmer.

Mary Tyler Moore and Dudley Moore generate a lot of friction in Six Weeks, until they are brought together by her daughter, Katherine Healy, a dancer in real life who has played Clara in the New York City Ballet's Nutcracker for several years. Directed by Tony Bill. (December 17.)

The Outsiders, adapted and directed by Francis Coppola, is based on Tulsa novelist S. E. Hinton's book about teenagers from both sides of the tracks ("greasers" and "socials"), and deals with their conflicts, heartbreaks, tragedies, and achievements. Eleven young performers were selected from television and film for the starring roles. (Early October.)

WITHOUT ACTORS

Jim Henson and Frank Oz, who brought us the Muppets, have devised an entire world of animated creatures for The Dark Crystal, in which a boy is brought up by and who falls in love with the patient's mistress (Meryl Streep). But is she the murderess? Robert Benton and David Newman wrote the story, Benton directed, and in the supporting cast are Jessica Tandy, Sara Botsford, Josef Sommer, and Joe Grifasi. (November 19.)

Zeljko Ivanek has the lead in Robert Christian's The Sender. Shirley Knight is his mother, who believes that her son is Jesus Christ reincarnated—as, indeed, what mother does not? A psychiatrist is needed, and along she comes in the person of Kathryn Harrold. (October 22.)

Nick Nolte stars in 48 Hrs as a detective who springs convict Eddie Murphy on a 48-hour pass to track down escaped killers. In director Walter Hill's description, it's "an urban thriller with humor." The leading lady is Annette O'Toole. (December 17.)

Stephen King wrote the screenplay of Creepshow, whose assorted creeps include a shrewish wife, a creature that terrorizes the countryside, a maniacally jealous husband, a nasty matriarch, and various returnees from the grave. Hal Holbrook, Adrienne Barbeau, Fritz Weaver, Leslie Nielsen, Carrie Nye, and Viveca Lindfors have been directed by George A. Romero. (October.)

Midler sings in The Jinx.

Heidi's Song, a feature-length cartoon from the Hanna-Barbera studio, is based on Johanna Spyri's Heidi. The songs are by Sammy Cahn and Burton Lane, and among the vocalists are Lorne Greene, Virginia Gregg, and Sammy Davis Jr. (November 19.)

SUSPENSE STORIES

Still of the Night tells of a shrink (Roy Scheider) whose patient is murdered

Jerry Lewis and Robert De Niro star in King of Comedy.

John Carpenter's Halloween 3: Season of the Witch is about the holiday, yes, but also about witchcraft, Stonehenge, doomsday, and many other fiendish things. With Tom Atkins, Dan O'Herlihy, and Stacey Nelkin. Directed by Tommy Lee Walle. (October 22.)

THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE

Bette Midler returns to the screen in The Jinx, which involves Bette as a would-be lounge singer, Rip Torn as a gambler with whom she lives in a trailer, and Ken Wahl as a blackjack dealer. The scene is the gambling casinos of Nevada. Bette is a platinum blonde in this one. Directed by Don Siegel. (October 22.)

Miou-Miou has the title role in Christopher Frank's Josepha, the story of an aspiring actress who tries to make a success of both her professional and private lives. Claude Brasseur is her faithless husband, and Bruno Cremer is a millionaire who wants Miou-Miou all to himself. (September 24.)

In Five Days One Summer, a 1930s love story, a married man in his fifties takes a girl on a holiday in the Swiss Alps. He hires a young, attractive mountain guide, which turns out not to be such a good idea. With Sean Connery, Betsy Brantley, and Lambert Wilson. Directed by Fred Zinnemann. (Mid-November.)

ASSORTED LAUGHS

Dustin Hoffman, in Tootsie, is an actor desperate for work. He gets the opportunity to play a woman in a bit part in a soap opera and, to his consternation, becomes a star. Jessica Lange shares the action, along with Teri Garr, jungle to find that things have changed. (October 21.)

Luciano Pavarotti makes his film debut in the comedy Yes, Giorgio! as, yes, an opera singer. While touring the country, he gets a sore throat and meets an eminent throat specialist played by Kathryn Harrold. He also sings half a dozen arias and several contemporary popular songs. Directed by Franklin Schaffner. (September 24.)

A fifties television variety show is the setting and theme of My Favorite Year, a comedy about a writer, a matinee idol, and the producer's assistant, with whom the idol falls in love. The cast: Peter O'Toole, Jessica Harper, Mark Linn-Baker, Joe Bologna, Lainie Kazan, and Adolph Green. Directed by Richard Benjamin. (October 1.)

Robert De Niro is a stand-up comic and Jerry Lewis a late-night-talk-guiding a space shuttle to the moon. Rip Torn is head of the Space Center. Aldo Ray and Sonny and Susie Bono are also aboard. (December 10.)

The alumni of Lizzie Borden High School's class of '72 return for a night of shenanigans in National Lampoon's Class Reunion. Directed by Michael Miller. (October 29.)

Dustin Hoffman as a tootsie.

Millionaire Jackie Gleason takes his son (Scott Schwartz) to a toy store and tells him he can have anything he wants. What does he want? Richard Pryor, a clerk in the store. And Pryor is for sale. That's the plot of The Toy. (Mid-December.)

30 FILMS 30

The twentieth New York Film Festival opens with the late Rainer Werner Fassbinder's last film, Veronika Voss, the third in a trilogy about post-war Germany, and closes with Werner Herzog's Fitzcarraldo, which stars Klaus Kinski as a failed rubber baron. There are 30 works altogether, including films by Paul Bartel, Miklos Jancso, Joseph Losey, and Edgar G. Ulmer. (September 24 through October 10.) RUTH GILBERT

Jackie Gleason and his purchase, Richard Pryor, in The Toy.

Charles Durning, and Bill Murray. Sydney Pollack is the director. (December 10.)

Michael Palin (from Monty Python), Maggie Smith, and Trevor Howard are the stars of The Missionary. Palin also wrote the film (directed by Richard Loncraine), about a British missionary who comes home to London after fourteen years in the African show host in King of Comedy. De Niro wants superstardom, and resorts to highly devious methods to achieve it. Martin Scorsese directed this dark comedy. (December.)

ANDREW LLOYD WEBBER

On the heels of Evita, the poetical Cats leaps to Broadway from its triumph in London.

BY NOW, ONLY THE TERMINALLY IN-attentive have not heard the patter of little Cats feet. Months before the show's October 7 opening, cast albums and copies of Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats leaped onto the counters of record and book shops. Slanted yellow eyes stared at passersby from a Broadway billboard taking up most of a block, and from the T-shirts of traveling theatergoers. Barbra Streisand's version of "Memory," the Puccini-esque lament of a cat who has seen her best days, crept into the consciousness of a million record buyers. And all the fuss over London's biggest musical hit since, well, since Andrew Lloyd Webber's Evita has put over $4 million in the Winter Garden kitty.

Five years ago, Lloyd Webber began to set T. S. Eliot's poems for children to music. From a few pieces to amuse friends on Sunday afternoons, the songs grew into a concert anthology, and then, with the help of the poet's widow, Valerie Eliot, and Trevor Nunn, director of the Royal Shakespeare Company, into the show that opened in London in May 1981 and has been selling out ever since.

Despite the show's success, says Lloyd Webber, "I think this production will make the English one look like a touring tryout. The range and depth of performers here mean we can do things we couldn't do in London. We'll be able to go further with the choreography, and there will be three different song settings. I'm writing a completely new one for 'Mungojerrie and Rumpelteazer' [who have "a little more reputation than a couple of cats can very well bear"]. The first-rank performers in London are as good as any in the world, but when you scratch below the surface . . ."

Cats has certainly been staged within an inch of its nine lives. The practical and fantastical cats will cavort on a huge garbage dump that John Napier has created out of junked automobiles, tires, enormous trash cans, and scattered fish skeletons and cream cartons. The set even takes in the theater's mezzanine, connected to the stage by fairy lights, and the ceiling, turned into the "heavieside layer," or cat heaven, to which a beautiful pussycat ascends at the climax of the show. In the conversion process, the Winter Garden has gained several, er, catwalks.

The cats sing, the cats dance, but they don't tell a story. Cats is a series of song characterizations accompanied by dance—Macavity, the mystery cat ("a fiend in feline shape, a monster of depravity"); the flighty Jellicle Cats ("Queen-of-the-nights/Singing at astronomical heights/Handelling pieces from the Messiah"); Grizabella, the glamour pussy. Lloyd Webber's score raids music hall, thirties girl-group harmonizing, blues, and Broadway razzmatazz, among other styles. "It's a pastiche," he explains, "because the poems are as well—a literary pastiche. Macavity, for instance, is obviously a takeoff on Moriarty, the master criminal of the Sherlock Holmes stories, and 'Of the Awefull Battle of the Pekes and the Pollicles' is reminiscent of Jacobean drama."

Cats is Lloyd Webber's first collaboration in which the lyrics came first, but he found it a task of extracting music from the poems ("The poems struck me as lyrics when I read them") rather than imposing it on them. He's pulled out such varying sounds as the rumbling and racing and clickety-clack that accompany Skimbleshanks, the railway cat; the we-are-Siamese-if-you-please meowing during the battle of Growl-tiger and the Mongolian horde; the slinky, TV-private-eye theme for the sinister Macavity; and the orotund, vaguely eighteenth-century, stately measures for what Lloyd Webber calls "the cats' national anthem," "The Ad-dressing of Cats." The last confronts the rather sticky whimsy of Eliot's poem head-on by inflating it past the point of absurdity: The singer informs us somberly, "You bow, and taking off your hat, Ad-dress him in this form: O Cat!" And by stretching a syllable in one song, Lloyd Webber created a joke that's not in Eliot's poem: Though we're reminded that "a cat is not a dog," the song about the Rum Tum Tugger tells us, "He will do/As he do do/And there's no doing anything a-bow-wow-wow-wow it!" The score has won over at least one critic not previously in the Lloyd Webber camp: Alan Rich, who pronounced Jesus Christ Superstar "the bottom rung of bubble gum," thinks Cats is "a lot of fun."

At 34, with three productions on Broadway and in the West End (Evita in both, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat here, Song and Dance there), Lloyd Webber is the best known of his musical family—his father headed the London College of Music; his brother is a classical cellist. At seventeen, he met the lyricist Tim Rice, who wrote Joseph with him two years later, then Jesus and Evita.

While the hammering goes on at the Winter Garden, while the leotard-clad cats prowl and wail (among them Betty Buckley, Ken Page, Harry Groener, and René Clemente), Lloyd Webber has more modest projects purring along. One is a chamber opera based on David Garnett's novel Aspects of Love, the other a work for children. "It's a work for the benefit of the Round House Theatre, which was converted from an engine shed. So I've written a musical about trains."

The Mail, the Guardian, the Telegraph, and the Times may have fallen all over themselves to compliment Cats, but so far Andrew Lloyd Webber's severest critics, the two who live with him and his family, have kept their opinions to themselves—"apart from destruction of the score occasionally," he says. "Do you think a cat would really pass comment? No way."

Colleen Dewhurst plays a prostitute, and Eva LeGallienne a queen. Tommy Tune dances with Twiggy, Treat Williams takes to drink. There's Cronyn and Tandy, Good and Plenty. And Lansbury, of course.

Burstyn in a West End hit.

LEADING LADIES

Eva LeGallienne will commemorate the 150th anniversary of Lewis Carroll's birth with a revival of her own 1932 production of Alice in Wonderland. Miss LeGallienne will once again be director and actress, and she promises to make her entrance as the White Queen the same way she did 50 years ago—airborne. The cast includes a cat and a pig. (Ambassador, December 22.)

Angela Lansbury, last seen wielding a rolling pin in Sweeney Todd, will get a chance to continue her self-actualizing behavior in Jay Presson Allen's new comedy. A Little Family Business presents Miss Lansbury as a housewife who takes over her husband's factory. Vivian Mat-alon will direct. (Martin Beck, December 2.)

In a revival of Ugo Betti's The Queen and the Rebels, the indomitable Colleen Dewhurst will play a prostitute caught in a revolution who offers herself to the mobs in place of the queen. (Plymouth, September 30.)

In his new play, William Gibson shows us what followed the events of The Miracle Worker. Monday After the Miracle takes place twenty years later and examines the peculiar love triangle of Annie Sullivan, her husband, and Helen Keller. Jane Alexander will play the famous teacher, and Karen Allen her pupil. (Theater to be announced, early December.)

Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn are together yet again in Foxfire, based on the series of books of the same name. It deals with an Appalachian-mountain couple and will give Keith Carradine, as the couple's country-music-star son, his first chance to sing since Nashville. (Ethel Barrymore, November 10.)

Anne Jackson will play a policewoman and a housewife, Eli Wallach an unemployed actor and a harassed husband in Murray Schisgal's comedy Twice

Jane Alexander and Karen Allen as Sullivan and Keller.

LeGallienne (left) in her 1932 Alice, revived this fall.

Around the Park. It will deal with two romances between people who may or may not wear jogging suits. (Cort, November 4.)

PRESENT LAUGHTER

Like her Pulitzer Prize-winning Crimes of the Heart, Beth Henley's new play, The Wake of Jamey Foster, is set in a small Mis-issippi town, where relatives gather in the aftermath of a family crisis—in this case, the death of a family member who, while drunk, was kicked by a cow. Jamey's widow will be played by Susan Kingsley. (Eugene O'Neill, October 14.)

Treat Williams, the prince of the city, will be portraying a deserted husband who has turned to drink in Some Men Need Help. The two-character play will be by that mini-drama specialist, John Ford Noonan, author of A Couple White Chicks Sitting Around Talking. Philip Bosco, last seen in Learned Ladies, will be the samaritan. (Westside Arts, October 18.)

GOTTA SING! GOTTA DANCE!

Tommy Tune has a new old musical in the works, and should be pouring on the glitter in his revamped version of the Gershwin's Funny Face (retitled, after one of its songs, My One and Only). Tune will be doing double duty as choreographer and star, opposite Twiggy. (Theater to be announced, early January.)

Warold Prince is bringing us a musical by Betty Comden, Adolph Green, and composer Larry Grossman that will show what happened to Nora after she slammed the door in A Doll's House. Betsy Joslyn is Nora, and George Hearn doubles as her husband and the lawyer she manipulates in A Doll's Life. (Mark Helinger, September 23.)

The music of Jelly Roll Morton, Scott Joplin, and others will be featured in New Orleans: The Storyville Musical, by Toni Donald McKayle, Toni Morrison.

Morrison, author of Song of Solomon. The folksinger Odetta will be keeping house for the notorious ladies of the red-light district at the turn of the century. Donald McKayle will direct. (Theater and date to be announced.)

tures nine young men and women who will play the Beatles and other characters in the rock musician's life story. (Entermedia, date to be announced.)

FROM THE WEST END

The Royal Shakespeare Company gave us a theater marathon last year with Nicholas Nickleby. This time it's doing something on a more modest scale. Alan Howard stars in C. P. Taylor's Good, a study of a decent college professor who sells his soul to the Nazis in the early days of the Third Reich. (Booth, October 13.)

Ellen Burstyn returns to Broadway this fall to star in 84 Charing Cross Road. It's based on Helene Hanff's autobiographical novel about the relationship that develops over three decades of correspondence between an American author and a British clerk who works in an antiquarian bookshop. (Biltmore, December 5.)

THE COMPANY WAY

Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival will be offering, to start, a production of David Hare's Plenty, starring Kate Nelligan, last seen here in The Eye of the Needle and the BBC's Thérèse Raquin. Plenty deals with the transition of England from the Second World War to present times, and will be at the Public starting October 8. Papp himself will be directing Buried Inside Extra, a new play by Thomas Babe, which features Charles Durning, of That Championship Season (December 21). And David Henry Hwang, author of The Alan Howard, named Best Actor by the London critics for Good.

Dance and the Railroad, will give us Midnight and Mourning, an evening of two new one-acters.

The American Place Theatre will present Buck, a sinister new play by Ronald Ribman, as well as Donald Barthelme's Great Days, an evening of dialogues from his book of the same name. The season will also include a show about pre-Civil War slaves and an operetta performed by people and puppets.

Manhattan Theatre Club, which introduced us to Crimes of the Heart, will be presenting another example of southern gothic: Actors Theatre of Louisville's Talking With, by Jane Martin, about a series of bizarre characters, ranging from a snake-handling teenager to a religiously inclined baton twirler. (M.T.C. DownStage, September 21.)

The author is Lanford Wilson, but, no, the play is not another chapter in the lives of the Talley family. Angels Fall deals with the crises in the lives of a group of strangers who meet in a New Mexican mission during a possible nuclear incident. It will be directed by Marshall Mason, who staged the original productions of the Talley plays. (Circle Repertory Company, October 16.)

S.C. Repertory, which has put on the complete Oedipus cycle and the full text of Peer Gynt, will be bringing us both parts of Goethe's Faust. Part two has never before been done professionally in this country. (C.S.C. Theater, October 31.) ELLEN HOPKINS

KIRI TE KANAWA

The Met opens its season with a fire-and-ice

Marschallin in Strauss's Der Rosenkavalier.

THE MUSIC OF MOZART AND STRAUSS suits me," says Kiri Te Kanawa with the confidence of a singer who knows she possesses something special. "These two composers not only lubricate my voice, but the women in their operas are contradictory, just like me: warm and cool at the same time."

Audiences have been responding enthusiastically to Te Kanawa's contradictions in this music for the past decade. The whipped-cream consistency and heady spin of her soprano have captivated operagoers all over the world, while her provocative fire-and-ice beauty must be precisely what Strauss and Mozart had in mind when they created their intriguing heroines. In demand everywhere, Te Kanawa has found little time to cast her spell over the Metropolitan Opera, after a clamorous debut as Desdemona in Otello eight years ago. Since then, there have been several Donna Elviras in Don Giovanni and an enchanting Fiordiligi in last year's Così Fan Tutte, but not enough to satisfy this city. Now the time has come to give New York a taste of what Te Kanawa can conjure up in Strauss. She opens the 1982-83 Met season next Monday night as the Marschallin in Der Rosenkavalier, and next February she returns in the title role of Arabella, a new production.

A singer who excels in the Mozart-Strauss repertoire is not a new phenomenon—a generation ago, Lisa Della Casa, at the Met, and Sena Jurinac, in Europe, combined the same qualities of vocal and physical glamour that make Te Kanawa a favorite in these roles today. Those earlier sopranos absorbed the Mozart-Strauss tradition through their Central European background and training, but Te Kanawa is an exotic transplant: a New Zealander born 38 years ago to a Maori father and a white mother. The inspiration for a career in music came from her mother, a woman of Irish descent whose great-uncle was Sir Arthur Sullivan, the musical half of Gilbert and Sullivan. Sent to England on a grant, Te Kanawa studied at the London Opera Center, Covent Garden's training ground for young hopefuls.

After a few years of singing small roles, the big breakthrough came in December 1971 when Te Kanawa appeared as the Countess in The Marriage of Figaro and caused a reaction that was little short of ecstatic. The voice was ravishing enough—fresh, warm, and vibrant—but the woman who had made these wonderful sounds looked sensational, too. Te Kanawa exudes glamour and a glowing, aristocratic beauty, even when casually dressed in a sweater and jeans. After the Covent Garden debut, she quickly moved on to the world's other great opera stages, where a feisty spirit helped her to survive the rigors and intrigues of a jet-age operatic career. ("I never have any problems with other prima donnas," she once said coyly. "After all, Maoris eat their rivals.")

"We singers today are gypsies," says Te Kanawa, who became Dame Kiri earlier this year. "You have to be on the go every minute to keep in contact with your international colleagues. I would like to sing more in America, but that means staying away from my husband [Desmond Park, an Australian mining engineer] and two small children longer than I would like. So I have been busy in Europe since the Met's Così last February. I did a run of Tosca in Paris during March; then Simon Boccanegra at Covent Garden, interrupted by a side trip to New Zealand when my father became ill; a BBC television program on golf; two Mozart operas in Cologne; some recording in London with Colin Davis; and Otello at the Verona Arena in July."

Successfully juggling a busy international career with a family life may sound impossible, but Te Kanawa is determined to make it work. She has two role models in the Strauss heroines she is portraying this season at the Met. Both the Marschallin and Arabella are passionate, active women, capable of deep emotional involvements, and yet both pause to ponder their actions with detachment and self-awareness.

"That's me all over," Te Kanawa admits. "Just look at my birth sign—Pisces, full of opposites and contradictions. If someone tells me to do one thing, I'll probably go off and do the reverse. Like Arabella, I'm always acting on impulse, either too coolly or too enthusiastically, but I still like to be in control of every situation."

Probably more than any other opera singer this side of Plácido Domingo and Luciano Pavarotti, Te Kanawa has the stuff it takes to break out of the narrow confines of the opera world and cross over into mass-media visibility. "It will never happen," she says firmly. "This public-relations thing is a big drain on the voice, and I could never start up in that circus, where you have to appear everywhere and do the strange things people expect from a 'media figure,' whatever that is. I'd rather put the extra energy into my family."

Perhaps Te Kanawa will never agree to a guest shot on the Johnny Carson show, but television will be full of her photogenic presence in the future. The Verona Otello, with Vladimir Atlantov, has been filmed, and a Tosca is in the works, while Live From the Met will carry the Rosenkavalier performance of October 7 to the rest of the country. "Okay," she says, "to that extent I will be a colorful, extroverted television personality, because I love my job—when it's all over I'll call it a career—but don't expect anything more from me. The rest is for my private life and my home. Arabella and the Marschallin knew when to draw the line, when to exhibit fiery emotion, and when to cool it. I hope I can learn from them."

Sutherland and Nilsson and de Larrocha are back. There's La Donna del Lago and Il Duca d'Alba, Stravinsky with puppets and Prey at the Y. Hamlet in English, Macbeth in Italian. And Horne aplenty.

Herbert von Karajan conducts the Berlin Philharmonic.

THE ORCHESTRAL SCENE

If you haven't already got your tickets for the four Herbert von Karajan-Berlin Philharmonic Carnegie Hall concerts in October, it's too late and too bad. Start planning your concert calendar with other personalities and other sounds in mind. The New York Philharmonic's first series concerts—September 16, 17, 18, and 21—offer the premiere of the orchestral version of Steve Reich's Tehillim. October 7, 8, 9, and 12, Maxim Shostakovich will conduct the Violin Concerto No. 1 of his father, Dmitri, with soloist Glenn Dicterow. Zubin Mehta has planned a season-long retrospective on Schoenberg, beginning October 21, 22, and 23. All will be at Avery Fisher Hall.

The American Symphony Orchestra opens its twentieth-anniversary season October 3 at Carnegie Hall, with Giuseppe Patane conducting. This date also officially opens Carnegie Hall's own busy season, and the month's visitors from Europe are I Musici (October 3 and 12), the Vienna Symphony Orchestra (4), the Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam (8 and 9), the Netherlands Chamber Orchestra (21), and the Gewandhaus Orchestra of Leipzig (31).

At the Brooklyn Academy of Music, Lukas Foss and his newly renamed Brooklyn Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra will play just one of their "Major Concerts Series" this fall, the same program November 19, 20, and 21. Lorin Hollander plays Gershwin, and the all-American program includes the New York premiere of Elliott Carter's suite from the ballet The Minotaur. Gerard Schwarz and his Y Chamber Symphony open October 22 at Avery Fisher and October 23 and 24 at the 92nd Street Y, highlighting Alicia de Larrocha and the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 2; also, the world premiere of In Praise of Ockeghem—1981, by Hugh Aitken.

Frederic Waldman and the Musica Aeterna Orchestra will offer two different series during the Metropolitan Museum's season. And the American Philharmonic Orchestra starts its Avery Fisher Hall year on September 19: Rohan Joseph conducts an all-Wagner program, and Birgit Nilsson is soloist.

OPERA

The New York City Opera leads from strength, introducing two new productions in the first eight days of its fall season. The Merry Widow has already opened, and Thomas's Hamlet has been sold out for its opening night, September 14, with Sherrill Milnes in the title role and Ashley Putnam as Ophelia. The production uses Andrew Porter's English translation of the original French. On October 1, a new production of Gluck's Alceste will present soprano Heather Harper and conductor Raymond Leppard in their company debuts. Soprano Erie Mills bows as the flighty Cunegonde and David Eisler sings the title role in the new production of Leonard Bernstein's Candide, opening October 13; Harold Prince directs.

The opera and cast that may well be the Metropolitan Opera's top ticket open the season September 20: a revival of Der Rosenkavalier, with Kiri Te Kanawa (see page 42) as the Marschallin, Tatiana Troyanos, Judith Blegen, Kurt Moll, and Luciano Pavarotti. Mozart's Idomeneo, in a new production by Jean-Pierre Ponnelle, will finally come to the Met October 14, 201 years after its Munich premiere. James Levine will conduct Pavarotti, Ileana Cotrubas, Hildegarde Behrens, and Frederica von Stade. Sherrill Milnes shifts from Denmark to Scotland for Macbeth, with a new production opening November 18 and co-starring Renata Scotto. More good news: Joan Sutherland returns to sing Lucia di Lammermoor.

Marilyn Horne will appear in all three of the Rossini-festival offerings at Carnegie Hall. On November 14, it's La Donna del Lago. Eve Queler's Opera Orchestra of New York also is performing there just once before the first of the year—October 28—doing Donizetti's Il Duca d'Alba, with Renato Bruson.

From other quarters, we can look for Chamber Opera Theatre's double bill of Mozart's Bastien and Bastienne and Rimsky-Korsakov's Mozart and Salieri, November 3, 5, 7, 9, 11, and 13 at Marymount Manhattan

Joan Sutherland at the Met.

Theater; the Beethoven Society is staging Fidelio in the original 1805 version, December 4 at Alice Tully Hall; and there's more from the city's many local troupes. The Amato Opera, for example, opens its thirty-fifth-anniversary season September 18 with Don Giovanni.

FESTIVAL AIRS

The week of September 13 marks the opening of Scandinavia Today, a fifteen-month-long festival in which the accents in music—as well as in art and theater—will be Swedish, Icelandic, Norwegian, Finnish, and Danish. A new ensemble, the Nordic Trio, was formed just for this festival: Norwegian violinist Arve Tellefsen, Finnish pianist Ralf Gothoni, and Swedish cellist Frans Helmerson will appear at the Guggenheim Museum September 14. Two nights later, Finland's youthful Tapiola Choir (ages 9 through 20) will perform at Alice Tully Hall.

New York's American Institute of Guitar is bringing together guitarists from six countries for its first International Guitar Festival, a series that begins at CAMI Hall October 8 with flamenco virtuoso Sabicas.

Note one of the mini-series in "Great Performers at certos with Gerard Schwarz. Arrau is a kind of festival unto himself: He will celebrate his eightieth birthday next February and will be performing frequently long before then, starting at Carnegie November 7, playing the Brahms Piano Concerto No. 1 with the Scottish National Orchestra.

Another season-long celebration marks the 150th anniversary of Brahms's birth. Carnegie Hall's salute opens October 31 and ends March 21, with a Brahms work on each of six programs.

CHORAL AND CHAMBER FARE

Musica Sacra's "Basically Bach" has become an annual favorite, and it opens October 6 at Avery Fisher Hall with the Bach Mass in B Minor. The Waverly Consort calls its 1982-83 Alice Tully Hall series "Italia Mia," saluting seven cities and five centuries of composers; Venice is the first, November 18 and 20. On October 30, two major singing groups will perform: The Canterbury Choral Society will present

Mahler's formidable Eighth Symphony at Avery Fisher, using an expanded adult chorus and a youth chorus from city schools, and at Carnegie Hall the New York Choral Society will offer Mozart, Poulenc, Puccini, and more, with soprano June Anderson.

Mezzo-soprano Frederica von Stade and the Emerson String Quartet have joined the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center as resident members. The first programs of the group are October 24, 25, and 26, and will include Handel, Mozart, and Schubert. Chamber Music at the Y opens September 28 with a new version of Stravinsky's L'Histoire du Soldat that includes Bil Baird's Marionettes and John Houseman in the non-singing roles. The Brooklyn Academy of Music, the Metropolitan Museum, the bargain-priced People's Symphony Concerts (at Washington Irving High School), and Merkin Concert Hall will all offer series, and groups such as An die Musik, the Music Project, the Sylvan Wind Quintet, and the St. Luke's Chamber Ensemble will be as busy as always.

RECITAL STAGES

After her summer's absence, Alicia de Larrocha opens the Metropolitan Museum's "Great Pianists" series October 9, playing Poulenc, Schubert, Debussy. She'll be followed by Walter Klien, Murray Perahia, Misha and Cipa Dichter, and Andras Schiff. Pianist Peter Serkin and clarinetist Richard Stoltzman appear at Washington Irving High School October 16 and December 11, respectively, and on November 21, Isaac Stern and Eugene Istomin play Beethoven sonatas in the same hall. Soprano Judith Blegen and baritone Hakan Hagegard open the "Master-Singers at the Y" programs at the 92nd Street Y, followed first by Hermann Prey and then by Shirley Verrett. The three dates: October 5, November 10, and December 7. Flutist Julius Baker and pianist Grant Johannesen give a joint recital at Merkin Concert Hall November 8. And on November 20 at Brooklyn College, the performer is pianist André-Michel Schub.

There will be a flock of new artists on the recital scene: The 92nd Street Y's "Young Concert Artists Series" introduces pianist Dominique Weber November 2, and on October 16, pianist Avo Kouyoumdjian, winner of the first prize at the International Beethoven Piano Competition in May 1981, will make his American debut at Alice Tully Hall.

Something new and something old on the horizon: "The Next Wave: New Masters," at BAM, opens with Steve Reich & Musicians, one program September 30 and October 2, and another October 1 and 3. Each includes the new work for flute and tape commissioned and performed by Ransom Wilson. Meanwhile, looking resolutely to the past, the Ensemble for Early Music will be up to its customary costumed shenanigans at Alice Tully Hall in five programs. October 30, it's "Baroque Buffoonery," and on December 18, "Christemasse in Anglia."

SEPARATE REALITIES

Nineteen thirty-nine. The world trembles on the brink of war. The exotic Orient crawls with spies, smugglers, and Axis agents. Worried that in six years they'll all be wiped out and Hollywood will be left plotless, the U.S. dispatches legendary fauna filcher Frank Buck to trap colorful bad guys and Bring 'Em Back Alive (Tuesdays 8 to 9 P.M., CBS). Bruce Boxleitner stars.

Nineteen thirty-eight. The world trembles on the brink of war. The exotic Orient ... Hey! Didn't we just do this one? Nope, this show is Tales of the Gold Monkey (Wednesdays 8 to 9 P.M., ABC), all about a raffish adventurer-pilot who frequents a raffish bar on a tropic isle teeming with the usual raffish spies, smugglers, Axis agents, raiders of lost arks, and confused TV execs. Footnote: Show's original title was The Brass Monkey. Nothing cheap about ABC.

Will Street Hosp—Oops! Wrong name. Sorry. We meant St. Elsewhere (Tuesdays 10 to 11 P.M., NBC). Don't know why we started to call this original hospital show by that other title. Just because it has a big "ensemble cast," a deteriorating-neighborhood setting, "realistic life-and-death situations," and a chief nurse who sends her troops into the O.R. with the words "Be careful in there" is no reason to think St. Elsewhere might closely resemble any other show.

Embark now on a less than bizarre journey into the world of the expected. Holy men walking on beds of nails again ... Jules Verne's amazingly well-known prophesies of space travel ... the unsurprisingly long life span of the overpublicized denizens of the Russian Caucasus ... in short, all the tedious clichés you got bored with when Ripley's Believe It or Not! (Sundays 7 to 8 P.M., ABC) was confined to the comics pages.

RECYCLED LAUGHS

Old sitcoms never die, they just spin off and haunt us anew. Sally Struthers is back as Archie Bunker's daughter, Gloria (Sundays 8:30 to 9 P.M., CBS), stepping out on her own as a divorced mom working for a crusty but lovable small-town veterinarian (Burgess Meredith), who foams at the mouth before his patients can.

Following the ancient fadage "Recycle a successful gag till it makes 'em gag," that cute mismatched twosome Felix and Oscar is resurrected from TV heaven and—whoops!—they're black! Yes, it's The New Odd Couple (Fridays 8:30 to 9 P.M., ABC). Two sitcom vets, Ron Glass (Barney Miller) and Demond Wilson (Sanford and Son) have been drafted. Coming next year: The Extraterrestrial O.C.

We admit, hesitantly, to a slight weakness for Bob Newhart, who, in the past, has been known to amuse and at the very least is restrained. In Newhart (Mondays 9:30 to 10 P.M., CBS)—clever title—he runs an inn in Vermont.

Cheers (Thursdays 9 to 9:30 P.M., NBC) is the brightest, funniest, freshest comedy to hit the tube this millennium. How do we know? Because NBC's been telling us so 32 times a day. Already, millions of Americans hate Cheers (which has something to do with a bar in Boston), and they haven't even seen it yet.

Speaking of car chases, Knight Rider (Fridays 9 to 10 P.M., NBC) seems to be the ultimate "action/adventure" show—the star's the car! A large, sleek, black custom job (aided by a talking computer) zips around town, zapping toughs, saving victims, and picking up cute little sports cars. Some human or other gets nominal star billing but clearly is of secondary interest.

But, hey, if we're talking automotive quantity, nothing beats Matt Houston (Sundays 8 to 9 P.M., ABC), an action-adventurer who has a separate, featured player just to tend his fleet of cars. Matt's a Texas millionaire who lives on a Texas-size ranch—only, surprise, it's in L.A.!

The conflict escalates with The Day After, an amusing little drama about the "effects of a nuclear attack on an American city." And if you think that's thinking the unthinkable, ABC has a Pac-Man special.

CBS waxes historical with Robert Kennedy and His Times, Bruce Catton's The Blue and the Gray, and, from the annals of pugilism, Dempsey. Gregory Peck plays Lincoln in one, or possibly all, of the preceding. ... Eddie Rabbitt gets his

Art

THE VATICAN COLLECTIONS

More than 200 masterworks from the halls of the popes are coming to the Metropolitan.

THE BIG SHOW ARRIVING AT THE Metropolitan Museum of Art this winter packs one heaven of a wallop. As if Caravaggio, Leonardo, Poussin, Veronese, Fra Angelico, Perugino, and Raphael couldn't provide enough good art for one exhibition, there are contributions by such modern masters as Matisse and Rouault, a score of priceless antiquities, medieval and Renaissance paintings on panels, angelic frescoes, mosaics, Etruscan bronzes, classical Greek and Roman marbles (including the famed Apollo Belvedere and the Belvedere torso), and such extras as a terracotta Charity draped with three suckling children, crafted by Bernini for the tomb of Urban VIII. It's all part of the massive "Vatican Collections: The Papacy and Art."

The original justification for this sublime profusion was outlined by Pope Nicholas V in the fifteenth century as he began the construction campaign that would conclude 126 years later in the Baroque magnificence of the new St. Peter's. It was his hope, he announced, that "the weakness of faith in some people would find support in the grandeur of the work." A cynic might argue that some people's faith must have been weak indeed to have occasioned such exalted collecting. For 1,500 years the popes indulged their passion for glorious things—even to the point of ordering great church-owned works back to St. Peter's for the Holy Father's private delectation. As a result, the Vatican today presides over an incomparable aesthetic and spiritual resource. And for the first time in its history, it is sending much of that wealth beyond its storied walls.

Few exhibitions this season can expect to be quite so blessed. Over 200 works are coming from the treasury, the Apostolic Palaces, the library, the half-dozen-plus museums within the Vatican, the Belvedere Courtyard (where the Apollo usually reigns)—a flood that may surprise those who think of the Vatican as mostly the Sistine Chapel ceiling, Michelangelo's dome, and the painting galleries of the Pinacoteca. Organizing these holdings is a job fraught with the perils of protocol. At the Metropolitan, the job is being handled by the director himself, Philippe de Montebello, with Olga Raggio, chairman of the Department of European Sculpture and Decorative Arts, and Margaret Frazer, curator of medieval art.

"The Vatican Collections" is not your average blockbuster. The final list of artworks includes plenty of Renaissance and Baroque masterpieces: Caravaggio's Deposition of Christ; Leonardo's St. Jerome, praying in a wilderness, so ephemeral that he seems already to have been lifted beyond the physical plane; Raphael's The Miraculous Draught of Fishes, one of ten tapestries on the lives of Peter and Paul made for the Sistine Chapel. Yet there are also singular—and singularly lovely—works from other eras: a Roman statue of the Good Shepherd, a Byzantine ivory triptych, a black granite torso from one of Egypt's last dynasties.

Raggio explains that the emphasis is not on the history of art as collected by the popes but on the history of St. Peter's—and its mission—as portrayed in its art. Objects are clumped together in five sections that refer to five separate architectural milestones in the church's development—architecture, of course, being the physical manifestation of the church's metaphoric body. The first section encompasses the millennium embraced by the old St. Peter's, the great basilica (as high as Notre Dame) built after Constantine began to patronize Christianity, in the fourth century.

The old basilica had been sacked by just about everyone from barbaric Saracens to the Normans, so only a few precious frescoes and mosaics remain to fill this section. Not so the next section, which covers the Renaissance and the Baroque, and roughly coincides with the erection of the new St. Peter's. Expect all the glories here that high patronage could generate.

By the eighteenth century, however, tastes had changed. St. Peter's was finished, and the urge to commission masterpieces had waned. Besides, the preservation of the past had begun to assume some urgency. (Bernini, a century earlier, had futilely argued a similar point.) Napoleon is usually credited with establishing the first museum (the Louvre), but the Vatican was actually ahead of him, with its three eighteenth-century depositories: the Museo Sacro (for sacred works of art), the Pio-Clementino (for Roman antiquities then being excavated), and the Pinacoteca.

In the nineteenth century (represented in the fourth section), archaeologists continued to dig up treasures—Etruscan and Greek vases, Roman portraits, Greek and Roman statues—that were then placed in the new Gregorian Egyptian, Etruscan, and Pagan, and Pio-Christian Museums. The fifth section covers the twentieth century, when the collections expanded again as the church's roving emissaries sent African, Oceanic, and pre-Columbian works back to the new Missionary and Ethnological Museum. And in 1973 Pope Paul VI created the Collection of Modern Religious Art, which includes Matisse's stained-glass studies for the windows in the Chapel of the Rosary at Venice.

While the show doesn't open until February, the time to think about it is now. Tickets, a mere 700,000 of them, go on sale October 15, through Ticketron and Teletron. Although you must enter only during the half-hour you request, you can stay as long as you like, absorbing the grandeur of (and maybe renewing faith through) the earthly magnificence of the popes' collections.

MUSEUMS

Two salutes to the art of Scandinavia open at the Brooklyn Museum November 10. "Northern Light: Realism and Symbolism in Scandinavian Painting 1880-1910" (through January 9) brings together 94 landscapes, interiors, and figures; best known among the artists is Norway's Edvard Munch. A folk hero in his native Sweden, Carl Larsson has become known here through his studies of home and family, notably his children. His first American show (November 10 through January 30) is of works done between 1890 and 1914.

A century of influential design is documented in "Scandinavian Modern: 1880-1980," at the Cooper-Hewitt September 14 through January 2. There are over 300 masterworks in glass, furniture, ceramics, metal, and textiles, some of them executed for Royal Copenhagen, Marimekko, and Georg Jensen.

The Museum of American Folk Art will mark the Scandinavian invasion in its own way, with "A Prairie Vision: The Paintings of Olof Krans," September 29 through January 2. The narrative pictures by this Swedish-American folk artist depict the life of Bishop Hill, Illinois, in the mid-1800s, when the Utopian religious community flourished.

Fifteenth-Century Art of the Netherlands," through November 7, includes a sampling of the Morgan Library's specialties: manuscripts and book arts. The Hours of Catherine of Cleves, rare editions of Ovid and Boccaccio, block books, books printed before 1500, illuminated manuscripts—almost all are from the library's attic. "Icelandic Sagas, Eddas, and Art" will allow us to see for the first time here the illuminated manuscripts and early printings of Iceland (September 16 through November 14).

The National Academy of Design has brought together 200 graphic works for "Poetry and Ecology in Scandinavian Printmaking," September 14 through October 10—woodcuts, silk screens, linocuts, and etchings from the five countries. Honoring its founding president, the inventor-artist Samuel F. B. Morse, the academy complements the Grey Art Gallery show (see "Galleries," page 57) with a three-part exhibit of its own (September 21 through November 18).

Rarities at the Morgan.

From November 18 through March 13, the Guggenheim will be host to a selection from the twentieth-century-art collection of the late Peggy Guggenheim, which is usually housed in her Venetian palazzo. per by Delaunay, Ernst, Léger, Dali, Miró, Still, and more. "Northern Visions," September 14 through November 7, spotlights more art from Scandinavia—paintings by the Danish artist Asger Jorn, the Swede Oyvind Falström, and a selection of works by younger artists.

Before the crowds line up for its February Vatican show (page 50), the Metropolitan will open another dazzler. Nearly 200 Greek artworks will be on view in "The Search for Alexander," October 27 through January 3. Dating from 400 to 200 B.C., these will be supplemented by several pieces from the Met's extensive stores, and they'll include gold, bronze, and mosaics, and much more. Opening November 23: the new installation of the living room from the Francis Little House, in Wayzata, Minnesota, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright.

The expansion program continues apace at the Museum of Modern Art, but amid the changes, MOMA is offering a busy fall schedule. Some 100 works by sculptor-painter Louise Bourgeois range from canvases and pole-like wood figures of the 1940s to idiosyncratic sculpture abstractions of the 60s and 70s. The show runs from November 6 through February 8, 1983. Prints and drawings by Frank Stella, 33 in all, will be on view from November 18 through January 11.

A current trend among craftsmen is evident in "Pattern: An Exhibition of the Decorated Surface." At the American Craft Museum II October 15 through December 30, the 125 works by 50 artists will include jewelry, paper, wall hangings, tableware, and clothing.

Marvel at a gold Peruvian calendar dated A.D. 900, or probe the meaning of a mysterious group of "moonposts." "Stargods of the Ancient Americas" examines the astronomical imagery and practices of Indians from Tierra del Fuego to the Arctic. At the American Museum of Natural History from December 3 through March 27.

The Whitney's season opens with a comprehensive show of Milton Avery's work, from the figurative paintings of the early 1930s to the landscapes of his last years, in the mid-1960s (September 16 through December 5). Later one-man shows: Joel Shapiro, October 21 through January 2, sculptures and drawings; Jasper Johns, November 10 through January 9, the Savarin Monotypes, based on Johns's famous coffee-can poster.

Two shows at the Jewish Museum explore the history, art, and culture of diverse groups of European Jews. In "The Jews in the Age of Rembrandt," through December 5, Dutch masters are represented by etchings, engravings, mezzotints, and maps. "A Tale of Two Cities: Jewish Life in Frankfurt and Istanbul, 1750-1870," September 20 through the winter, is a display of ceremonial objects, textiles, books, and paintings of the Ashkenazi Jews in Germany and the Sephardim of the East.

The international influence of a great couturier is given the glamour treatment in "The House of Worth: The Gilded Age, 1860-1918," opening October 19 at the Museum of the City of New York. From hoopskirted ball gowns to the simpler designs of the early 1900s, the fashions and accessories are all by Worth—and breathtakingly lavish.

One of the world's great private collections, belonging to Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, can be seen at the Asia Society Gallery from October 7 through January 2. "Arts of the Islamic Book" includes 90 pieces dating from the ninth through the nineteenth century. The early Koran pages, miniature paintings, and calligraphy are from assorted Islamic nations.

lustrations, leftist political posters, and commercial art made him one of the most recognizable artists of the century. "Rockwell Kent: A Centennial Tribute," at the New York Public Library's 42nd Street branch from September 24 through November, covers the graphic artist's long career.

GALLERIES

The sculpture of Pi-casso, from his early modeled works to the Cubist constructions, will be seen in an unusually comprehensive show at Pace (32 East 57th Street), September 16 through October 23. Among the pieces are female figures from the fifties made of cut, folded, and painted sheet metal, and the famous baboon mother with her young, from the MOMA collection, cast from found objects that include toy automobiles.

Samuel F. B. Morse painted only from 1810 to 1837, giving up his fascination with the "grand style" of European history painting when the American art world rejected his ideas. Generations have remembered him chiefly for the telegraph and the Morse code. But he was also an important artist. And last month his Gallery of the Louvre was purchased for $3.25 million—a record for an American painting. From September 14 through October 23, N.Y.U.'s Grey Art Gallery (33 Washington Place) is undertaking a "complete examination" of Morse's long-underrated painting career; the works will include, in addition to the pricey Gallery, his Dying Hercules.

Samuel F. B. Morse's Gallery of the Louvre, which sold for $3.25 million.

The sumptuous, color-drenched canvases of Louisa Chase evoke the mysteries of nature: A storm is seen as purple skies and black-patterned clouds, with a disembodied hand catching the rain. Sunsets ignite the stratosphere, while tree limbs take on an eerie anthropomorphic character. This artist's work was last seen in the Whitney Biennial; these recent paintings will be at Miller (724 Fifth Avenue, near 57th Street) through October 2.

In the virile allegories of Francesco Clemente, the massive, muscular painted figures convey a sense of herculean power that is often overshadowed by their pensive faces and questioning gazes. Expressive blobs of pigment enliven the backgrounds of the huge canvases, in which Clemente humanizes such qualities as "perseverance" and "strength." At Sperone Westwater Fischer (142 Greene Street) October 23 through November 16.

Shadowy figures—jogging, walking, or furtively making their way through New York streets—have taken over Tatistcheff (38 East 57th Street) through September 30. The invention of William Clutz, they appear in his pastels as anonymous passersby in an environment of sharp chiaroscuro contrasts, where the trees along Riverside Drive can become black nets against which foliage, sky, and street flicker with nervous urban energy.

John Ferren mixes hard-edge geometric configurations with organic forms in the abstractions to be shown at Sachs (29 West 57th Street) October 30 through November 24. In these works, most of them done during the thirties, he uses colors both nuanced and intensely saturated.

It had to happen someday: The flatfoot's flatfoot, Dick Tracy, has made it to Madison Avenue. On his fiftieth anniversary, Graham is honoring cartoonist Chester Gould, the man behind those crime-busting plots, with his first one-man show (1014 Madison Avenue, near 78th Street), September 14 through October 9. Gould's stark, flat black areas and solid forms evoke a feeling of intense drama peppered with brutality and quite a bit of humor, especially in the well-known names of Tracy's supporting cast. the history of American comic art.

The Russian conceptual artists Komar and Melamid, who now work in New York, have taken the classical tradition of socialist realism and twisted its dire seriousness for their own satirical purposes. In one of the works at Feldman (31 Mercer Street) September 25 through October 30, Stalin absurdly confronts the Muses, who are garbed in Grecian chitons and sandals. Lenin, Marx, and Engels are other ghosts haunting these anachronistic scenes, rendered in a classical style that recalls works of the seventeenth century.

Every major phase in the art of the idiosyncratic colorist Morris Louis is documented at Emmerich (41 East 57th Street) through October 2. Sensuous washes of translucent color mark the wall-size "Veils," "Florals," "Unfurleds," and "Stripes"—all recurring subjects of the artist over the course of his career.

America's favorite primitive, "Grandma" Anna Mary Robertson Moses is "The Artist Behind the Myth," at Galerie St. Etienne (24 West 57th Street) November 16 through January 8. The familiar densely populated interiors and tiny villages, the charmed peace of such domestic pursuits as harvesting and quilting, are alive again in over 50 works from museums and private collections. Together with recently discovered preliminary drawings, they allow an in-depth art-historical examination, one of the first of its kind given a folk artist.

Judy Pfaff assembles her kaleidoscopic environments on location, and January 8 to 29 she will have one of her bizarre site-specific installations at Holly Solomon (392 West Broadway). The works are known for the brightly painted tree limbs, suspended wire clusters, and vibrantly streaked walls that create an enchanted-three-dimensional - "forest" abstraction.

The boisterous graffiti of Lee Quinones will be at Gladstone (41 West 57th Street) October 12 through November 6. Painted constructions and paintings on canvas will complement a wall that fairly pulses with Quinones's vibrating colors. Note the giant panther's head, painted on a burlap-like canvas: Its eyes glow, its nose is perceptibly moist, its aura seems both mysterious and gentle.

Barbara Roux has created a "garden of memories" in "Incidents in a Garden," at Central Hall Artists (386 West Broadway) September 14 through October 3. Live hedges and vines cradle discreetly altered photographs and bits of print. Human growth and decay are the themes behind these images of the metamorphosed garden of the artist's childhood.

Paul Sarkisian adeptly deceives the viewer with his acrylics and glitter on linen at Hoffman (429 West Broadway) October 11 through November 12. In these large trompe l'oeil works, the artist meticulously paints newspapers, envelopes, strips of cardboard, colorful scraps of paper, and assembles them against a background of intense color. Apparently elements of collage, they reveal themselves on closer investigation to be integral parts of the painted surface.

A decade—the sixties—in the work of performance artist Carolee Schneemann is in the spotlight at Hutchinson (138 Greene Street) through October 2. Paintings, constructions, collages, boxes, and kinetic works are actually complex inquiries into her own emotions, often done in a physically aggressive manner. Motors, electric lights, and moving armatures enlarge the vocabulary of her tributes to a germinating feminism.

Concurrent with the retrospective at the Jewish Museum, a grouping of new canvases by Max Weber will be at Forum (1018 Madison Avenue, at 79th Street) October 7 through November 4. Highlighting the lyrical, almost playful figures of the forties, the show also includes selections from Weber's early work. HOLLY PINTO

LAURA DEAN AND MICHAEL GRAVES

A minimalist choreographer and controversial architect collaborate on a Joffrey original.

THE MINIMALIST DANCES THAT Laura Dean began to make more than a decade ago were so unadorned that they contained fewer than half a dozen different steps. Décor was the farthest thing from the choreographer's mind; she wasn't even using music yet. But when the Joffrey Ballet unveils her latest work, on December 30 at the City Center, the set and costumes should attract almost as much attention as Dean's movement and score: They are being designed by the controversial architect Michael Graves.

Graves is perhaps the most celebrated member of a current school that uses whimsy and color to contradict the austere, long-revered Bauhaus aesthetic. His recently completed office building for Portland, Oregon, includes references to historical ornament, painted in offbeat pastels. Graves's claim that "all good architecture is partly theater" might seem to qualify him perfectly for stage collaboration. But at first he worried, with reason, that Dean's work might be too abstract to mesh with his.

Typically, a Dean dance employs about eight performers in loose, look-alike clothes. They cut geometric designs in space by the simplest means—springy pacing with rhythmically accented footfalls, jumping, and jiggling. And they spin for long stretches like meditative dervishes, their arms tracing parabolas around themselves. The pulse—voiced by Dean's own percussive music—is steady, the energy is driving, the mood is hypnotic, even ecstatic. The material is repeated, with subtle variations, until the viewer not only loses count but relinquishes all grasp of real time.

Soft-spoken and exquisitely groomed, the 37-year-old Dean doesn't look like an artist with radical ideas. And, indeed, her beginnings were conventional. Born and raised on Staten Island, she took lessons in piano, ballet, and modern dance. After high school she spent seven "confusing" months in Paul Taylor's troupe and two years studying with Merce Cunningham, where she discovered that "energy—not steps, not position—was at the heart of dancing."

Finally, Dean forced herself to sit for hours at a time in a bare studio until she could find a way of moving that was authentically her own. In desperation she began to pace straight lines, then to circle, then to spin. "It felt like a revelation," Dean declares. The compositions she presented in the early seventies were no more than extended displays of this elemental stuff, but their effect was cleansing and somehow beguiling.

With nothing left to subtract, Dean inevitably had to add. Little by little, the vocabulary of her works expanded, the matrices became more intricate, the number of dancers grew.

Music was introduced, both instrumental and dancers vocalizing; the performers' stark-white pajama uniforms acquired not only color but sparkle. Inching from conceptual art toward scintillating theater, Dean was eligible for adoption by the Establishment.

In 1979, Robert Joffrey invited her to make a piece for his company. "When Mr. Joffrey took me on," says Dean, "I warned him that people sometimes walk out on my work. He said"—she imitates Joffrey's flat tone and twinkling eye—"That's okay."

Maybe a handful of discontents stalked out of the City Center at the 1980 premiere of Night, but everyone else stayed to cheer. Joffrey's response was to ask Dean for two more dance-and-music works. The upcoming ballet will explore partnering. Until now, Dean's choreography has planted the individual dancer on his or her own two feet, maintaining the single figure as a discrete, even heroic, unit. "But," Dean says, "we all need support at some time or other. And a physical dialogue between a man and a woman presupposes emotional content. I'm interested in that."

The ballet is still in development and as yet has no title. It does, however, have a finished 28-minute score—for flute, tambourine, harmonium, and drums. The musical inspiration is appropriately unusual: the Greek Eleusinian mysteries. Incorporating dance and song, these rites began as a harvest festival depicting the self-renewing cycle of the seasons, and grew to include bacchanals. "You might say," Dean proposes, "that my new piece is a celebration of being alive."

It may have been the new humanism in Dean's work that snared Graves, who feels that architecture must respond to human forms. The collaborators have found themselves compatible also in their fascination with myth and ritual, and in a habit of mind that lends all art and history a life in the present moment. "I can't imagine anyone more simpatico," Graves says of Dean.

The architect is already making preliminary drawings for the environment that will house Dean's dance. A backdrop, sidepieces, and some freestanding objects—archetypal renderings of, perhaps, a stool, a table—will suggest the position of the figure in space. The costumes, made from fabric of Graves's own design, will, he says, evoke the antique inspiration without being "Isadora Duncan Greek." The palette is likely to be familiar. "I wouldn't want to disappoint Laura," Graves says. "She loves those faded pastels."

Graves is still apprehensive about working in uncharted territory. His own field has awarded him a coveted assignment—designing the extension of the Whitney Museum. "But in the dance world," he notes, "I'll simply be the one who helped or hindered Laura Dean."

Come and meet the dancing feet of the New York City Ballet (four premieres) and three international groups (in Brooklyn). Help the Alvin Ailey and José Limón companies celebrate milestone anniversaries. See, you won't even miss A.B.T.

MASTERS OF THE DANCE

The good news of the season is that City Center was completely renovated this summer. It reopens October 6 with the Nikolais Dance Theatre, just back from a triumphant European tour. It will be here through the twenty-fourth with two New York premieres, Pond and The Mechanical Organ II, plus a revival of its Crossfade and the regular repertory. The bad news is that the American Ballet Theatre won't be in New York at all until May 2, 1983.

We can't tell you much yet about the great New York City Ballet, but there will be four premieres, one with music by Darius Milhaud and one with Mendelssohn's. Among the revivals scheduled are A Midsummer Night's Dream, Coppélia, Jerome Robbins's Mother Goose, and Tzigane. The season is from November 16 through February 20. And that perennial holiday favorite, The Nutcracker, plays from December 2 through January 2.

The Joffrey Ballet has lots of nice things scheduled for its first trip back to City Center. For December 22 to 26 it has revived John Cranko's Taming of the Shrew. Then, on December 28, the repertory starts. There's a new Gerald Arpino, unnamed as yet, a Laura Dean work (with sets and costumes by Michael Graves), and many revivals—Nijinsky's L'Après-Midi d'un Faun, Ashton's Illuminations, Cranko's Pineapple Poll, and Joffrey's own Pas des Déesses, just to mention a few.

The Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater is coming to City Center December 1 through 19. The company will begin celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary with a fund-raising benefit on December 2. Peter Allen will perform in conjunction with the dancers in a work choreographed by Louis Johnson.

FROM CHELSEA AND BEYOND

The Brooklyn Academy of Music offers major European dance companies in its Ballet International series. The Norwegian National Ballet, from October 12 through 17, presents The Tempest, with choreography by Glen Tetley and a score by Arne Nordheim. The Cullberg Ballet Company, from Sweden, is scheduled for November 9 through 14, with a production of Birgit Cullberg's Miss Julie and Mats Ek's Soweto - South Africa. December 1 through 12 brings us the Dutch National Ballet, with two programs of works by Rudi van Dantzig, Hans van Manen, and Toer van Schayk.

The Brooklyn Center for the Performing Arts, at Brooklyn College, is presenting Ballet Rambert, a British company whose program will include Richard Alston's Rite of Spring. On October 23 and 24, B.C.B.C. brings us the exotic Gran Folklorico de Mexico, and November 27 and 28, the National Ballet of Zagreb.

The José Limón Dance Company celebrates its thirty-fifth anniversary December 1 through 19 at the Joyce Theater. The company will perform Missa Brevis, The Emperor Jones, and Carlotta. RUTH GILBERT

KING CREOLE AND THE COCONUTS

August Darnell and his slinky entourage, next at the Ritz, are simply won-der-ful.

AT FIRST, WHAT YOU SEE IN KID Creole and the Coconuts' stage act is confusing. The front man, zoot-suited August Darnell, is elegant and sleek. But sidekick vibes player Andy Hernandez is playing Caliban to his Ariel. And those three Coconuts (led by Darnell's wife, Adriana Kaegi) dancing to the hot music of the thirteen-piece band are in the tradition of countless rock-group choruses, but they're so much more . . . independent. And there are more disjunctions still—the men in elegant tropical haberdashery next to women in jungle-print bikinis, the careful and disciplined versus the outrageous. It shouldn't work, but it does, beautifully, in a way that's quintessentially New York.

It's an odd thing, then, that August Darnell isn't better known here in his native city. True, his band-cum-traveling show of the last three years, Kid Creole and the Coconuts, has a following in places like the Ritz, where it appears regularly and where it will be again on September 23. And Darnell has written songs for such popular artists as the disco group Machine and Dr. Buzzard's Original Savannah Band. A gold record for the Savannah Band's first album, recorded in 1976, which includes the big hit "Cherchez la Femme," hangs on Darnell's wall at home, but so far a comparable-size success has not followed. The single "I'm a Wonderful Thing, Baby," from his album Wise Guy, though a hit in England, didn't even make the American pop charts.

Yet Kid Creole and the Coconuts is among the most sophisticated and special acts around. Producer, performer, and songwriter Darnell is also a conceptualist of a kind, and there's a lot of imaginative theatricality going on, a lot of play. Kid Creole himself is a stage character dreamed up and acted out by Darnell. All of which mightn't mean a lot if it weren't accompanied by good music. Fortunately, the music is exceptional.

Darnell, slight and neat at 32, understates his skills, seeing himself more as a wordsmith than a melodist. "It's only now that I'm finally mastering the craft of songwriting," Darnell says. "Everything prior to 'Annie, I'm Not Your Daddy' was me saying 'Hey! I can write songs!'" "Annie," from Wise Guy, is a lovely, springy tune, richly filled out by a steel-drum-like synthesizer and a "wuffling" trombone. Nevertheless, Darnell seems to give a lot of the credit for Kid Creole's survival to simple good fortune.

In this he is quite unlike his alter ego, for Kid Creole, a hipster's dream of suavity, is a flamboyant creation—a seafaring adventurer, charming but promiscuous, self-satisfied, and boastful. "You should hate him," Darnell points out, "but you don't—and I love that, that people love him even though he's obnoxious."

If the Kid's perverse appeal has gone relatively unnoticed in America (although the critics have shown themselves susceptible to it), it is making its mark elsewhere. Wise Guy has sold half a million copies in England—triple the number sold here—and "I'm a Wonderful Thing, Baby," a delicious exercise in braggadocio, reached No. 3 on the British charts. The music is explanation enough. So many opposites are united in it: The stance is filled with warmth but is ironic and witty; the songs tell stories about islands and voyages, but they're irrepressibly urban; and the beat seems to come from everywhere, blending dance rhythms with rock with Latin with funk with Caribbean. In gray London, it must seem more exotic and tropical than it does in New York; it's also reminiscent of reggae, a Jamaican form with a limited audience in the United States that has been popular in England for years.

Then, too, British popular music often shows more social awareness than its American counterpart, and the significance of Darnell's deliberately poly-musical, polyracial, polysexual style is probably more readily understood over there. "I do try to achieve entertainment for entertainment's sake," Darnell allows. "The act is a Busby Berkeley nightclub setup, not didactic—but I also want the audience to come away with something extra." Darnell combines his ideals with a canny eye on his audience. "Kids love us," he observes, "not because of any social message, but because of the spectacle of the guy in the zoot suit doing some great dancing, surrounded by beautiful, scantily dressed women. An old man once told me he loved the Coconuts because they reminded him of the Andrews Sisters—and that was a good feeling! It was what I'd always wanted—music for everyone."

The band uses lots of props, but they're mainly small, portable ones, costume details—ski goggles worn during a song about a ski instructor. The simple touch of giving everyone in the band a music stand (even though most of the musicians play from memory) suggests the stylishness of the big-band era.

Kid Creole will definitely be around for a while, but Darnell has his eye on other projects (among them, a full-scale theatrical production for Joseph Papp). He is already somewhat bemused by the Creole phenomenon. "The fans react to Kid Creole, not to August Darnell. August Darnell is much more conservative than people would like to think. Maybe, in five years or so, the Kid may drown off one of those islands he's always sailing around."

Later this month, at the Ritz, however, Kid Creole will continue to brag that he's a wonderful thing. And the Coconuts will echo, "Won-der-ful." DAVID FRANKEL

THE JAZZ PLAYERS

It's great to hear a big jazz band at Roseland. Music people stand right up close to the stage, and behind them dance people swing. Now, starting October 16, the great old ballroom is having a big-band series. First up: Harry James. Crowds have rioted over Harry James. And the season wouldn't be complete without Count Basie, later in the year.

Keith Jarrett's music is bewilderingly multifaceted. Capable of wild excesses, Jarrett can also be lyrically simple, and the gospel and folk echoes that punctuate his jazz improvisations make him more accessible than some other acoustic-piano virtuosos. Avery Fisher Hall, November 26.

performers who may seem utterly unpolished. Only in rock could a singer like Joe Cocker, with his hoarse, rasping voice, find a home—and be given the chance to prove that he too is something of a virtuoso. The Ritz, September 16 and 17.

Roseland is having an adventurous fall. Before the big bands comes Public Image Ltd., on September 29. Most notorious band member: John Lydon, né Johnny Rotten, whose first band, the Sex Pistols, almost single-handedly created punk rock several years back. That music was savage and nihilistic; this music is more disciplined (there was nowhere to go but up), and ultimately more chilling.

Music seldom comes across well in stadiums, but the Who proved that the sound of four people bashing about as loudly as possible could be invested with a demanding intelligence, and even spirituality. The Who is among rock's greatest. Shea Stadium, October 12 and 13.

JUST FOLKS

Carnegie Hall will be having a sort of unplanned folk festival this fall. First, on November 5, is David Grisman, who plays a lovely bluegrass-style music with a breath of jazz. Don McLean, on November 24, is followed on November 27 by Pete Seeger; the air around Seeger is hardening into myth, as it did with Woody Guthrie. And on December 10 and 11: Judy Collins, her voice as clear and pure as ever. Then Peter, Paul and Mary, who'll be accompanied by the New York Choral Society.

Fresh from sharing an Oscar for his contribution to the theme song for Arthur, Peter Allen has a week at Radio City Music Hall beginning September 24. Allen has always put on a tremendously stylish show, and with the Rockettes to help, it should be quite an event.

Linda Ronstadt will also be having a week at Radio City Music Hall starting November 4. This is Ronstadt's first outing since her performance in The Pirates of Penzance here, two years ago, which may have been frowned upon by devotees of D'Oyly Carte but endeared itself to almost everyone else.

FOOD FOR THE SOUL

A hot night is promised on October 2 at the Palladium, when James Brown is paired with Wilson Pickett. It's hard to believe that Brown is over 50 now, and if he isn't burning up as much energy onstage as in the past, no one who's seen any of his recent shows is letting on. Pickett too is still powerful enough in performance to make the fact that "In the Midnight Hour" was recorded seventeen years ago seem distinctly disorienting.

Two groups from the sixties heyday of Motown will be around this fall, both of them at the Westbury Music Fair. Gladys Knight and the Pips, there for four days starting September 30, were the first to record the Motown classic "I Heard It Through the Grapevine," beating Marvin Gaye to the punch. And for years the Temptations were simply the black vocal group, with hits ranging from the gorgeous "My Girl" to the spacy, discomfiting "Papa Was a Rolling Stone." Their performances are on October 29 and 30.

As always, the cabaret scene is lively this fall. Running through the season at Michael's Pub, we get Blossom Dearie, Margaret Whiting (her father wrote "The Good Ship Lollipop"), Jonathan Schwartz, Fran Warren, and Dick Hyman, who orchestrated Sugar Babies. . . The King Cole Room, in the St. Regis Sheraton, is opening on September 20 with a new show by Steve Allen and starring . . . Steve Allen. . . Marian McPartland is playing, through early fall, at the Cafe Carlyle, and Bobby Short still takes over for Christmas (starting October 29); in blues, octogenarian Alberta Hunter still cooks at the Cookery (through October 15) and septuagenarian Big Joe Turner is back at Tramps for a long stay. Sylvia Syms has no permanent niche, but the season wouldn't be complete without her; fortunately, she's at Marty's for two weeks starting November 1.

EXCERPTS

A sampling from the new works of some of the bigger names on the publishers' fall lists.

ONCE A WEEK, FOR A COUPLE OF HOURS, I read to a man named Norman, who is blind. In the year I've been doing it, he and I have sort of become friends. He usually greets me with something like "So what's new with your life?"

He sits behind his desk and I sit beside it, in a chair. This is the way a teacher and pupil should sit, and I've fallen into the pattern of letting him ask.

He gets up to open the window. It's always too hot in his little office. His movements are exaggerated, like a bird's: the quickly cocked head, the way he grips the edge of his desk when he's bored. He grips the edge, releases his hold, grabs again, like a parrot shifting on its bar. Norman has never seen a bird. He has an eight-year-old daughter, who likes to describe things to him, although she is a prankster and sometimes deliberately lies, he has told me. He buys her things from the joke shop on the corner of the street where he works. He takes home little pills that will make drinks bubble over, buzzers to conceal in the palm of your hand, little black plastic flies to freeze in ice cubes, rubber eyeglass rims attached to a fat nose and a bushy mustache. "Daddy, now I'm wearing my big nose," she says. "Daddy, I put a black fly in your ice cube, so spit it out if it sinks in your drink, all right?" My daughter and I have gone to two dinners at their house. My daughter thinks that his daughter is a little weird. The last time we visited, when Norman was washing dishes, his wife showed me the hallway she had just wallpapered. It took her forever to decide on the wallpaper, she told me. We stood there, dwarfed by wallpaper imprinted with the trunks of shiny silver trees that her husband would never see.

What's new with me? My divorce is final.

ANN BEATTIE

From THE BURNING HOUSE. Random House; 256 pages; $12.95; October.

NOW HE HAD TWO WORRIES, HIS general and his girl, but when the bombardment ceased, and the German fighters withdrew, Dieter Kolff hurried not to the Koenig farm but to the island, to see what had happened to General Breutzel. Wherever he went, guards stopped him, for the destruction was massive and buildings of all kinds were afire. Commandeering a guard with a motorcycle, Dieter abandoned his own vehicle and rode pillion to the scientists' quarters.

The first set of flares had overshot their mark, not landing on the manufacturing and research facilities, but on the living quarters of the scientists. The monitor aloft had warned each incoming flight of the imprecision, but the target was so tempting and the flares so distinct that whole sticks of bombs had struck the area.

Dieter, approaching from the north, could see the devastation, the gaping, burned sections, and he realized that had he not gone to visit Liesl, he would now be dead. But what of General Breutzel?

"Over there!" Dieter yelled into the ear of the driver, but the cyclist said, "Not me." So Dieter dismounted and ran toward the shattered buildings. He did not have to enter, for on the lawn outside the dormitories were laid the thirty-one bodies, and toward the middle of the row, calm and kindly even in death, lay General Eugen Breutzel, whom the Nazis had never trusted but on whom they had been forced to depend.

When no one was looking, and for reasons of secrecy which he could have explained to no one, not even to himself, Dieter waited till all the others were preoccupied with the devastation caused by the raid, then moved to the concrete vault in which the general's plans for the A-10 were kept. These work sheets, usually the result of long consultations among Von Braun, the general and Kolff, were safe. Allowing no one to see him, he removed them, carrying them to his own wrecked quarters, where he set fire to a few inconsequential ones, snuffed out the flames, and intermingled the charred pages with a few of his own diagrams. At that moment he had no clear idea why he was taking such precaution; it was instinctive and had something to do with the rumors that Von Braun might soon be arrested again by Himmler's men.

Two nights later, at three o'clock in the morning of 27 October, Dieter Kolff sat upright in bed, awakened by an idea which flashed through his canny mind like a thunderous explosion of lightning: Chickens! That's what will save me—chickens!

BRASSAI

SCAR KOKOSCHKA:
"How could I bring
[my affair with Alma Mahler] to an end, this hellish situation that was paralyzing me?
Suddenly, in 1917, I had an idea..."

"The doll?"

"You've guessed it! I wanted to own a life-size replica of Alma! I sought out the best female artisan I could find, I saw to it that she was provided with all Alma's photographs and measurements so that she could create the doll I had in mind. I waited anxiously for it to be delivered. In order to dress it with an elegance equal to Alma's, I bought dresses and lingerie from the best Parisian houses. In those days I had an elderly butler working for me. The butler got so excited at the thought of setting eyes on this utterly incredible creature that on the day the trunk arrived and the two porters carefully began to unpack the doll, he had a stroke. As for me, I was enraptured! It was just as beautiful as Alma, even though its breasts and hips were stuffed with sawdust.

"Finally, after I had drawn it and painted it over and over again, I decided to do away with it. It had managed to cure me completely of my passion. So I gave a big party. When dawn broke I beheaded the doll out in the garden and broke a bottle of red wine over its head. The next day, a police patrol happened to glance through the gates, and seeing what was apparently the body of a naked woman covered with blood, they burst into the house suspecting some crime of passion. And for that matter, that's what it was... because on that night I had killed Alma..."

"What happened to her?"

"She had other love affairs, but I'm convinced she never forgot me."

CHANGE PARTNERS," Russ David says ominously. The bandleader's words are a kind of fatality, a soft force as threatening to mood as a train conductor's "All aboard."

"Damn," George says, and Louise smiles. Somehow she takes the measure of the music, absorbs its simplifications and impulses, the secret energies of the song, and takes them into her body, changing not partners but patterns, by some subtle shift of weight signaling George to follow, to come with her, and it's as if they're hiding in the melody.

"You just won't listen, will you?" Russ David says sadly.

"Because you're too young," he says while the band plays on. "Because you think you know it all, and you don't know anything. My God," he says, "just look at the slave bracelets and school rings and fraternity pins twinkling in here. You'd think it was the midsummer night's sky, another solar system. Those are the fairy lights of crush and puppy love. You think you know what it leads to. You don't. You're in the dark about this stuff. Is it vine-covered cottage in your guts? It's the projects. Is it moon and June? It's a high of thirty, a low of twelve.

"Sometimes I think maybe me and the guys are in the wrong business. We're ruining lives here, confusing you with bad signals. Most bandleaders tell you you're playing for keeps. Heck, it's what the songs themselves say. That every love's true, till the end of time guaranteed. You can keep track of it on the 18-karat gold watch, the 17-jewel movement. But figure it out. Stop to consider. How could it be? You're young. Get some experience under your belt. Don't be so serious, play the field, there's other fish in the sea. Have some fun, please.

"Change partners!"

*S*O FATHER PREsented himself at the Vienna Academy of Fine Arts with a portfolio of pictures. He was told to come back in two weeks, at which time they would tell him whether they would take him in or not.

So he came back in two weeks, and a professor handed him back his portfolio, saying that his work was ludicrous. And there was a young man in rags there, and he, too, had his portfolio returned with scorn.

His name was Adolf Hitler.

And Father was so mad at the professor that he got his revenge right then and there. He asked to see some of Hitler's work, with the professor looking on. He picked a picture at random, and he bought it from Hitler for more cash on the spot than the professor, probably, could earn in a month or more.

Only an hour before, Hitler had sold his overcoat to get a little something to eat, even though winter was coming on.
So there is a chance that, if it weren't for my father, Hitler might have died of pneumonia or malnutrition in 1910.

Father and Hitler paired off for a while, as people will—comforting and amusing each other. I learned of their good times together from Mother. When I was old enough to be curious about Father's past, World War Two was about to break out, and Father had developed lockjaw as far as his friendship with Hitler was concerned.

Think of that: My father could have strangled the worst monster of the century, or let him starve or freeze to death.
But he became his bosom buddy instead.

That is my principal objection to life,
I think: It is too easy, when alive, to make perfectly horrible mistakes.

If there were more women's business suits anyplace else, we wouldn't

We also wouldn't be here to tell you about all the classic suits, sport jackets, slacks and skirts we're offering. Just for fall, and just for businesswomen.

You see, business suits are all we do, so we can't afford to be outdone.

So at Saint Laurie, you'll find 2 and 3-button, single and double breasted suits with dirndl, trouser, straight, A-line and pleated skirts. The finest 100% worsted wools, gabardines, chevots and saxonies.

A selection of suits rivaled only by our selection of sizes—2 petite to 18 tall.

As for the business at hand tailoring, all our suits have features like French-felled collars and full handbasted linings.

We should know. We made our suits what they are today. Because we're the manufacturer.

Something that lets us make our suits what they aren't—expensive. They're $189 to $272. A lot less than what you'd pay elsewhere, for what's probably a lot less of a suit.

Come see our fall classics. Just allow yourself enough time to see them all.

Saint Laurie Ltd.

If there were better business suits at any price, we wouldn't be in business.

Special Preview Exhibition at Sotheby's September 22-26

Sotheby's will inaugurate the 1982-83 season with a preview exhibition of fall auction highlights at the finest auction facility in the world—Sotheby's New York Galleries at 72nd Street and York Avenue.

On view will be important paintings, including Landscape with Walton Bridges by J.M.W. Turner, from the estate of Henry S. Morgan, and works of art from prominent collections of fine French and English furniture, 18th century English silver and ceramics, outstanding jewelry, modern drawings, and Futurist photographs. Also featured will be selections from a major collection of early Chinese art as well as rare early etchings and lithographs from the estate of Pablo Picasso, Marina Picasso collection, and rare gold coins of S. Hallock du Pont. The Norther, one of the rarest bronzes cast by Frederic Remington, and fine examples of 18th century American furniture will be among the highlights of American art at the exhibition.

Sotheby's Sunday Lecture Series begins September 26.

In conjunction with the preview exhibition, C. Hugh Hildesley, senior vice president of Sotheby's and chairman of Sotheby's Appraisal Company, will present an overview of current collecting trends and discuss the role of the auction house in the marketplace. Subsequent lectures, exploring questions of connoisseurship within several collecting areas, will coincide with a major exhibition each month through January. Upcoming topics are: 19th Century Paintings on October 24; Chinese Archaic Bronzes, Jades, and Tomb Pottery on November 14; Fine Jewelry on December 5; and Americana on January 23. Held Sundays at 2 pm, the lectures are open to the public without charge.

For a complete schedule of upcoming auctions send for a copy of Sotheby's Newsletter.

Architecture

CESAR PELLI

A dean from Yale is turning Battery Park City into a vast new metropolis in Manhattan.

CESAR PELLI USED TO PRACTICE ARCHITECTURE in California. After eleven years of it, he moved east to become dean of the architecture school at Yale. "Modernism was entering a period of re-examination," he explains. "I felt it was important to be part of the dialogue, and in California you feel that you are not being heard."

Pelli's message is clearly carrying across the 80-odd miles from New Haven to New York. Having designed the new tower and expansion for the Museum of Modern Art, on West 53rd Street, the 56-year-old Argentinean-born architect is finishing design details for the commercial core of Battery Park City and is working on two additional sites in the city. His timing could not be better. Just now, there is more large-scale building going on in Manhattan than at any time in recent memory. In addition to the 92 acres of Battery Park City, there is, among other projects, the $1-billion plan for the redevelopment of the 42nd Street area between Broadway and Eighth Avenue, which will include four new office towers, a wholesale trade mart, and a 500-room hotel. And if plans for Lincoln West—the 62-acre tract along the Hudson River between 59th and 72nd Streets—should pass the Board of Estimate this week, work will soon begin in earnest on the largest remaining undeveloped site in Manhattan.

Aside from the enormous scale of these projects, what most distinguishes them is the concern they reflect for quality architecture. The Lincoln West proposal includes buildings to be designed by some of the best talents in the field: Edward Larrabee Barnes (architect of the I.B.M. Building), the Gruzen Partnership, Kohn Pedersen Fox, Mitchell/Giurgola, I. M. Pei & Partners (designers of the New York Convention Center, now going up in the West Thirties), Pelli, and Rafael Vinoly. Just last month, Philip Johnson, who, with his partner, John Burgee, designed the new A.T.&T. Building, landed the job of master planner for the office-tower portion of the 42nd Street redevelopment.

Pelli is a relative newcomer to this group, many of whom are veterans of New York construction, but he is likely to prove one of the most influential over time. What most New Yorkers know about him is limited to the MOMA complex. Now nearing completion, the 53-story tower is sheathed in a mosaic skin composed of glass panels in twelve different colors. Why such a patchwork, when acres of uninflected black, brown, or reflective glass have become the standard tall-building treatment in so much of the city? The answer verges on the revolutionary for skyscrapers in New York—or anywhere else, for that matter.

One of the main victims of such major modernists as Mies van der Rohe (the Seagram Building), Walter Gropius (the Pan Am Building), and Marcel Breuer (the Whitney Museum) was traditional ornament. Design, according to their lights, was to be simple and "honest"—no finials, no gargoyles, no nonsense. The so-called post-modernists have been struggling to redecorate architecture, but the great majority have been doing it by lifting from history; classical columns have become a virtual signature of post-modern design.

Pelli, who did his share of sleek modernist designs while still in California, has, like so many of his colleagues, abandoned modernist simplicity for greater visual variety. Instead of pursuing that variety in a reshuffling of stylistic decks, though, Pelli is looking for it in the manipulation of new building materials.

What he has done at MOMA is to use his varicolored glass bits to create on basically flat façades a rather old-fashioned effect of depth and texture—darks appear to recede, lights to move forward, like the moldings and other details of earlier, masonry buildings. To a degree, the aim is to articulate the parts of the tower. (Bands of color separate the residential floors and identify different types of apartments.) But beyond this colorful delineation of function is, quite simply, a desire to delight the eye.

The architect is following a comparable course in Battery Park City with his four office towers, but he has added to his palette. By cladding the bottoms of the buildings with a veneer of dark granite, Pelli has established a reassuring "base" in the traditional mode of masonry buildings. By using reflective glass in stepped layers on the shaft, he creates shadows that vary and reduce the bulk of the form, an effect furthered by increasing the size of the windows as they go up. And by capping the shafts with green copper "tops," he prevents the play of light he has created on the façades from dissipating skyward.

The effort is unapologetically ornamental, but because it is grounded in both traditional shapes that are readily understood and materials of the moment it escapes the hazards of both nostalgia and futurism. "What I am trying for," says Pelli, "is to capture the richness of past forms by exploiting the technology of the present."

The winner in all this is likely to be the future. Pelli is now midway through a joint venture (with Rafael Vinoly) for a 36-story office building at 900 Third Avenue, between 54th and 55th Streets, and is expected to do part of the residential portion of Lincoln West. With Battery Park City, he is among the first of the architects signed up for the three major developments now under way to break ground, and as a result he is bound to be closely watched by those who follow. It is highly unlikely that his colleagues' buildings will appear in any overt way Pelli-esque. But in his gutsy search for an enduringly contemporary architecture, he is setting a very tempting example.

CARTER WISEMAN

Photography

LARTIGUE

The Frenchman who perfected the snapshot is celebrated at the International Center of Photography.

EARLY IN THIS CENTURY, LIFE SUDDENLY sped up. The railroad and telegraph had already made their contributions; the automobile and telephone began to make theirs. Airplanes stuttered into the sky. Photography hastened to catch up with a world in motion. The new moving pictures kept pace. As for still pictures, faster film, emulsions, and lenses made it a snap to stop motion. The photographer who perfected the snapshot when the century was young was only a little boy himself—Jacques-Henri Lartigue.

Lartigue can be viewed as a forerunner of such masters of the 35-mm. camera as Dr. Erich Salomon and Henri Cartier-Bresson, in the late twenties and thirties. Their little, hand-held cameras, with faster shutter speeds and film, made possible unposed photographs of transient moments. Lartigue foretold their achievements but did not influence them. He took photographs for himself alone, thousands of them—and is doing so still, at age 88.

His pictures were exhibited at the Museum of Modern Art in 1963, when he was 68. There has not been a major museum show of Lartigue's photographs in this country since then, but the International Center of Photography will make up for the lack from November 21 through January 9 with "Bonjour M. Lartigue." The show, sponsored by Olympus cameras, will include nearly 125 photographs taken between 1902 and 1939.

Lartigue was seven years old in 1901 when his father gave him his first camera. Within a couple of years he was taking pictures that would rival any grown-up's in the decades to come. Lartigue's photographs display a child's knack of seeing all things for the first time, a sympathy for the awkward grace of haphazard events, and an obsession to see everything there was to see in his circumscribed world.

The boy photographer's universe was studded with big toys: cars that ran world-cup races, the "bobsleds" his brother Zissou built on bicycle wheels to race down inclines. Lartigue said his camera was his best friend, and the two of them were equally intent on speed and motion, trapping the temporary and fugitive at one one-hundredth of a second. His nanny, Dudu, obligingly threw a ball up high so Lartigue could snap it poised improbably in the air.

In 1904, Lartigue recorded the first successful public airplane flight in France. This changed his life. Soon he took to the air in all his better dreams. His fast lens caught everything on the wing. Zissou became obsessed with flight and designed kites and gliders that bumped into the air for a ticktock or two of the clock. All of France evidently yearned to imitate the angels. Bicyclists strapped wings to their machines and pedaled madly, hoping to take off. Lartigue convinced his tutor to forgo spelling lessons and take him instead to the aerodrome to watch bizarre contraptions dot the sky.

Lartigue had married himself to happiness at an early age and remained as faithful as the world would let him be. His camera did not look at pain or poverty and merely glanced at the war that buried La Belle Epoque. His photographs preserve in silver a time that may never have been as delectable as it appears. He did love accidents, and even lay in wait at turns of the road to catch his cousins falling off bikes or "bobs." But the spills and crashes were rarely serious. Like the very nature of his photography, they were happy accidents that he had anticipated. Snapshots tend to capture people in transition. Lartigue's photographs express his delight in the disorganized moment.

By 1910, he had discovered women. He told his diary he was fascinated by everything about them, especially their hats. Often he took his camera to the so-called Path of Virtue, in the Bois de Boulogne, where fashionable women strolled. They were walking extravaganzas, those women, composed of lace jabots and cabbage-leaf hats. Lartigue noticed, too, the men who stared at them with appreciative eyes. Their attention was different in kind but not in quality from his own.

For Lartigue was really a respectable voyeur. As the younger brother, he had been too small to be in games and was early consigned the role of spectator. Photography made the role powerful. Once, when his camera was broken, he invented his "eye-trap": By opening and shutting his eyes rapidly, he trapped the image in his mind. Thus, he became a camera himself. His photographs are full of people watching car races, airplanes, women. His pictures are actually about us, looking at photographs, gawking at other lives.

Though he has taken some splendid pictures as an adult, the boy's freshness remains the more vigorous. Lartigue intuited early what others learned later, that the peculiar intervals between objects and people in motion have a lively tension, and that people who move create unexpected and erratic shapes, by themselves or in combination with others. He is the essential amateur, who loves his calling without stint. In 1901, the year he got his camera, he wrote, "Photography is a magic thing! . . . Now I will be able to make portraits of everything . . . everything! . . . And I know very well that many, many things are going to ask me to have their pictures taken and I will take them all!"

THE MASTER

© 1982 by Hiro.

Irving Penn confronts death, Aaron Siskind records Harlem life. Russell Lee documents the Depression, Eugène Atget preserves "Old Paris." And Bruce Davidson rides the New York subway.

The news about color photography this year is that it's growing bigger and bigger, as if bursting with confidence that it can overwhelm black and white. With photographs approaching the size of paintings (perhaps the true rival), some photographers can show only a dozen pictures at a time, an unusual situation for a medium that produces images so fast.

Subway/Bruce Davidson, International Center of Photography, 1130 Fifth Avenue, at 94th Street, September 17 through November 14. Bruce Davidson is well known for his black-and-white studies of teenage gangs and Harlem neighborhoods. Though he's been shooting color for years, this is his first all-color show. It evolved from a year spent riding the subway, a circumstance that might make others cringe but made Davidson respond emotionally to color. There is little social comment here; it is more a matter of the punched-up colors of everyday clothes playing off against graffiti, or people, obviously indoors, viewed against the skyline in a strangely disorienting space.

Swimmers, Photographs by Jerry Gordon, Robert Samuel Gallery, 795 Broadway, near 10th Street, October 13 through November 13. Jerry Gordon photographed first on the beach, then underwater, finally half in and half out, where he found a new world. These last pictures meld two incompatible realms, the first in our ordinary, stable visual field and the other in the magnified, distorted, shifting region two feet below the waterline. The compositions are complex and demand study. Bodies move calmly underwater as their heads turn up two feet away, and divers hang impossibly suspended above. In Gordon's large-format Cibachrome prints, the highly charged blues and greens of swimming pools against red water wings and rafts are unlikely and delicious.

Cindy Sherman: New Color Photographs, Metro Pictures, 169 Mercer Street, October 16 through November 16. Cindy Sherman enlarges to 30 by 45 inches her extended and ambiguous images, in which she is the director and sole model but plays a different woman each time, thanks to wigs, makeup, lighting, and the personae she projects. The new work is as moody, as troubled, as remote and familiar as ever. These are women whom life has bruised somehow, and we are left to fill in the ways from our own experience. The work exploits commercial-print and film conventions and our learned responses to them.

Robert Fichter, Robert Freidus Gallery, 158 Lafayette Street, November 30 through January 8. This madman with a message (often about politics or ecology) shows 30-by-40-inch Cibachromes that combine, as usual, surrealism and funk. He constructs collages with elements borrowed from dreams and dime stores: winged rabbits, fish that disgorge skeletons, plastic astronauts and soldiers. Death, war, and fish haunt these pictures, and the palette is as eccentric as the imagery. The approach is so mannered it can blunt its own cutting edge, but when on target it has energy and wit.

Russell Lee: Photographs 1935 to 1961, Witkin Gallery, 41 East 57th Street, now through October 23. Russell Lee took thousands of photographs between 1936 and

1942 for the Farm Security Administration's mammoth attempt to document America in the Depression. In 1941, he wrote that "the idea is to substitute understanding for machine guns and a Gestapo as a means of keeping the country working together, unified, cooperative"—a large task for photography. Approximately 100 photographs, many from his own collection, prove again how humane Lee is, how sympathetic to the poor, the small, even the self-important.

Irving Penn: Recent Still Life, Marlborough Gallery, 40 West 57th Street, now through October 2. In his new black-and-white photographs of carefully constructed arrangements of detritus, withered fruit, and bones, Irving Penn seems mesmerized by decay. Intimations of mortality have appeared in Penn's work before: his street-debris and cigarette-butt pictures, even his flowers, dying on the stalk. The most impressive of the new photographs confront death most directly, making skulls into heroes and mordant reminders at once. Penn the sculptor, however, cannot match Penn the photographer; some of his compositions are forgettable. Yet his printing skill never flags. The quality of these platinum-metal prints is, as always, ravishing.

Paul Strand: Range of Expression, the Years 1914-1976, New York Public Library, 42nd Street and Fifth Avenue, September 17 through January 16. The 1913 Armory Show prompted Strand to give up soft-focus pictorialism, the dominant mode of the day, and create a modernist idiom. In good part through his influence, straight photography—sharp-focus, unmanipulated images—replaced pictorialism in America. Having made remarkably few prints during his career, Strand worked with a master printer in the seventies, when he was too ill to print himself, on portfolios that would secure his visual legacy. The library will show 70 prints, most published by the Paul Strand Foundation, plus some early gravure prints. The portfolios reproduce Strand's astonishing gamut of tones and range from his pioneering street portraits to the stark Mexican work and the late pictures of his garden, as complex as fugues.

A Paul Strand, at the Public Library.

Aaron Siskind took the photographs that resemble—and may even have influenced—Abstract Expressionist paintings; he was a documentary photographer with a social bent. This show, which includes some of his earliest work, comes from two projects, one a group effort at the Photo League. It proves him a sensitive documentarian, attuned to children playing, jitterbuggers stomping, protesters picketing. Though he keeps at a discreet distance, he has an eye for what counts.

The Work of Atget: The Art of Old Paris, Museum of Modern Art, 18 West 54th Street, October 14 through January 4. This, the second installment of MOMA's four-part survey of its unmatched Atget collection, contains more familiar material, some of it repetitious. Atget, who took a series of over 3,000 pictures of a city that progress was erasing, wrote in 1920, "I can say that I possess all of Old Paris." His Paris has aspects no one else divined: Notre Dame seen through a flat scrim of branches, views of stairways that turn into spatial puzzles, glass doorways that tantalizingly reflect Atget himself or a shifting collage of the city. Most of the prints are in splendid condition, and they provide the best possible way to see this master.

Jaromir Funke—Photographs, Prakapas Gallery, 19 East 71st Street, October 26 through December 11. This is the first American show for Funke (1890-1945), a major figure in Czechoslovakia. It begins with lyrical studies of trees in the early twenties and swerves quickly into purist abstractions of bowls, spheres, and shadows. In 1927, Funke began a series of abstractions in response to Man Ray's photograms. Funke's have a soft air, as if even in abstraction he was clinging to an earlier aesthetic. He played with surrealism, but his best-known work, stripped down and clean, is strongly influenced by constructivism. Once again, modernism edges out nostalgia and romance.

HUBIE BROWN

The shoot-now-think-later Knicks get an emphatic new coach whose system has always worked—before.

THE KNICKS, DULL, CRANKY, AND disorganized, went quietly last season. That condition will change in a very few weeks. The reason is Hubie Brown, the new coach, who speaks in italics. When he's unhappy with his players, the italics turn purple. It seems safe to predict that if the Knicks aren't heard from again this year, it won't be the coach's fault.

"There are an awful lot of coaches whose teams never reach their potential," Hubie says, "but the players love them as coaches. But you're not in business to be loved. You're in business to have your team play to its potential, to develop talent and build a winning tradition. If you can do all that and still have them love you, terrific."

The truth is, players and Hubie have not been a great romance. But he does win—the A.B.A. championship his first season as a pro head coach, three trips to the playoffs in his four full seasons at Atlanta. Until Brown's arrival, the Atlanta franchise had been a mess.

The Knicks' situation is one Hubie would recognize. Playoff tickets have been printed only twice in the last six years. Attendance last season averaged 57 percent of the Garden's 19,591-seat capacity, a drop of more than 10 percent from the previous season. Red Holzman, who had coached the Knicks to championships in 1970 and 1973, was no longer in touch with his players. The Knicks won 33 games, lost 49. The one piece of news they made during the playoffs was hiring a 1970 hero, Dave DeBusschere, as director of basketball operations and bringing in 48-year-old Hubert Jude Brown, his whip, and his chair.

He had been fired in Atlanta near the end of the 1980-81 season and had spent last year broadcasting N.B.A. games for CBS-TV and the U.S.A. Cable Network. "It helped me with the incredible withdrawal pains," Hubie says now. "You can't take an individual who has been a coach for 26 years and just have them stop. A guy asked me what I missed the most. I told him the smell of the gym."

Hubie cares. During the summer, the Knicks' prospects were put to work in a Los Angeles playground league. The new coach was a visitor, sitting behind the bench, not exactly minding his business. According to Hubie, a young referee made a call he didn't agree with. "I felt his interpretation of the rule was wrong. So I said to him, 'These guys are trying out, just as you are trying out, so remember to have a little compassion.'" At least that's Hubie's version. What happened next, the coach insists, took him completely by surprise. "I certainly didn't think I'd be asked to leave the game."

The people who knew Hubie at Atlanta might have trouble swallowing his account of that story. For one thing, it's obviously laundered. When he called time-outs in Atlanta, his profanity didn't stay inside the huddle. The only cure was to move the huddle to the center of the court. Two games into Hubie's first season, says Atlanta broadcaster Skip Caray, "we had to move our microphones away from his bench."

"Once the game starts, he's on another planet," Caray adds. "You can stick a pin into him and he won't feel it. We were playing the Knicks when Bill Bradley was still on their team, and he was getting a lot of easy baskets off one of our guys, John Drew." After another Bradley score, Hubie left the bench, cupped his hands around his mouth, and hollered at Drew, "Will you get into the f----- game?"

The broadcaster says the referee was trotting alongside Drew and thought Hubie had directed the criticism at him. He whistled a technical foul on Brown, his second of the game—instant ejection. Brown argued that he was talking to the player. "It was true," Caray says, "but the ref wouldn't buy it. Finally, Drew said, 'Honest, he was talking to me. He always talks to me like that.'"

The Knicks will find out about their coach when training camp opens, the first week in October. "One of my players once said, 'Hubie Brown is an exact coach,' and that's exactly right," Brown says. "When we say you will run a play a certain way, you will run it that way. Because we know that way will win. I don't worry about what the players are thinking. Because any player who's a winner knows that we run good offenses and we have a total game plan defensively."

The surprising team in the playoffs last season was the New Jersey Nets, their first year in the Meadowlands arena. The new tenants in that building are the New Jersey Devils, who along with the Rangers and the league-champion Islanders give the metropolitan area three professional hockey teams. The Devils have moved from Colorado, where they were called the Rockies. Meanwhile, since the Giants and Jets reached the playoffs last winter for the first time in years, the threatened strike by the players would not be welcome. And October 24 is the date for the New York City Marathon, with 16,000 runners, 26 miles 385 yards.

If the Knicks are to reach the playoffs, Hubie must light a fire under center Bill Cartwright and get through to Michael Ray Richardson, who takes most of the shots. Paul Westphal, who joined late last season, is the other guard. The forwards are Truck Robinson, a husky who played for Hubie at Atlanta, and Sly Williams, who was most consistent about skipping practices. The draft picks, six-five Trent Tucker and six-ten Scott Hastings, aren't going to help right away. One of last year's regulars who won't help at all is Campy Russell, injured during a pickup game and expected to sit out the season.

Hubie's system—controlled offense, hungry defense—has always worked. "But," he says, "how fast a turnabout..." Who really knows? Those italics are mine. VIC ZIEGEL

SYLVIA HEISEL

At twenty, a Barnard dropout is well on her way to stardom by way of Bendel's.

Sylvia Heisel, twenty, always knew that designing clothes was what she wanted to do. She was so eager to get on with it that she dropped out of Barnard last year and supported herself by designing clothes for friends, making jewelry, and working one night a week at Bergdorf Goodman, in the display department. Then, last spring, she designed four coats and took them to Henri Bendel. The store bought them (and has since reordered) and the customers bought them. The talent and the timing were right, and Sylvia Heisel, who always knew where she was going, was on her way.

At fifteen pieces, her second collection is considerably more ambitious than that first one was. And while it has met with an enthusiastic reception in most quarters, Sylvia recalls with amusement one prominent buyer's reaction. In turning her down, he advised her to copy the established designers. But "I don't want to do a Calvin collar or an Armani sleeve," says Sylvia, who, in fact, makes a point of not knowing what the competition is up to. "I want my clothes to be individual, and the inspiration to come from myself."

While some stores may not be willing, or able, to risk change, in this economic environment, Sylvia is certain that American women are more than ready to abandon the safety and snob appeal of designer looks in favor of simpler clothes that allow them to express their own individuality—clothes like hers. "The women who wear my clothes," she says, "don't have to hide behind a label." This collection is strongly influenced by the twenties, Sylvia's favorite decade, when "women enjoyed fashion; it was fun."

Although feeling the pressure to expand that inevitably comes with success, she is determined to keep her business small and highly individual. Sylvia Heisel wants to be in total control.

BOSHA JOHNSON

After Gatsby, Network, and The Rose, a young designer starts playing the big town.

Another rapidly rising star was helped on her way by an established one in a different field. Two years ago, Bosha Johnson, now 33, switched from film and theater costume design to fashions for consumers at the urging of Jacqueline Bisset. Bisset has stayed a client, as have Bette Midler, Diana Ross, and Faye Dunaway, but more important to Bosha now are the civilian customers for her dramatic but highly wearable clothes.

Bosha's talent was apparent early. On graduating from the Parsons School of Design, in 1970, she won half the school's design awards, and then went to Chester Weinberg. But Bosha didn't want to work on someone else's designs. She quickly got a job at Lady Madonna—so quickly that she didn't realize the firm produced only maternity clothes. Bosha decided, however, to regard this as a challenge, and met it: When she left, the house, which had been selling mostly her designs, had expanded from 3 stores to 36.

What Bosha left for was a chance to work for people who welcomed her theatrical style. As Theoni V. Aldredge's assistant, she helped design costumes for a number of films (The Great Gatsby, The Rose, Network, Eyes of Laura Mars) and Broadway and Off Broadway plays.

Bosha's first collection was all black. This, her third, nearly all hand-knits, mixes black with cream for a clean, striking look. She favors long, lean lines in silhouettes reminiscent of those of the twenties, and of one of her favorite designers—Coco Chanel. She is very aware of the influence of the theater and films on fashion—Sophisticated Ladies and Brideshead Revisited, she feels, were enjoyable, in large measure, because of the nostalgic appeal of the elegant clothes. Bosha's collection is a small one, as she wants to be able to control the quality of her product. Plans for shoe and hosiery designs mean that, in six months' time, she will also be able to control her customer's total look.

Restaurants

THE WATER CLUB

The River Café is cloned on the Manhattan side, and other upcoming culinary adventures.

AT AMERICAN THIS FALL: HANGTOWN fry, New Orleans muffuletta sandwiches, warm pecan pie, pizza Chicago-style, roast with mashed potatoes. Eat in a Spartan soup kitchen, a tubby barge, a super-swank nightclub, an art gallery, a funky pizza parlor, a beigely understated dining room that's aiming for tycoons. Most of the fresh autumn restaurants will serve up regional dishes, plainly or imaginatively cooked. Whether you're a native or a newcomer, try out the fall restaurant crop—but call first to make sure the projected opening dates have held firm.

For five years now we've stepped onto the East River (Brooklyn side) for dinner and the sunset, courtesy of Michael O'Keeffe, who moored his River Café in the shadow of the Brooklyn Bridge. This fall, we shall finally gather on the river (Manhattan side), for O'Keeffe has floated a new barge-restaurant at the foot of East 34th Street. Now Manhattanites will be able to sit in the open air—on the deck, topside—and watch the river traffic as the lights wink on along the 59th Street Bridge.

First we'll stroll along the two-block-long boardwalk that O'Keeffe has built and banked with geraniums. Then we'll enter the Water Club (696-5444) through the two-story-high glass lobby (it's on land), pass the tanks of live lobsters and the bushel baskets of clams and oysters, and go left, through the bar. Through a glass door, ducks, chickens, and squabs will be visible turning on a rotisserie in the kitchen. We'll walk to the boat across a ramp; the picture windows in the central restaurant look northward toward the bridge and half of Queens, and the décor's plainly nautical—tan-painted-steel walls, scrubbed-ash tables, and hand-pegged oak floors.

O'Keeffe has not decided on his chef, but he has decided on the menu: eel, lobster, bouillabaisse, fish dishes with an Oriental touch (from $15 for dinner entrées), and roast pork, steaks, chops, those roasted birds, and hearty mashed potatoes (prices not yet set). The deck (for drinks, clams and oysters, and dessert) is open now; O'Keeffe hopes to have the barge open for dinner every day starting September 28. Later, he'll add breakfast and lunch, and on Saturdays and Sundays, brunch. (An identical barge to the south opened for private parties September 9.) To reach the boats, go under the East River Drive at 23rd Street, turn left—but stay on the right-hand side—and follow the pier.

And there'll be more dining afloat. Tom Quinn, a New York-bred former taxi driver, knows the city as well as he knows the insides of his pockets, and he always wanted to open a restaurant here. So he saved and he planned, and in early November he will have his dream: the Water's Edge, a restaurant in a barge at the edge of Long Island City, close to the foot of the 59th Street Bridge, with a wonderful view of the United Nations and its surroundings.

The white steel barge, supported by pilings, has an open-air deck on the water and a glass-enclosed dining room that's rather fancy (white tablecloths, flowers, and several levels from which to gaze at the city). Chef Brendan Walsh trained at the Culinary Institute of America; his menu will be eclectic: seafood, fish, some Italian and French specialties, prime ribs and steaks, pastries made on the premises (dinner-entrée prices will go from $14 to $25).

Quinn's place will be open daily for lunch and dinner.

TRANSFORMATIONS

By late September, John B. Coleman, who has redone the Fairfax Hotel in Washington, D.C., will have transformed the Navarro, at 112 Central Park South, into the Ritz-Carlton (757-1900). Sister Parish has turned the rooms into eighteenth-century-style English suites, with four-poster beds, watercolors of hunters, and so forth. She has also designed the restaurant, the Jockey Club—a masculine, clublike room with wood-burning fireplaces, eighteenth-century pine paneling from England, and chairs styled after those in Annabel's, the supper club-disco in London.

William Hauber, who was executive chef at the Grand Hyatt, is Guérard-trained, but he gives our nation priority: He will use only American ingredients (chanterelles from Wisconsin, for instance). He hasn't established the menu yet, but it will be light. Wear tweed or a polo shirt at lunch or brunch (jacket and tie at dinner), and have a sherry or a late-late supper in the Bar Room, with its huge fireplace, 40-foot-long bar, and paneling. Or sit in the deep red leather chairs or on the plush banquettes in front of the fireplace and you'll be served by waiters in white starched jackets.

The Jockey Club will be open Monday through Friday for breakfast, lunch, and dinner, and Saturdays and Sundays for breakfast, brunch, and dinner.

Since the Depression, tourists have sat behind great glass windows in New York's most famous sunken plaza and watched the skaters showing off at the Rockefeller Center rink. After 50 years of this, it was time for a change, so Restaurant Associates has ordered Philip George, who did the Rainbow Grill and the World Trade Center's Market Bar and Dining Rooms, to redesign the Promenade Café's English Grill (to the north) and French Grill (to the south). Sometime after Thanksgiving you will be able to breeze into the north side of the new Festival Café (757-5730) for inexpensive fare like hamburgers, red-leaf salads with pecan dressing, hangtown fry (an egg-and-oyster dish), New Orleans muffuletta sandwiches, and warm pecan pie (dinner entrées from $8.95 up). You'll see the ice gliders through a new glass wall that will vanish in summer to allow alfresco dining. This side will have a bar of Rioja marble and a "candy store" island with sparkling brass fixtures (that's for desserts and ice cream, $2 to $4.50). It is hoped that the south-side restaurant, more subdued (beige walls and blond-wood moldings and tables) will lure the Rockefeller Center power brokers. They'll be served fish and Colorado prime beef, all broiled on hardwood charcoal, and daily specials (dinner entrées, $8.95 to $16.95). The two dining rooms will share a kitchen overseen by Swiss-trained chef Mario Di Pietro (a chef for Restaurant Associates since 1969). Both rooms will be open daily for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

For generations the Barbizon Hotel (140 East 63rd Street, 838-5700) has stood guard over gently bred young women as they edged tentatively into big-city living. But that reassuring bastion has gone through some changes, not the least of which is that men are now welcome as guests. And more changes: There will be three new restaurants in the hotel. This is not autumn intelligence—the restaurants won't open until sometime this winter. But they sound interesting enough to merit this look ahead.

Judith Stockman, who designed Café des Artistes and the new Lüchow's, is doing the Café Barbizon and the hotel's seafood house, La Marée ("The Tide"). For fast service and light, inexpensive meals, guests will be able to step into the café, with its double-vaulted ceiling, its huge windows looking out onto Lexington Avenue, its stand-up bars and tables for two.

La Marée, upstairs, will be richly decorated (pink marble-trimmed columns, onyx-lined balconies, trompe l'oeil ceiling); co-directors Rozanne Gold and Richard Burns (formerly executive chef at Hoexter's Market and Vanessa) will serve food that's partly haute cuisine, partly health food, for those following the regimen of the Barbizon's new spa (dinner entrées, $7 to $25).

The Barbizon's third new eating place is designer-illustrator Milton Glaser's fantasy come true: Monet's Dining Room, an evocation of the celebrated painter's own place in Giverny, France. It'll be set in a townhouse next door to the hotel proper: a yellow dining room, with schematic drawings of Monet's Japanese prints at Giverny, and a blue dining room, with a 25-foot stylized mural of Monet's water lilies. Under directors Gold and Burns, the kitchen is supposed to turn out a refined version of cuisine bourgeoise: pot-au-feu, marmite dieppoise (fish stew with cream and mussels), and beignets de pommes (apples soaked in brandy, then dipped in batter and deep-fried). (Dinner entrées will start at $14.) The room is expected to be open daily for dinner. But not for many months.

NIGHTCLUBS

John Addison has gone to extremes with his nightclub-cabaret-restaurant, the Palace, which has taken over the landmark building that once housed Lüchow's (110 East 14th Street, 473-4100). Since he was not allowed to change anything structural, Addison has tarted up the interior with gold-fringed pink curtains, plush green velvet love seats, bizarre feathered busts of male and female fallen angels, and, in the atrium under the newly cleaned etched-glass skylight, golden Apollos and Helens.

If I didn't know better, I'd swear this was a turn-of-the-century "maison de rendez-vous." Well, so he's carried decorative art a bit far (with the help of designer Larry Barcher). It's all right—it works.

In late September, this fantasy will open daily for lunch, cocktails, dinner, and disco-ing (the last from eight until the final guest leaves; there's a $15 disco entrance fee if you don't have dinner). And what will the expected "adventurous international lunchtime crowd" eat? Robert Skalor (a former chef at Windows on the World) will give them American nouvelle cuisine—Union Market vegetable salad, grilled fillet of bass with walnuts and chèvre, American caviar. But he's paying homage to the ghosts in the kitchen by keeping some of Lüchow's German dishes: paprika-cream schnitzel and sugar-glazed apple pancakes. (Dinner entrées from $7.25 to $16.) The question is: Will an executive that's what makes Irving Trust different.

We understand your problems. You're so busy getting ahead in business, your financial matters fall behind. You have little time to investigate alternatives. Even less to form sound strategies.

That's why Irving Trust offers you your own Personal Banker. Someone you know by name. Someone who knows your personal situation. A person who can suggest ways to manage your money so it works harder for you.

For example, an Irving Trust Personal Banker can explain various money management alternatives and their advantages. Show you how to take advantage of the best interest rates available. Keep you informed of new opportunities as they come up in today's fluctuating economy. And much more.

Access to experts.

Perhaps you're more interested in someone who can manage your portfolio. Or in tax planning. Or in setting up a living trust. An Irving Trust Personal Banker can refer you to experts who offer the kinds of help you need. All within Irving Trust.

Phone now for an appointment.

Our number in New York is 212/487-6589. That puts you in touch with an Irving Trust representative who will schedule a meeting for you with a Personal Banker. There's no charge for the meeting. And you are under no obligation.

venture to share his meal with a potential client in a sexy, extravagant, wild discotheque? My husband says he will.

If you like what's happening onstage at Dionysos II, toss your plate onto the dance floor and smash it. That's how you're supposed to cheer here, and, if your aim's true, what could be more exuberant, more naively satisfying?

This Dionysos, at 208 West 70th Street (496-6400), is a revival of the East Side supper club, but, says co-owner Paul Sapounakis, "much more elaborate." At the two nightly shows there will be the expected belly dancing and bouzoukis, plus six feather-bow'd hoofers doing "Greekified chorus routines." And the staff will lead the customers in folk dancing.

The food? Hors d'oeuvre only ($4 to $8; there's a $20-per-person minimum if you eat, or a $10 cover charge if you come just for drinks and the show). It'll be finger food; tapenade scooped up with endive, tarámasalata dipped up with broccoli florets, skewered things (filet mignon, souvlakia, swordfish, suckling pig, chicken, lamb). The food consultant is Frank Valenza, creator of the Palace, the one on East 59th Street (in its splashy time an ultimate in excellence and outrageous priciness, now serving as Michel Fitoussi's Palace, where dinner this fall is a somewhat controlled $100 prix fixe, including drinks, tax, and tip, if you call ahead and specify the "$100 deal"). "I'm updating Greek cuisine to fit a more modern taste," Valenza says. "It'll be Mama's cooking, but elevated—everything lighter, and less oil in some of the dishes. And good meat—not, like Mama's, served well done." Starting September 9, the club will be open Monday through Saturday from 7 P.M. to 4 A.M. And you will have to pay for the broken plates—$1 each.

ATMOSPHERICS

White walls, track lighting, a high ceiling, paintings... the space opening in mid-September at 1063 First Avenue, at 58th Street (759-4200), is a gallery all right. So why mention it here? Because it is also a new restaurant that promises to be exciting.

Here's the story: Mitchell Miller, a bookbinder for over 40 years, met many artists in the course of his work. His son Eric graduated from the Culinary Institute of America, at Hyde Park. Father bought a loft, son organized a restaurant. Father deals with paintings, son

WHEN YOU RENT A TV OR VCR FROM GRANADA, YOU GET SOMETHING THAT'S IMPOSSIBLE TO BUY.

Certainly you could buy the same TV's, if you don't mind parting with up to $750.

And certainly you could buy the same VCR's, if you can spare up to $1,200.

But even if these heavy figures wouldn't upset your bank balance, there's still one thing that Granada can offer that no manufacturer or store could even hope to give you.

It's called peace of mind.

Because when you rent from Granada, the solution to any problem is no further away than your phone. If anything should ever go wrong, we'll be there to fix it, absolutely free, usually within 24 hours. And if we can't solve the problem in your home, we'll even lend you a free replacement.

If you ever want to change your TV or VCR for a new model, or for a different size or style, that's no problem, either. Once you've rented for the minimum three months you can change it as often as you want to. So you'll never have to worry about being stuck with an obsolete model.

You can rent an RCA or Magnavox TV from Granada from as little as $11.95 to $29.95 a month. Or a VCR from as little as $25.95, to the state of the art at $49.95 a month. And it can all be completed quickly and easily by phone.

To find out more about renting from Granada, just give us a call, or drop into any one of our fourteen stores listed below. They're open until 9 p.m.

If you're looking for a new TV or VCR, no one but Granada can offer you such peace of mind.

At any price.

cooks food. Diners will be able to choose among dishes such as breast of duckling with black-currant sauce, grilled swordfish with green peppercorns, and rack of lamb. (Dinner entrées will go from $8.50 to $16.) Art lovers will be presented with shows changing every couple of months. The Gallery will be open daily for dinner, and Sundays for brunch also.

*W*old on to your money," say all the granddads who have been through the Depression. "Times are going to be tough." In that spirit (he says), Tony Goldman, owner of the Greene Street Cafe, is opening the Soup Kitchen next door, at 103 Greene Street (925-2415), on October 1. This cavernous room will be as straightforward as its name. The style is Depression-modern—real industrial design, not played-out high tech: pressed-tin ceiling, black and white columns, walls of exposed brick, old sweatshop sewing-machine tables (with the iron machines folded away underneath), metal chairs, asphalt floors, green sawdust, a 100-foot circular bar.

Self-service is the rule here, just as it was in those soup kitchens that Grandpa talks about. Come in jeans, or dressed up, every day from noon to 2 A.M. and eat light at the clam-and-oyster bar (75¢ to 90¢) or at the salad tables, where you'll get ziti, shell, or tortellini salads (under $5) and vegetable salads (zucchini, tomato, or string-bean, under $5). Or move on to the soup counter and have a country-vegetable, lentil, or beef-barley soup (under $3). The pastries (under $3) will be made on the premises.

*T*ake the former operator of the Belmore Cafeteria, a.k.a. Taxi Heaven (Myron Siegel), and a children's clothing manufacturer (Danny Bloom) and a well-known restaurant consultant (Barbara Kafka), let them put their ideas together, and you've got Pizzapiazza (785 Broadway, at 10th Street), opening in early December. It looks funky outside, with its Mediterranean-style arch and artist Jordan Steckel's wood-and-steel trees. The interior, architect Charles Boxenbaum says, will be tiled in granite and wood.

The menu? Deep-dish Chicago pizza filled with everything from asparagus to chèvre, from Italian piquancy to Szechwan fire. A half-dozen versions will be offered each day (open daily from 11 A.M. to 2 A.M.). Prices? As low as $3 for a six-inch ricotta-filled pizza to $16 for a twelve-incher filled with smoked salmon. There will be several soups ($2 to $3.50), entrées ($6.25 to $8), and drinks too. Chinese pizza—food for thought! COLETTE ROSSANT

TRUMP TOWER

The six-story atrium in the new midtown skyscraper boasts a glittery array of merchants with cachet.

IT'S HARD TO LIVE IN MANHATTAN AND NOT eagerly await the completion of Trump Tower, at the corner of Fifth Avenue and 56th Street. After all, this is one of the nascent midtown skyscrapers whose rerouted walkways and traffic-snarling cranes have been giving everyone birth pains.

Perhaps no one is more eager, however, than Donald J. Trump, the supremely confident, 36-year-old developer who has pursued his controversial project in the face of public protest—first over the building's scale, so unlike that of the cozier limestone buildings on upper Fifth Avenue, and then over the last-minute destruction of Bonwit Teller's Art Deco sculptures. And his eagerness can be persuasive. Stand with him inside the main lobby of his tower and the concrete flooring takes on the marble sheen he promises, trees spring up inside the six-story atrium, and you can practically hear the water cascading down the wall and into the concrete "streambed" below.

When it opens this winter, Trump Tower will be either a triumph—a glittering shopping complex where the cachet of the clientele rivals that of the fancy shops—or a lonely failure, where debuting European boutiques tucked away in fifth-floor salons languish for lack of trade from street-window browsers.

The undertaking is audacious, as brash and ambitious as the Queens-nurtured Donald Trump himself. Consider the concept: The midtown spire that shouldered out the old Bonwit Teller and that hovers over Tiffany was designed to house the sleekest offices, the costliest cooperative apartments, the most expensive fashion and gift shops. Then consider the economy, which in the third quarter was beginning to expose even seemingly recession-proof enterprises to the realities of hard times. Still, any store that's newer, shinier, costlier has a chance to become the place to browse through, to buy at, to say one has been to. And that's what Trump Tower is selling.

The array of shops that will have space in the building's six public floors reflects Donald Trump's attempt to fill his complex with the finest shops and designers in the world. To lure them, Trump has reportedly offered some of the most desirable shops advantageous rents and will watch as some shops compete against themselves. The renowned jewelry firm Harry Winston, which will have a petit salon on the second floor of Trump Tower, will not abandon its limestone mansion on the other side of Fifth Avenue. The firm will use the Trump space for pieces starting at the price of a subcompact car. French-based shoe manufacturer Charles Jourdan, which will occupy a three-story space in Trump, with a Fifth Avenue entrance, will maintain its shop on upper Madison Avenue. Chocolaterie Corné Toison d'Or, an importer of Belgian chocolates that's a relative newcomer to the city, will put a store into the Trump atrium that's even bigger than its Madison Avenue shop. And Italian movie producer Dino De Laurentiis, who is venturing into the food world in a big way, hopes to open an espresso bar and a Fauchon-type fancy-food shop—restaurant here in addition to the specialty food shop—wine bar he plans for the Endicott Apartments, on Columbus Avenue.

Some of the enterprises are virtually unknown to New Yorkers. Not many consumers here have heard of Loewe (pronounced Loo-ev-ay), the Madrid-based leather-goods purveyor, despite its 18 stores in Europe and 30 boutiques in the Orient. Loewe's four-story shop will begin on the 56th Street ground level, with several showcase windows where the butter-soft-leather fashions, suede luggage, and "couture daywear" can be exhibited before the crowds that parade up and down the "good" side of the avenue.

Another New York newcomer will be Lina Lee, of Rodeo Drive, in Beverly Hills, whose name is known to the average local upscale shopper only through glitzy advertisements in W and Town & Country. Joan Siegel, in charge of choosing retail stores for Trump Tower, reports that Lina Lee's strength is in accessorizing and pulling together total outfits for women. The California retailer will maintain both a clothing and an accessory shop on the third floor.

Ludwig Beck, from Munich, has taken much of the fifth floor for its one-of-a-kind handcrafted objets, everything from $2,000 Italian dolls to Royal Bavarian Nymphenberg china. It shares

NEWS FOR CITIPEOPLESM

Now you don't have to wait for your checks to clear.

Only your Citicard[®] lets you credit checks to your account instantly.

Introducing the new Citibank service that lets you deposit your checks as cash. Now the endless wait for checks to clear is over.

Depositing your checks as cash eliminates the hassle of getting check approval, and the chances of your bouncing a check are greatly reduced. Unlike other banks and money market funds, your checks are credited to your account—even out of town checks—so you can use your money immediately. You also earn interest from the moment of deposit. Finally, you can use this service 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Here's how it works. At Citibank, your savings balances plus your Checking Plus[®] line of credit, cover the checks you deposit. We even include CDs and All Savers. As long as your combined balances cover the checks you're depositing, your deposits will be treated as cash at all Citicard Banking Centers.[®] And your balance is updated right before your eyes. Obviously, the more banking you do with Citibank, the greater the amount you can cover.

Depositing your checks as cash. One more reason why more and more Citipeople are giving Citibank all of their banking business.

To sign up for this exclusive Citibank service, come into your Citibank branch. For more information call (212) 750-7759 Monday-Friday 9AM-5PM EDT.

When it comes to making your savings earn more ...the Citi never sleeps.

If a check you deposit does not clear, funds to cover the amount withdrawn may be moved from other Citibank accounts you link when you sign up for this service. IRA and Keogh accounts may not be linked.

IGNORE YOUR HEALTH LONG ENOUGH AND MAYBE IT WILL GO AWAY.

At the Suisse Diagnostic Fitness Center, we'd rather you take care of your health now, so it will take care of you later.

That's why our physicians offer a total body analysis which includes everything from cardiac stress testing and pulmonary function evaluations to 38 pt. blood chemistry analysis and muscle to fat ratios. The results are used to formulate an individualized fitness and nutrition program designed to significantly reduce risk factors and promote good health. These tests, too sophisticated to be duplicated in most physicians' offices, are tax deductible and may be covered by most insurance policies.

Staying well. It's a whole lot easier than getting well.

the floor with the Italian stationer Pineider, a chocolate patisserie, and Fila sportswear. The second floor is Trump's "collectibles" floor. That's where Harry Winston is joined by London's Asprey & Company, the 200-year-old London purveyor of luxury gifts, and a Boehm Porcelain shop. The third and fourth floors are all fashion, with some European designers competing with their department-store outlets by opening their own shops.

The three ground-level stores—Charles Jourdan, Loewe, and the Italian jeweler Buccellati, which is moving from its Fifth Avenue location one block south—will open in mid-November, while the rest of the tower, including the atrium shops, will open its doors February 14.

HERALD SQUARE

Farther downtown, in the less-than-chic-but-always-bustling 34th Street area, one department store, Macy's, is rapidly turning itself into a shopping center all by itself. First, the creation of the Cellar nearly six years ago divided the lower level into a street of shops. Then, in the last couple of years, the store opened Laura Ashley and New Country Gear boutiques. This fall and winter promise even more diversification.

"You have to understand," says one retail consultant, "Macy's has a problem no other store has: It has an incredible amount of floor space to fill." And fill it Macy's will, beginning with a balcony shop, now under construction, that will mark the Metropolitan Museum of Art's first retail venture outside the museum walls. Beginning at the end of October, the museum's cards and prints, as well as an extensive array of exclusive gift items, will be sold at this location.

A Louis Vuitton department will open inside Macy's about October 1, and there are plans for a new South-flower Market in the Cellar. Computers are exploding at Macy's (as everywhere else), and this fall will see two new home-computer departments opened in the Herald Square store—computers under $2,000 this month, more elaborate models in November.

Shops

hattan Ad Hoc Housewares, which made its name on Lexington Avenue as a resource for high-tech household products, is branching out into Ad Hoc Softwares, providing SoHo with the first shop in the area selling items for the bath and boudoir. Will the style of the offerings be as no-nonsense as the up-town shop's? Well, says co-owner Julia McFarlane, "we have yet to find a flower we like, and most ruffles are badly made—rough and scratchy. But we've seen lots of wonderful lace." Ad Hoc Softwares will feature cotton, linen, and cotton-linen-blend goods, and will open at 410 West Broadway in late October.

Another newcomer to SoHo is more in keeping with the fashion offerings for which the area has become known. Factotum, at 68-70 Thompson, which will open in late September, will carry the funky fashions of London designer Vivienne Westwood. "These clothes are for the risk taker," says manager Leigh Blake. "Unusual shapes: layered cones, togas, some trousers worked to make sure they look as if they're falling down, T-shirts with off-center necks—they'll get stares. We have boots, shoes, raw-wool pants and skirts—and everything's sort of muddy-colored for fall."

COLUMBUS AVENUE

While most of the shops on Columbus Avenue center on food—the buying, eating, and gift-giving thereof—at least one new clothing store has just opened in time for fall (in addition, of course, to yet another branch of the incredibly successful Charivari). The fact is, the clothing styles at Vermont Classics, at 284 Columbus Avenue, between 73rd and 74th Streets, are hardly new—but that's the point. Owners Paula Neustat and Sheila Silverman have gathered up classic clothing handmade by people who live in villages and on farms throughout New England. There are hand-knitted sweaters, quilted pillows and bed coverings. And there are raw-silk dresses made in small workshops, as well as factory-made classic New England clothing.

How to make a Midori Melonball.

All it takes is the incomparably light flavor of honeydew that comes only from Midori Melon Liqueur.

Midori Melonball

2 oz. Midori
1 oz. Banzai Vodka
Orange Juice

In a tall glass, add Midori and Vodka over ice.

Add orange juice, stir.

Taste the result. Then write for our free recipe book, the French activewear made by New Man, bip added to its Madison Avenue presence in late August with a shop at 234 East 60th Street. The light wood and the faded-jeans blue of the interior are similar to what you'll find in the Madison Avenue shop, and so is the clothing: There is a full range of shirts, pants, sweaters, and jackets for men, women, and children, and many of the styles are available for all members of the family. New Man continues to produce the classic-cut blue denims that have made its fortune—but the line adds fashion cuts, fabrics, and colors each year, designed in a uniquely New Man way, with cotton and wool plaids, lush corduroys, and supple knits.

Nearby, at 30 East 67th Street, the confectioner Plumbridge celebrated its 1983 centennial a few months early by opening a new shop. The company will keep on purveying its sophisticated collection of spiced pecans and hand-rolled dessert fruits encrusted with sugar, and will, as usual, package these confections in toys and antique jars and ceramics. To celebrate the centennial, Gregory Petrillo (whose family has run Plumbridge since his grandmother's day) is reintroducing a favorite from the forties—pecan "sandwiches" filled with Plumbridge's butter-and-cream caramel.

On Third Avenue at 67th Street, Janovic/Plaza is well into its inaugural season as the first post-modern paint store. This delicious bonbon of a shop, designed by the architectural firm Voorsanger & Mills, offers comfortable counters that look from a distance like stylized Greek temples; at these counters, shoppers pore through wallpaper books. There are entire walls of in-stock wallpapers and cotton chintzes and duck that can be turned into folding shades, balloon curtains, pinch-pleat draperies—even pillows with Turkish corners. "Whatever the customer wants us to make, we'll do," says Evan Janovic. Stroll through the store; as you pass mauve walls, under lilac soffits, beyond turquoise columns, the floor-tile department and the paint corner give way to the bath shop. Here, brown soaps reside with brown towels and brown wicker étagères and brown shower curtains. Ditto for lavender, blue, green, peach, white, yellow, etc. "The basic message a customer will get from our store," says Janovic, "is that color, real color, is okay—that it works, by itself or with other colors." That is certainly an appropriate message from a store that sells thousands of colors of paint.

NY OPEN SUNDAY

LE PAVILLON VIOLATES PERHAPS THE MOST SACRED TENET OF THE WORLD CLASS LUXURY HOTEL.

The violation is the simple act of opening our doors.

The sacred tenet is that a true world class hotel must be located a continent away, clustered with other grand hotels in places like London and Paris, or else be denied sanctification.

Our heresy, and we're quite comfortable with it, is that we are opening such a hotel within easy reach of those best able to appreciate it... in Fairfield County, Connecticut.

Serving a community and a belief.

Located amidst the Fortune 500 corporate headquarters that surround Stamford, Le Pavillon is designed to serve both a community and a belief. The belief that those who've cultivated certain standards should not be called upon to relax them by their hotel.

Toward that end, we will have completed a $7 million renovation. The result is a hotel in the Continental manner comprised exclusively of luxury suites (accented with our own collection of Oriental art pieces).

Le Pavillon hotel deluxe, provides exceptionally convenient conference areas for their corporate and association clientele accommodating groups up to 200 people. Eleven Executive Board Rooms, one located on every guest floor, create the kind of exclusivity appreciated by those small conference groups who seek uninterrupted closed door meetings.

It's International staff is committed to restoring to hotel service the status of professionalism it deserves.

And its restaurant and lounge, Aux Beaux Champs, represent a return to the sense of priorities that require a fine hotel to be as much a place to dine as to stay. At a time when hotel restaurants have acquired the reputation of being only slightly upscale cafeterias, ours offers elegant cuisine.

For more information.

If you find this kind of hotel interesting, we'd be happy to introduce ourselves to you. Please call (203) 357-8100. Or feel free to visit us. 60 Strawberry Hill Avenue, Stamford, Conn. 06902.

For those somewhat uncomfortable with mediocrity, we can promise you a refreshing discovery.

Your values haven't largely disappeared from the world. They've come to Le Pavillon for a prolonged stay.

Comfort and beauty ... naturally!

In today's short cut, plastic world, Carlyle still does things the old-fashioned way. We still use real wooden frames with real wooden dowels, real down and feather cushions, real inner spring mattresses and real fabrics, like 100% cotton, pure silk and genuine leathers. And, all priced realistically.

Is that any way to make a fine sofa bed? You bet it is. Really!

WE WANT EVERYBODY IN NEW YORK STATE TO SEE OUR LOW RATES.

And we want everybody to be able to compare our low rates.

Because these days you should shop around for life insurance just the way you do with almost everything else.

How to Compare Rates

The problem is how do you go about comparing prices for life insurance?

Help is at hand. The life insurance industry has developed a simple way to compare policy costs. It's all explained right up front in our free booklet "A Buyer's Guide to Low Cost Life Insurance." You can pick up a copy at one of the more than 900 savings bank offices throughout New York State.

Easy to Buy

When you purchase your SBLI at a nearby savings bank office, you deal with friendly, knowledgeable people who have passed the state-sponsored examination for life insurance sales. You can also buy SBLI by mail, if you prefer.

A Variety of Plans at Low Cost

If you're age 15 days to 70 years, and if you live or work in New York State, you are eligible to purchase SBLI. You can choose from a wide variety of SBLI plans to meet your budget and your present and future needs. For instance, if you're a 30-year-old man you can buy a $30,000 SBLI policy for $81.30 a year (see table).

Annual Premiums for New Issues SBLI $30,000 5-Year Renewable and Convertible Term*

Age	Male	Female
20	$ 69.00	$ 65.40
25	73.50	70.50
30	81.30	75.90
35	99.30	86.40
40	140.40	112.50
45	208.20	163.80

*Renewable every 5 years at an increased rate to age 65 (when it stops). Dividends are payable annually, as earned, starting the first year, reducing your cost still further. Policy No. T-8

And on permanent plans, you can add a children's rider that will protect all your children no matter how many from 15 days to age 18, for one low add-on cost (see table).

Annual Premiums for New Issues SBLI $10,000 Life Paid-Up at 65*

Age	Male	Female	$5,000 Children's Rider
20	$102.00	$ 93.80	$25.00
25	122.00	111.50	25.00
30	148.70	135.10	25.00
35	186.10	168.00	25.00
40	239.50	215.40	25.00
45	319.00	286.80	25.00

*Life Paid-Up at 65 provides lifetime protection, but produces a paid-up policy at age 65. Premiums are higher than Whole Life, but cash values build more rapidly providing larger loan and surrender values. It pays annual dividends, as earned, beginning the first year. Policy No. L-8.

The children's rider may be attached to a permanent policy written on either the mother or the father. The maximum is $5,000 on each child and would cost a family $25.00 annually, regardless of the number of children being covered. Rider No. R-37.

Dividends Too

You can use your dividends to reduce your low cost SBLI premiums even further. These dividends are paid annually, as earned, starting at the end of the first year.

Pick Up the Free Booklet Soon

Even if you're not shopping for life insurance right now, stop by a nearby savings bank office for a free copy of our booklet sometime this week. Because it not only shows you our low rates. It also shows you how to compare our rates with the rates of others. You decide which is best.

Desk Items

THE DESK ACCESSORIES OF LEATHER IN this showroom are top-of-the-line, but the factory is moving, so you can buy everything at wholesale (half-price), while some discontinued pieces, showroom samples, and slightly damaged pieces are much cheaper yet. Almost everything we mention is available in leather embossed to look like American lizard, Karung snake, ostrich leather, genuine Ultrasuede, or smooth top-grain leather. Cabretta leather is slightly more expensive; calf is a bit more; and snakeskin and emu are the most expensive of all. A few scattered examples only: about twenty legal-size folders lined with Ultrasuede, retail $106 in cabretta, here $53; six-division desk directors in black lizard-embossed leather, retail $106, here $53; antique-gray leather memo trays, 4 by 6 in., retail $54, here $27; double pen set with Sheaffer White Dot ball pens, retail $124, here $62; black ostrich-embossed leather desk trays with cover, retail $136, here $68; 9½-by-13-in. cabretta address books lined in Ultrasuede, retail $58, here $29; pocket address books, retail $26, here $13; triple-fold desk sets in embossed leather, retail $210, here $105; and, in the sample department, only three desk consoles, in brown ostrich-embossed or gray lizard-embossed leather, or Ultrasuede, here $250; only three hand-inlaid leather chessboards, $50; only one folding combination desk director, in slate-blue Ultrasuede, here $275 (matching accessories are available); and more. Checks accepted; no credit cards; all sales final. Sybarite Limited, 18 West 18th St., fourth floor (675-4444); Mon.-Fri. 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; through 9/17.

Theater Guide

In this listing of movie theaters in the greater New York area, the Manhattan theaters are listed geographically; those in the Bronx, alphabetically; and those elsewhere, by locality. The number preceding each theater is used for cross-indexing the capsule reviews that follow.

Schedules are accurate at press time, but theater owners may make late program changes. Phone ahead and avoid disappointment and rage.

"I insist on convenient parking. Why shouldn't you?"

—Leona M. Helmsley
President

You don't have to put up with an ordinary Manhattan hotel that offers no parking, or uses somebody else's crowded lot.

At The Harley, New York's newest hotel, we can offer you enclosed, on-premises parking, so you never have to circle the block or hike in the rain.

And, if you think I'm fussy about your parking space, wait till you see your closet space.

We're going to be your favorite hotel.

You don't have to settle for an ordinary Manhattan hotel with a slow-motion staff and sour-faced service. For the same price you can stay at The Harley, New York's newest hotel.

I make sure that we hire sincere and courteous people who are happy to snap to it when there's something you want. The kind of service I appreciate, and you will, too. And, if you think I'm fussy about service, wait till you taste your food. We're going to be your favorite hotel.

"Physically the restaurant is a knockout."

"I'm very fond of the place and have nothing but admiration for its owner's valiant efforts to keep prices down."

"Seafood is given the big play at the restaurant, a number of alternatives are expertly turned out. The rack of baby lamb is first-rate, as is a well aged shell steak, broiled precisely to order."

You don't have to settle for an ordinary Manhattan hotel with a so-so manual control TV. For the same price you can stay at The Harley, New York's newest hotel. I've made sure that all 800 rooms have a big color TV with remote control. So you don't have to get up to change channels or say goodnight to Greta Garbo.

And, if you think I'm fussy about your television, wait till you try your bed.

We're going to be your favorite hotel.

New Films

★ New films recommended by New York's critic.

ANNIE—(2hrs. 8m., '82) Pulling together all the "elements," Ray Stark forgot to put any feelings in his mammoth production. What is Annie if not a sub-Dickensian sniffer about an abandoned little girl who wants to belong to someone? But Aileen Quinn, the red-haired, freckled lambkin chosen to play Annie, appears to have been directed to be happy and tough, so you don't feel a thing. The British choreographer Arlene Phillips stages energetic dance routines, closely coordinated with the camera, that are like the moving parts of a big machine—they don't express the characters' emotions either. Director John Huston, who is far removed from the emotional world of children, seems somewhat closer to the orphanage mistress, Miss Hannigan, played by Carol Burnett with a lower lip soft and loose, eyes staring wildly at any man who comes near. Burnett tries to carry the show by herself, and it's not her fault that she becomes monotonous. Albert Finney, thick-necked, with a shaved head and a bullying voice, makes a wonderful Oliver Warbucks—he shows you the soul breaking through the lumbering body. Music by Charles Strouse, lyrics by Martin Charnin. PG. 44, 90, 622, 720, 756, 829

★ BARBAROSA—(1hr. 30m., '82) Grizzled and bearded, Willie Nelson is the legendary scoundrel Barbarosa, and Gary Busey, huge and shapeless in overalls, is the farmboy-on-the-run, Karl; both men are locked in fratricidal combats against families they love. Wandering through the mountains and mesas on the Texas-Mexico border, the two make an unlikely but fascinating pair. Screenwriter William D. Wittliff and the great Australian director Fred Schepisi have spun out a wonderfully funny and beautiful tall tale. The movie has absurdities that nothing can excuse, but also an epic grandeur that never loses its wit and edge. With Gilbert Roland as a one-legged paterfamilias, sitting in a cave and growling, "Bring me his cojones on a stick!" PG. 32, 61, 92, 202, 225, 402, 531, 567, 606, 664, 709, 713, 748, 807, 862

BEST LITTLE WHOREHOUSE IN TEXAS, THE—(1hr. 54m., '82) Strenuous, affable, undistinguished musical in the Broadway-bucolic mode, Southern division. We know we're in the South because all the characters, created by Larry L. King and Peter Masterson, talk in this strange show-business dialect (i.e., Burt Reynolds, as a small-town sheriff, describes someone as "crazier than a peach-orchard's sow"). Dolly Parton, long-time madame of the Chicken Ranch, appears in sequined, low-cut dresses that reveal immense expanses of creamy white flesh. Smiling back at our leers, she's not a wisecracking Big Mama like Mae West but an obviously forthright, good-hearted woman. She's a bit too straight, perhaps, for Burt Reynolds; realizing that, he tries not to do his smart-ass thing around her, and they're both terribly earnest and a little dull. The musical numbers, routinely staged, display a great deal of flesh, but this movie about a cathouse doesn't have a single erotic moment. With Charles Durning, as the governor, skipping through the columns of the statehouse like a veteran song-and-dance man in the number, "Sidestep." Dir. Colin Higgins. R. 32, 99, 447, 504, 530, 535, 574, 622, 638, 655, 710, 720, 809, 818, 842, 848, 877

BIRGITT HAAS MUST BE KILLED—(1hr. 45m., '82) In French and German, Eng. subtitles. Philippe Noiret is outstanding as the head of a special French intelligence unit involved in a very dirty deal: The French have agreed to do away with a German terrorist, Birgitt Haas (Lisa Kreuzer), in return for some information from the West German police. They find themselves a patsy, affectingly played by Jean Rochefort, and set him up as Haas's lover in order to pin a phony "crime of passion" on him. The plot isn't too convincing, and the direction a little lousy, but Noiret brings depths of humanity and intelligence to his role—so much humanity that you wonder why he's doing this kind of dirty work. The movie passes the time. Dir. Laurent Heynemann. R. 20, 51

★ BOB LE FLAMBEUR—(1hr. 40m., '55) In French, Eng. subtitles. A great film, previously unreleased, perhaps the most perfectly controlled and witty work in the career of Jean-Pierre Melville, master formalist of the gangster film. His hero, Bob (Roger Duchesne), a silver-haired gambler, a man of superb judgment and taste, passes like a prince from one card game to another for a few hours before retiring at dawn. Bob is eventually drawn back into the criminal life he has forsaken—he makes a raid on the casino at Deauville—but the movie is essentially a celebration of personal style and a poem about lowlife Paris from midnight to dawn. With Isabel Corey and Daniel Cauchy. PG. 16, 97

★ CHAN IS MISSING—(1hr. 20m., '81) In this mystery story that becomes a meditation on Chinese-American identity all the characters are players in the comedy of assimilation. For Wayne Wang, the 33-year-old Hong Kong-born filmmaker who shot the movie in San Francisco for only $20,000, the cultural messiness of Chinese-American life is part of its comic glory. Jo (Wood Moy), a civilized, rueful, middle-aged cabbie, and his jivy nephew Steve (Marc Hayashi), hoping to get their own taxi medallion, have given their life savings—$4,000—to a Taiwanese businessman, Chan, who has connections. When Chan disappears with their loot, the two of them scour the community for the elusive immigrant, who has apparently meant something different to every person in Chinatown. Shot in black-and-white, with a ruminative narration (delivered by Jo), Chan Is Missing looks a little like a forties film noir, though in temperament the movie is closer to The Third Man, with its missing protagonist, or to one of Antonioni's philosophical puzzles in which the mystery evaporates in the face of the uncertainty of knowing anything for sure. A movie of great assurance and wit. 88, 559

CHILLY SCENES OF WINTER—(1hr. 32m., '82) Joan Micklin Silver has re-edited her 1979 film, Head Over Heels, and restored the title of Ann Beattie's novel, a contemporary romance, from which it is based. With John Heard, Mary Beth Hurt, Peter Riegert and Gloria Grahame. PG. 16, 90

★ CHOSEN, THE—(1hr. 48m., '82) Surprisingly solid, intelligent and satisfying. At the end of World War II, in Brooklyn, two clever, learned Jewish boys, sons of immigrants, become friends. Reuven Malter (Barry Miller), a shrewd, guarded streetwise kid, is the son of a professor and writer on Jewish affairs (Maximilian Schell). Danny Saunders (Robby Benson), tall, stern, with curly sidelocks, a Hasid from a long line of rabbis, has been raised in silence by his awesome father, the white-bearded patriarch Reb Saunders (Rod Steiger). The movie is devoted to the struggle between the assimilated Jews and the fiercely sectarian ones, to the contrasting joys of American secular life and the grave ecstasies of the Hasidic milieu, a culture so serious about ideas that a boy's reading the "wrong" books (Freud instead of the Talmud) is a major scandal. Adapting Chaim Potok's novel, director Jeremy Paul Kagan and screenwriter Edwin Gordon hit the right note of awe and skepticism in their portrait of the Hasidim. It's a sweetly serious movie, extremely well-acted, with respect for its subject and its audience. PG. 14, 58, 234, 417, 537, 552, 558, 625, 632, 657, 700, 719, 723, 754, 813, 852, 878

CIAO! MANHATTAN—(1hr. 26m., '73) Virtually unreleased to date, a semi-documentary portrait of Andy Warhol superstar Edie Sedgwick. Dir. John Palmer and David Weisman. 16, 236

CLASS OF 1984—(1hr. 33m., '82) A teacher tries to stop violent students from taking over their own high school. With Perry King, Rodney McDowall, Timothy Van Patten and Merrie Lynn Ross. Dir. Mark Lester. R. 41, 78, 401, 420, 428, 439, 512, 513, 533, 541, 666, 747, 864, 867

COUNTRYMAN—(1hr. 43m., '82) The adventures of a Jamaican mystic. Music by Bob Marley. With "Countryman" and Carl Bradshaw. Dir. Dickie Johnson. R. 7

★ DAS BOOT—(2hrs. 30m., '82) In German, Eng. subtitles; dubbed version. Life in the bilgy hell of a German U-boat in World War II. This technically astonishing German-made production is heroic in a somber way—fear and the expectation of death hang over everything, and the only real jubilation comes when the men survive another day's fighting. The director, Wolfgang Petersen, does all he can to make you feel you're inside the sub—the soundtrack registers everything, from tiny tremors to terrifying depth-charge blasts off the port bow. Petersen whips through the narrow compartments, and you see hams hanging, men sacked out on the floor, and you sense the stink of fear and filth. It's a thrillingly physical movie. With Jürgen Prochnow as the quietly charismatic captain, a man so alert to the life of his boat that he commands with only a few words. R. 33, 448, 535, 541, 545, 550, 625, 630, 706, 719, 793, 803, 830

★ DINER—(1hr. 50m., '82) A beautifully achieved first film—an autobiography—by comedy writer Barry Levinson. It's Baltimore in 1959, and a mixed group of Jewish and Catholic buddies in their early twenties stay up Friday nights comparing notes on girls, lapping up French fries at their favorite diner, and tearing around town on some sort of stupid but exhilarating errand. Levinson's view of himself and his friends is a delicately balanced mixture of satire and warm appreciation. Half infantile, half middle-aged, the men exist in that peculiar existential vacuum so typical of the fifties. They are devoted to pranks, jokes and their friendships with each other, and they keep women, whom they fear and don't understand, out on the edges. Levinson has caught the low-brow Jewish scholasticism of the fifties—the fabulous knowledge of pop music and sports that took over whole lives. And he's caught the sexual panic that propelled men into marriage without experience or love. In its casual way, the movie is devastating. Starring an outstanding group of young actors: Kevin Bacon, Mickey Rourke, Steve Guttenberg, Timothy Daly, Paul Reiser and Daniel Stern. R. 6, 50, 93, 201, 232, 447, 503, 529, 535, 554, 625, 629, 666, 702, 724, 782, 793, 795, 800, 830, 841

★ DIVA—(2hrs. 3m., '82) In French, Eng. subtitles. There's a rapturous pop beauty in this romantic chase thriller, the first film directed by Jean-Jacques Beineix and one of the most audacious and original movies to come out of France in recent years. It's about a dreamy, love-struck Parisian postman (Frederic Andrei) who falls in love with an American black opera singer (Wilhemina Wiggins Fernandez). The postman makes an illegal tape of one of the diva's concerts; he also comes into possession of a tape incriminating a Paris cop. People keep trying to kill him to get both of these tapes and he has no reason why. Beineix, who adapted a novel by French crime writer Delacorte with screenwriter Jean Van Hamme, provides enough plot to keep things moving, but the real point of Diva is to have fun making a movie. The picture is a mad combination of ritzy magazine graphics and intentionally cheap junk-movie melodrama. Much of it is intentionally absurd yet extraordinarily beautiful or funny. The postman is menaced by thugs who are dreamlike archetypes; he's saved by a sort of Zen fairy godfather, cooler than Bogart, who shows up in his classic white Citroën at moments of danger. Silly? Only if you're indifferent to visual design and to the comedy of junk-movie archetypes bouncing off each other. R. 55

DON'S PARTY—(1hr. 30m., '77) Rancid Australian movie by Bruce Beresford about a group of men and women who drink themselves into swinishness at an election night party. The picture is derivative of Pinter, Fellini, Antonioni, Albee, and about a dozen other people, and it's a dispiriting, ugly experience, clichéd rather than illuminating, smarmy rather than funny. 39

★ E.T. THE EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL—(1hr. 55m., '82) Steven Spielberg's masterpiece, and one of the most beautiful fantasy-adventure movies ever made. Accidentally left behind by outer-space visitors, a smallish-brown creature, brilliant but physically vulnerable, takes refuge in the bedroom of a ten-year-old boy in the California suburbs. The boy, Elliott (Henry Thomas), aided by his big brother, Michael (Robert Macnaughton), and his gravely beautiful little sister, Gertie (Drew Barrymore) secretly cares for the extra-terrestrial (E.T., for short) as if it were a peculiarly intelligent wild animal. The story, written by Melissa Mathison from an idea of Spielberg's, is similar, in outline, to a number of classic child-and-animal tales, but Spielberg has filled it out with astounding and often hilarious moment-by-moment detail. He makes physical beauty dramatically exciting, and in the last three-quarters of an hour he holds the audience in so powerful a grip that one has to go back forty years or more for comparisons. What fuses the movie's separate moods is the sense that children have special qualities of mind and character—generosity, concern—that adults don't have. Carlo Rambaldi created E.T.; the soaring music is by John Williams. PG. 21, 36, 72, 103, 109, 201, 206, 210, 212, 221, 306, 307, 401, 403, 413, 414, 420, 428, 512, 528, 533, 536, 567, 571, 573, 601, 608, 625, ★ GREGORY'S GIRL—(1hr. 31m., '82) A charmingly innocent comedy about teenagers in a "new town" outside Glasgow, Scotland. Gregory (Gordon John Sinclair), a boy who has grown six inches in the last year and doesn't know what to do with his long legs, falls in love with a blonde girl (Dee Hepburn) at his school. She is so athletic that she gets on the boys' soccer team, which no one seems to mind much. Gregory pursues her gamely, repairing to his ten-year-old sister for advice. Writer-director Bill Forsyth has either created a fantasy world or discovered a corner of the globe where children grow up normally; the movie is sweet, benign, often very funny. With Clare Grogan. PG. 86

HOMEWORK—(1hr. 31m., '82) Erotic comedy about first experiences and high school. With Joan Collins, Shell Kepler, Lee Purcell and Carrie Snodgrass. Dir. James Beshears. R. 38, 70, 109, 206, 305, 403, 428, 513, 529, 651, 702, 728, 755, 784, 827, 857, 878

INCHON!—(1hr. 46m., '82) The recreation of General MacArthur's famed invasion during the Korean War. With Jacqueline Bisset, Ben Gazzara, Toshiro Mifune, Richard Roundtree and Sir Laurence Olivier. Dir. Terence Young. PG. 30, 70, 82, 104, 114, 206, 225, 308, 401, 413, 420, 423, 450, 536, 541, 566, 604, 616, 621, 625, 629, 632, 637, 702, 721, 728, 735, 791, 803, 819, 867, 879

INCUBUS, THE—(1hr. 30m., '82) A contemporary occult-horror story. With John Cassavetes, John Ireland, Kerrie Keane and Helen Hughes. Dir. John Hough. R. 14, 37, 103, 201, 203, 234, 306, 412, 418, 424, 448, 511, 518, 541, 552, 567, 600, 617, 627, 643, 658, 714, 727, 730, 742, 745, 777, 803, 806, 811, 854, 879

JOSEPHA—(1hr. 54m., '82) In French, Eng. subtitles. A young actress, her actor husband, and an attractive millionaire form a love triangle in the contemporary film and theater world of France. With Miou-Miou, Claude Brasseur and Bruno Cremer. Dir. Christopher Frank. R. 56

KINGS OF THE ROAD—(2hrs. 56m., '76) In German, Eng. subtitles. Wim Wenders's engaging yet exasperating epic of two inarticulate young men wandering through the dull landscape of modern Germany. Bruno (Rüdiger Vogler), a self-sufficient and whimsical movie-projector repairman, picks up Robert (Hanns Zischler), a linguist whose marriage has just broken up. Together they drift from nowhere to nowhere, floating in the moody soulfulness of seemingly all recent West German films. The inanity isn't banal, but it isn't hip either. Kings of the Road is an epitaph for the kind of classical narrative Wenders cannot or will not make. Virtually unreleased to date. 2

LA VIE CONTINUE—(1hr. 33m., '82) In French, Eng. subtitles. Serious, heartfelt, but minor. Annie Girardot, in her late forties, comfortably married and with two children, is forced to remake her life when her husband drops dead of a heart attack. The movie faithfully chronicles the difficulties of facing men again, of having a "personal life" after years of marriage, and of finding a job and earning a living. The elegant Jean-Pierre Cassell turns up as a bicycle repairman (!), and the two have an uncertain affair. The veteran Pierre Dux is also on hand as a melancholy Jew who imparts his wisdom to the heroine. The movie's earnestness is borderline cliché—a little more anger and life and less wishfulness might have made it a better movie. Dir. Moshe Mizrahi. PG. 213, 559, 886

L'ADOLESCENTE—(1hr. 33., '82) In French, Eng. subtitles. A young girl grows into a woman in France on the eve of World War II. With Simone Signoret. Dir. Jeanne Moreau. 60

★ LE BEAU MARIAGE—(1hr. 37m., '82) In French, Eng. subtitles. Sabine (Béatrice Romand), an art student living in Le Mans and studying in Paris, walks out on her married lover, a famous painter, and announces that she is going to get married. She doesn't know whom she's going to marry, only that she's had it as a single woman. When she meets Edmond (André Dussollier), a Paris lawyer, at a party, she decides he's the one, and she lays siege to him. Sabine is exasperatingly self-approving, and our attitudes toward her keep changing. The writer-director Eric Rohmer must mean us to find her slightly mad in her single-minded willfulness yet ultimately brave and even noble. She risks everything, and, at times, her humiliation is great. As always, Rohmer's method is analytic and gently ironic. His movies are all talk, and when you're watching them they seem slightly underdone. Afterwards you realize he's given you some of the most satisfying portraits of men and women flirting and falling in or out of love that you've ever seen. PG. 62

LOLA—(1hr. 54m., '82) In German, Eng. subtitles. Rainer Werner Fassbinder's acridly entertaining gloss on The Blue Angel is set in Coburg, a small city in Bavaria, during the Adenauer years—the years of the economic miracle. Lola (Barbara Sukowa), a singer-prostitute, is the mistress of the corrupt building contractor Schuckert (Mario Adorf), a noisy bear of a man about 50, who takes his pleasure with the roaring enthusiasm of a German Henry VIII. Eager for respectability, Lola sets about seducing a new city commissioner, the aristocratic Von Bohm (Armin Mueller-Stahl), whose approval Schuckert needs for a new housing complex. Sukowa, a defiantly unsensual actress, stands on the club stage in her skimpy outfits, rasping out her numbers in hip German-night-club style—guttural, insinuating, "angry." When Von Bohm falls into Lola's clutches, the movie gets predictably anguished and mawkish, but then Schuckert shows up again and restores the jovially cynical tone. One of the most approachable of Fassbinder's movies. With Matthias Fuchs as a stock figure—a defeated idealist making dolorous poetic remarks. R. 86, 537, 878

MEPHISTO—(2hrs. 15m., '82) In German, Eng. subtitles. A whirling, shrieking Klaus Maria Brandauer overacts brilliantly as the German actor, Hendrik Höfgen, who rises from provincial celebrity in Hamburg to become star player and manager of the Prussian State Theater, in Berlin, under the watchful eyes of the Nazis. This Hungarian production, directed by Istvan Szabo, is a study in ambition, intelligence, and moral defeat. Höfgen is always performing—in life, as well as on the stage, he acts out whatever he needs to say or feel in order to get ahead. And so he becomes hollow—the master of the secondhand opinion, the faked commonplace. Szabo jumps through Höfgen's career, his private life, his shift from aesthetic radicalism to philistinism. The superb German actor Rolf Hoppe adds to the stature of the film as a sinister Göring-type minister. Adapted from the novel by Klaus Mann (son of Thomas) which was based on the career of the great German actor Gustaf Grunigens. 16, 93, 534, 536, 625, 657, 707, 782, 858

★ MY DINNER WITH ANDRE—(1hr. 50m., '81) A high-powered bull session, held in a posh French restaurant, between playwright-actor Wallace Shawn, and avant-garde theater director André Gregory. The "action" consists of Gregory's account of his recent spiritual adventures and Shawn's resistance to everything that Gregory stands for. They represent opposing philosophical points of view: Gregory the restless, foolish, ambitious seeker after transcendental experience, Shawn the defender of everyday life—the newspaper in the morning, a cup of coffee lying on the table from the night before that remains blissfully free of dead roaches. It's all talk, and, despite Gregory's fatuous comparison of himself to a concentration camp victim, good talk. You may be irritated, but you won't be bored. Dir. Louis Malle. 86

NEST, THE—(1hr. 49m., '81) In Spanish, Eng. subtitles. A 13-year-old Spanish schoolgirl with haunting dark eyes (Ana Torrent) snares a rich, fiftish widower (Hector Alterio), a sheepish fellow who has never done anything with his life. The widower never consummates his passion for the girl, but he comes to life for the first time. An ironic tale that borrows elements from Macbeth, The Nest never quite comes up to speed. The director, Jaime de Arminan, seems to be teasing himself with possibilities that bolder artists—Nabokov, Buñuel, Blier—have triumphantly realized. 73

NIGHT SHIFT—(1hr. 45m., '82) An entertaining farce with too much TV blandness. Charles Lumley (Henry Winkler), a conservative and repressed young attendant on the night shift at the city morgue, gets stuck working with Billy Blazejowski (Michael Keaton), a maniacal but harmless hustler. Billy gets Chuck to go along with a wild scheme to turn the silent morgue into a call-girl operation. Winkler's precisely styled deadpan and Keaton's fuzzy ebullience go well together, and the two stars prevent the underdeveloped, overly genteel touch of screenwriters Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel from eliminating the movie's comic potential. Director Ron Howard has excellent timing; if he leaves TV sitcoms for good, he might really soar. With Shelley Long. R. 450, 513, 547, 639, 658, 800, 868

OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN, AN—(2hrs. 6m., '82) Shrewd, entertaining updating of a genre that flourished forty years ago, the armed-service romance. Richard Gere stars in the Tyrone Power role—the selfish loner who is chastened and humbled in the navy's basic training and becomes a caring human being; the charming David Keith is his buddy, an honorable Southerner from a military family; and Debra Winger and Lisa Blount are the "Puget debs"—working-class Catholic girls who cross the Puget Sound in search of husbands among the future officers. Douglas Day Stewart has given the movie both the narrative strength of old Hollywood films and also their reassuring moral universe. Taylor Hackford's direction is conventional but self-assured and proficient; the movie has undeniable electricity, even though its sexual morality feels musty. Featuring Louis Gossett Jr. as the tough drill sergeant—a classic performance in a very clichéd tradition. R. 23, 31, 60, 104, 111, 113, 205, 223, 231, 303, 411, 419, 423, 426, 450, 517, 519, 529, 531, 540, 567, 573, 603, 608, 620, 640, 648, 663, 664, 668, 701, 706, 714, 716, 719, 722, 732, 746, 751, 775, 783, 789, 792, 793, 796, 807, 811, 830, 853, 862, 878, 884

PIAF—THE EARLY YEARS—(1hr. 44m., '82) In French, Eng. subtitles. The formative years in the life of the great chanteuse, Edith Piaf. With Brigitte Ariel. Dir. Guy Casaril. PG. 62

PINK FLOYD THE WALL—(1hr. 35m., '82) It sets a new record in rock pretentiousness, which isn't easy. As a burnt-out rocker sits in his L.A. hotel room, staring at the tube, images of rioting, war, terror, death, plus tons of Gerald Scarfe's looming, ominous drawings, animated into plants that fornicate, come after you like a nightmare that won't end. A groupie tries to rouse the rock star, but he ignores her and smashes the TV set. And more, much more, all in the stoned-apocalyptic vein. Music by Pink Floyd; directed by the staggeringly uneven Alan Parker. R. 45, 775, 782, 793

★ POLTERGEIST—(2hrs., '82) Sensationally effective haunted-house movie produced by Steven Spielberg, directed by Tobe Hooper. It's about an ordinary American family living in a suburban house haunted by ghosts, and it's played for sensation, horror, and weirdly beautiful floating effects. Poltergeist is scary but not sadistic, violent but not bloody (except for one short scene). With Craig T. Nelson as the daddy; theater actress Jobeth Williams, turning on the emotion, as the mother who literally goes into hell to get her little daughter back; Beatrice Straight as a para-psychologist; and Zelda Rubinstein as a midget clairvoyant. The story is nonsense, but much of the horror imagery is beautiful, and Spielberg's humorous appreciation of the American family humanizes the movie. PG. 38, 58, 208, 212, 213, 413, 416, 447, 516, 526, 567, 570, 609, 613, 625, 631, 636, 643, 709, 745, 774, 817, 860, 861, 863

ROAD WARRIOR, THE—(1hr. 34m., '82) The Bomb has been dropped, and we're in the Great Nowhere—the Australian desert—a land without shade, color, or comfort. Eager to protect their fuel, a few survivors have barricaded themselves into a compound surrounding a refinery. Outside, a roving gang of marauders on motorcycles rapes and pillages, and finally lays siege to the compound. Almost the whole movie consists of chases and gladiatorial combats. Cars tumble over and burst into flames, bodies are incinerated or flung through the air. The director, George Miller, has taken the materials of the American Western and Kurosawa films like Yojimbo and The Seven Samurai and transferred them to this post-apocalyptic wilderness, and he's dressed his characters in leather and Mohawk haircuts, mixing the style of three or four junk cultures (biker, punk, S&M), trying to come up with something outlandish for the midnight-movie kids. It's a brutally monotonous movie that wears you down. Starring Mel Gibson as the loner-outsider hero, Max, who saves the people in the compound. R. 7, 24, 37, 71, 83, 92, 104, 111, 303, 401, 403, 412, 420, 500, 512, 541, 548, 554, 567, 602, 616, 635, 640, 642, 650, 653, 663, 702, 708, 714, 717, 745, 777, 782, 785, 807, 822, 858, 878

ROCKY III—(1hr. 39m., '82) Having been champ for three years, Rocky (Sylvester Stallone) has grown soft. He's being stalked by a new challenger—Clubber Lang (played by the actor known as Mr. T.), a 230-pound black boxer with a Mohawk haircut, an intimidating sneer, and murder in his eyes. He's so vicious, pawing the ground with his hooves and blowing smoke out of his ears, that he actually succeeds in making massive Sylvester Stallone look like an underdog. When Clubber defeats the champ in two rounds, Rocky is taught by his old rival Apollo Creed (Carl Weathers) to fight like a black man. So white and black join hands to defeat the uncontrollable black menace. The movie both exploits racial fears and smooths them away. The soundtrack is deafening, and visually the movie is all hyperbole—either violent montages, with bodies falling in agony and crowds boiling in ecstasy, or supertight close-ups of actors sweating, crying, cursing, imploring. R. 30, 72, 80, 97, 114, 205, 210, 304, 410, 411, 426, 518, 531, 558, 567, 570, 604, 621, 626, 714, 727, 735, 758, 777, 784, 790, 807, 841, 873, 878

STAR TREK II: THE WRATH OF KHAN—(1hr. 53m., '82) Nicholas Meyer, the director, has camped up the material enough so that it's now marginally enjoyable, but he still hasn't made a movie. The actors run up and down corridors in the same old story about the world almost coming to an end, and it's TV all the way. That scintillating group of players is back, every one of them—William Shatner as Kirk, looking more than ever like a California dentist in his tight-fitting space jacket; Leonard Nimoy, of the Caligula eyebrows and the steeped ears; the incomparable DeForest Kelley; James Doohan, George Takei and Nichelle Nichols. Nimoy and Kelley exchange huffy looks like hatcheck girls vying to serve a big tipper, and Shatner is slightly less wooden than in the 1979 Star Trek: The Motion Picture, but none of the others actually does anything. There is, however, a ripely absurd camp performance by Ricardo Montalban as the maleficent Khan. Passable special effects. Still, the movie is strictly for Trekkies. PG. 11, 42, 208, 236, 436, 612, 628

★ TEMPEST—(2hrs. 20m., '82) Paul Mazursky's most ambitious film fails as an updated version of Shakespeare's The Tempest, but it's still a most entertaining movie. Mazursky and co-writer Leon Capetanos have changed Shakespeare's Prospero, the deposed Duke of Milan, into a contemporary New York architect (John Cassavetes) who undergoes a mid-life crisis. The architect withdraws from his life and escapes with his daughter (the enchanting Molly Ringwald), and his girlfriend (Susan Sarandon) to a beautiful

Greek island. He's happy doing the André Gregory bit—playing the mad ascetic wizard—but his charges feel like prisoners. The movie turns into a comic fantasia on the themes of middle-aged blues and adolescent restlessness, lust and frustration, with Raul Julia getting most of the laughs as Kalibanos, a very greasy Greek. Then, as Mazursky flashes back to the architect's life in New York, the movie shifts into a more serious tone, and there are gritty, angry scenes of marital discord between Cassavetes and Gena Rowlands. It ends in a gigantic storm and a magical tango that sweeps up all the characters. A mess, but a joyful mess, full of dances, songs, jokes, beautiful nonsense. With Vittorio Gassman as a mafioso and Jackie Gayle as a terrible stand-up comic. R. 74, 85

WAITRESS!—(1hr. 25m., '82) A raunchy comedy about the employees of an expensive East Side restaurant. With Jim Harris and Carol Drake. Dir. Samuel Weil and Michael Herz. R. 41, 70, 78, 97, 109, 114, 201, 206, 210, 212, 213, 233, 304, 401, 403, 413, 428, 439, 447, 448, 512, 526, 536, 541, 549, 554, 555, 608, 625, 632, 635, 642, 651, 702, 708, 709, 714, 717, 719, 727, 747, 750, 857, 864, 871, 873, 875, 877

WORLD ACCORDING TO GARP, THE—(2hrs. 14m., '82) Violent and sentimental, ambitious but muddled. Screenwriter Steve Tesich has held to the outline of John Irving's popular 1978 novel. Once again, the sex-hating nurse, Jenny Fields (Glenn Close), raises her bastard son, T.S. Garp (Robin Williams), at an exclusive prep school, and once again Garp falls in love with Helen (Mary Beth Hurt), the daughter of the wrestling coach, and struggles to be a serious writer at the same time that Jenny is enjoying a huge success with her feminist autobiography. The events of the story are widely spaced in time, and Tesich has tried to hold them together with recurring symbols and a pattern of disaster and mutilation. The results feel arbitrary and jerky—it's a movie without any natural flow. Glenn Close triumphs in her thankless role, and John Lithgow, as a transsexual, is touching and funny, but the other actors are at sea, abandoned by directorial uncertainty. George Roy Hill can't find a style suitable for the grotesque fate that overcomes nearly all the characters. He traffics in catastrophe without passion or anguish or black-comedy exuberance, and the picture feels weightless, repressed, and empty. R. 22, 32, 48, 92, 206, 225, 307, 402, 420, 519, 523, 541, 557, 561, 606, 630, 640, 642, 651, 667, 706, 708, 709, 717, 732,

YOUNG DOCTORS IN LOVE—(1hr. 36m., '82) A comedy-romance that parodies hospital soap operas. With Michael McKean, Sean Young, Patrick MacNee and Dabney Coleman. Dir. Garry Marshall. R. 32, 97, 105, 211, 436, 530, 532, 542, 549, 555, 621, 641, 645, 660, 666, 731, 735, 818, 829, 848

ZAPPED!—(1hr. 36m., '82) A comedy about a high school genius who develops telekinetic powers. With Scott Baio, Willie Aames and Scatman Crothers. Dir. Robert J. Rosenthal. R. 35, 54, 99, 408, 412, 503, 513, 521, 532, 541, 542, 544, 547, 550, 567, 635, 640, 645, 658, 666, 706, 773, 791, 798, 806, 809, 822, 878, 883

Revivals

AIDA—(1hr. 36m., '54) A cinematic adaptation of the Verdi opera. With Sophia Loren (the voice of Renata Tebaldi). Dir. Clementi Fracassi. 44

AMARCORD—(2hrs. 7m., '74) In Italian, Eng. subtitles. Fellini's best movie in recent years is an autobiographical piece about life in a small Italian city—Fellini's hometown—during the Fascist period. The anecdotes are delicately comic and sad, and the picture is split between regret and nostalgia. 47

ANNIE HALL—(1hr. 33m., '77) Woody Allen's finest achievement, an almost perfect blending of satire and romance. This was the first movie in which Woody jettisoned his shlump character and turned loose his aggression. At the time, the effect was exhilarating. Co-starring Diane Keaton as the Minnesota girl who comes to Manhattan. 9, 849

BAND OF OUTSIDERS—(1hr. 35m., '66) In French, Eng. subtitles. One of Jean-Luc Godard's best. Three young people (Anna Karina, Sammy Frey, Claude Brasseur) play at love and crime, pretending to be characters in a movie, and by degrees they are drawn into actual crimes. Lyrical, witty, finally shocking. 10

BREATHLESS—(1hr. 29m., '61) In French, Eng. subtitles. Jean-Luc Godard's astonishing first feature with Jean-Paul Belmondo as the amoral hoodlum/stud and the late Jean Seberg as his faithless American girlfriend. Godard transformed American B-movie clichés into poetic lyricism, and American and French movies resounded with the shock of his innovations throughout the sixties. 10

CAMILLE—(1hr. 25m., '36) The utterly bewildering title for The Lady of the Camellias, starring, of course, Greta Garbo, who is such an incandescent actress she can even make us believe she would die of love for Robert Taylor. Standard MGM script and supporting players. Dir. George Cukor. 89

GASLIGHT—(1hr. 52m., '44) A romantic melodrama that's become a staple of TV comics ("the Gaslight bit") and is still hugely entertaining. A dishy Charles Boyer tries to drive his rich, fragile wife (Ingrid Bergman) crazy in a creamily photographed turn-of-the-century London setting. With a teenage minx named Angela Lansbury. Dir. George Cukor. 89

HAIR—(1hr. 58m., '79) Milos Forman has turned the sixties musical into an audacious, imposing, challenging work, better than the original. With John Savage and Treat Williams. 62

LA CAGE AUX FOLLES—(1hr. 39m., '79) In French, Eng. subtitles. Ugo Tognazzi as a homosexual nightclub owner in St. Tropez and Michel Serrault as his longtime lover star in this smash-hit boulevard farce. Tognazzi's son wants to marry the daughter of the most respectable family in France. The family comes to dinner, and disaster occurs. The actors are extremely skilled, and the movie, though frequently coarse, is never dull. Dir. Édouard Molinaro. 46, 788

LAST TANGO IN PARIS—(2hrs. 9m., '73) About sex, love, and death, this purports to be a social document, eroticism at its best, and a work of art, but fails at all three despite fancy positions and posturings. Marlon Brando's performance reaches great eloquence in his extended monologues. Maria Schneider is his frizzy-haired partner. Dir. Bernardo Bertolucci. 2, 57

MANHATTAN—(1hr. 33m., '79) Woody Allen's pessimistic comedy about the way selfish New Yorkers screw themselves out of happiness by wanting too much. Featuring gorgeous young Mariel Hemingway as the Dalton student Woody has an affair with, and Diane Keaton, at her best, as a tense intellectual journalist unsure of what she wants. Black-and-white photography by Gordon Willis; music by Gershwin. 9, 849

NORTH BY NORTHWEST—(2hrs. 16m., '59) Hitchcock at the peak of his powers. A big, long, and colorful—but never for a moment dull or humorless—suspense story starring Cary Grant as an innocent New York ad man mistaken for a spy and sought for murder, Eva Marie Saint as a blonde seductress up to no good, and James Mason as the suave and heartless bad guy. The great crop-dusting scene alone is worth the price of admission. 39

PÉPÉ LE MOKO—(1hr. 15m., '37) In French, Eng. subtitles. Julien Duvivier's romantic film, with Jean Gabin as a criminal who is safe as long as he stays in the Casbah of Algiers and Mireille Balin as the beautiful Parisian who tempts him to a dangerous freedom. Highly atmospheric, and highly recommended. 95

PRODUCERS, THE—(1hr. 26m., '68) Sweetly hapless Gene Wilder and gargantuan Zero Mostel work this farce about a Broadway investment scam industriously, and almost into the ground. There are a number of funny moments, notably the famous Springtime for Hitler musical, but you may wonder what the cult for this movie is all about. Dir. Mel Brooks. 89

SERPICO—(2hrs. 10m., '73) Sidney Lumet's exciting, slightly demagogic bio of policeman Frank Serpico, a natural hipster and truth-teller surrounded by the corrupt New York Police Department of the early seventies. A galvanizing performance by Al Pacino. 39

STAR WARS—(2hrs. 1m., '77) The George Lucas winner, which can be enjoyed, depending on your age and predilection, as a grand romantic adventure or a parody of Buck Rogers-type serials. The best scene: the intergalactic bar, where the furry, snouted, and clawed flotsam and jetsam of a hundred stars come to rub elbows. Starring Mark Hamill, Harrison Ford, Carrie Fisher and Alec Guinness. 32, 641, 879

TAKE THE MONEY AND RUN—(1hr. 25m., '69) Woody Allen's early comedy in the classic tradition is quintessential Allen, beautifully compact and simply rib-cracking fun. 95

THRONE OF BLOOD—(1hr. 45m., '57) In Japanese, Eng. subtitles. A powerful, stark samurai tragedy—Macbeth set in sixteenth-century Japan. Starring Toshiro Mifune and Isuzu Yamada. Dir. Akira Kurosawa. 47

YOJIMBO—(1hr. 50m., '62) In Japanese, Eng. subtitles. Top entertainment on many levels, set in a mountain village in the 1860s and packed with drama, humor, and satire of the stupidities and evils of war. The direction and acting are magnificent. With the marvelous Toshiro Mifune. Dir. Akira Kurosawa. 47

Previews and Openings

Monday, September 13

A DOLL'S LIFE—George Hearn and Betsy Joslyn star in a new musical by Betty Comden and Adolph Green which shows what happens to Nora after she slams the door in Ibsen's A Doll's House. Harold Prince directs and the music is by Larry Grossman. Previews now prior to a 9/23 opening. Preview prices: Mon.-Thurs. at 8, Sat. at 2, $20-$30. Fri. & Sat. at 8, $25-$35; Wed. at 2, $15-$22.50. From 10/4: Mon.-Thurs. at 8, Sat. at 2, $22.50-$35; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $27.50-$40; Wed. at 2, $17.50-$27.50. Mark Hellinger, 51st & Broadway (757-7004). 2 hrs., 10 min. All major credit cards.

THE QUEEN AND THE REBELS—A revival of Ugo Betti's play about a frontier incident in a country ravished by revolution, concerning a refugee queen and a prostitute with a heart of gold. Colleen Dewhurst stars, with Peter Michael Goetz, Scott Hylands, and Betty Miller; directed by Waris Hussein. A Circle in the Square production. Previews now prior to a 9/30 opening. Tues.-Fri. at 8, Wed. & Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3; $20-$27; Sat. at 8, $21-$30; thru 11/7. Plymouth, 236 W. 45th (730-1760). 2 hrs., 10 min. All major credit cards.

Now Playing

AGNES OF GOD—John Pielmeier's play, starring Elizabeth Ashley, Amanda Plummer, and Geraldine Page, set in a convent, about a young nun who gives birth there and whose child is murdered to avoid a possible scandal; directed with skill and fine visual imagination by Michael Lindsay-Hogg. Mon.-Thurs. at 8, $19-$27.50; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $22.50-$30; Wed. at 2, $19-$25; Sat. at 2, $21.50-$27.50. Music Box, 239 W. 45th St. (246-4636). 2 hrs., 10 min. All major credit cards.

AMADEUS—Frank Langella, Dennis Boutsikaris, and Suzanne Lederer in a play by Peter Shaffer, set in Vienna, about the love-hate relationship between Mozart and Salieri. Peter Hall has directed with all his customary shrewdness and showmanship, and John Bury's scenery, costumes and lighting couldn't be more apt and inventive. Tues.-Sat. at 8, Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3, $22.50-$35; Wed. at 2, $20-$30. Broadhurst, 235 W. 44th (247-0472). 2 hrs., 35 min. All major credit cards. ●

ANNIE—Given such surefire ingredients as a chorus line of moppets, a Christmas tree, and a dog called Sandy — only a churl could cavil even if Thomas Meehan's book is a far cry from Harold Grey's comic-strip. Charles Strouse wrote the score, Alyson Kirk is the new Annie, Marcia Lewis is Miss Hannigan, and Harve Presnell is Daddy Warbucks, and Sandy is still Sandy. Wed. & Thurs. at 8, Sun. at 6:45, Sat. & Sun. at 2, $20-$30; Fri. at 8, Sat. at 6:45, $21-$30; Wed. at 2, $16-$30. Uris, 51st St. W. of B'dway (586-6510). All major credit cards. ●●

A CHORUS LINE—Every generation needs its own backstage legend, and this is a worthy descendant of the great 1933 film classic 42nd St. Out of the real-life words of chorus-line aspirants, James Kirkwood and Nicholas Dante have fashioned a shiny romance, and it bounces agreeably off Marvin Hamlisch's paper-thin score. Mon.-Thurs. at 8, $25-$35; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $30-$40; Wed. & Sat. at 2, $25-$35; Shubert, 225 W. 44th (239-6200). 2 hrs., 15 mins. All major credit cards. ●●

CRIMES OF THE HEART—Beth Henley's 1981 Pulitzer Prize-winning play set in a Mississippi town revolving around three sisters. With J. Smith-Cameron, Caryn West, Tim Choate, and Kathy Danzer; directed by Melvin Bernhardt. One of those rare plays about a family love that you can believe and participate in, because it is never sappy or cloying, but rather irreverently prankish and funny. The acting is enchanting throughout. Tues.-Sat. at 8, Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3, $20-$30; Wed. at 2, $16-$25. John Golden, 252 W. 45th (246-6740). 2 hrs., 45 min. Credit cards.

DREAMGIRLS—Musical with book and lyrics by Tom Eyen about a group of singers, with the story starting in the early 60s and running thru the early 70s. Music by Henry Krieger, directed by Michael Bennett. An inventive, entertaining, and beautifully performed musical, with a group of talented young people. Mon.-Thurs. at 8, Sat. at 2, $25-$40; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $32.50-$40; Wed. at 2, $25-$40. Imperial, 249 W. 45th (239-6200). 2 hrs., 10 min. Credit cards.

EVITA—Loni Ackerman is the latest lady who simply seduced a nation in this excellent Tim Rice/Andrew Lloyd Webber musical; directed by Hal Prince. With Anthony Crivello and David Cryer. Nancy Opel stars at matinees. Mon.-Thurs. at 8, $20-$37.50; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $20-$40; Wed. at 2, $14.50-$30; Sat. at 2, $20-$35. Sun. matinees at 3 start 9/21 and final Mon. perf. is 9/13. Broadway, Broadway at 53rd (247-3600). 2 hrs., 20 mins. Major credit cards. ●●

42ND STREET—Millicent Martin, Jerry Orbach, Lisa Brown, Leroy Reams, and Carol Swarbrick in a new musical based on the novel by Bradford Ropes which was made into the 1933 Warner Bros. film classic about producing a musical on Broadway. Consensus terms this production and cast pure gold and the crowning achievement of the late Gower Champion. Book: Michael Stewart & Mark Bramble. Music: Harry Warren. Lyrics: Al Dubin. Mon.-Thurs. at 8, Sat. at 2, $20-$40; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $23-$40; Wed. at 2, $20-$35. Majestic, 247 W. 44th (246-0730). 2 hrs., 15 mins. All major credit cards. ●●

GHOSTS—Liv Ullmann stars as Mrs. Alving in a new 100th anniversary production of the Henrik Ibsen play, together with John Neville (who also directs) and Edward Binns. The new translation is by Arthur (Nine) Kopit. Others in the cast are Kevin Spacey and Jane Murray. Mon.-Thurs. at 8, Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3; $20-$27; Wed. at 2, $18-$25; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $22.50-$30; thru 10/2. Brooks Atkinson Theater, 256 W. 47th (245-3430). 2 hrs. Credit cards.

JOSEPH AND THE AMAZING TECHNICOLOR DREAMCOAT—This exceedingly well-received downtown musical by Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber who gave us Evita, Cats, and Jesus Christ Superstar, has come to Broadway. It's based on the Old Testament, directed and choreographed by Tony Tanner, is splendid and charming, and the cast is lovable from top (Allen Fawcett in the title role) to bottom. Tues.-Sat. at 8:15; Wed. & Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3. Royale, 242 W. 45th (239-6200). 1 hr., 45 min. All major credit cards.

MASTER HAROLD ... and the boys—Athol Fugard's drama about a 17-year-old white South African youth's relationship with two black men employed by his family; with Lonny Price, Zakes Mokae, and Danny Glover. The play is stimulating, and devastating without being depressing; the two black actors are exhilarating, and Mr. Fugard directs with the same insight and control with which he writes. Mon.-Sat. at 8, Sat. at 2, $19-$30; Wed. at 2, $16-$25. Lyceum, 149 W. 45th (239-6200). 2 hrs. All major credit cards.

NINE—Raul Julia stars in a musical with book by Arthur Kopit, based on the Fellini film 8 1/2, set in a spa, focusing on a decadent film director caught in a midlife crisis, and the 21 women in his life. Very pleasurable music by Maury Yeston; directed and choreographed with endless resourcefulness by Tommy Tune. With Lilliane Montevecchi, Karen Akers, Taina Elg, Shelly Burch, and Anita Morris. Mon.-Thurs. at 8, $32.50-$37.50; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $35-$40; Wed. & Sat. at 2, $25-$35. 46th St. Theater, (246-0246). 2 hrs., 45 min. All major credit cards.

OH! CALCUTTA!—Long-running musical comedy devised by Kenneth Tynan. Sketches by Jules Feiffer, John Lennon, Leonard Melfi, David Newman, Robert Benton, Dan Greenburg, Sam Shepard, Sherman Yellen. Directed by Jacques Levy, with choreography by Margo Sappington. Mon.-Wed. at 8, Wed. at 2, $20-$32. Fri. at 8, Sat. at 7 & 9:30, Sun. at 7, $23-$36. Edison, 240 W. 47th (757-7164). 2 hrs., 5 min. All major credit cards. ●●

THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE—James Belushi, George Rose, Kaye Ballard, Peter Noone, Maureen McGovern, and Tony Azito in the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta; directed by Wilford Leach. For light-hearted lunacy and magnificently mindless fun, there is nothing like this. It spruces up Gilbert and Sullivan and lights up Broadway. Tues.-Thurs. at 8, Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3, $20-$30; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $21-$35; Wed. at 2, $16-$25. Minskoff, 200 W. 45th (869-0550). 2 hrs., 30 min. All major credit cards. ●

PRESENT LAUGHTER—George C. Scott stars in and directs a revival of Noel Coward's high comedy about an actor and the many women in his life; with Kate Burton, Dana Ivey, Elizabeth Hubbard, Nathan Lane, and Christine Lahti. Still smooth, silky, luxurious, and thoroughly enjoyable. Tues.-Fri. at 8, Wed. & Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3, $27; Sat. at 8, $30; thru 1/2/83. Circle in the Square, 50th St. W. of Broadway (581-0720). 2 hrs., 10 min. All major credit cards.

PUMP BOYS AND DINETTES—A modest, charming, completely entertaining musical, moved up from off Broadway, by Jim Wann, with Loudon Wainwright III, Deborah Monk, Cass Morgan, John Foley, Mark Hardwick, and John Schimmel. Mon.-Sat. at 8, $22.50-$24; Sat. at 2, $22-$24; Wed. at 2, $18.50-$21.50. Princess, 200 W. 48th (586-3903).

SOPHISTICATED LADIES—Maurice Hines and Judith Jamison in a gorgeous and sprightly musical production featuring to great advantage the splendidly sinuous and sultry works of Duke Ellington, directed & choreographed by Michael Smuin. With Don Correia, Phyllis Hyman, Donna Drake, Gary Chapman, Michael Scott Gregory, and Mercedes Ellington. Tues.-Thurs. at 8, Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3, $23-$32.50; Fri. & Sat. at 8, $24-$35; Wed. at 2, $19-$27.50. Lunt/Fontanne, 205 W. 46th (586-5555). 2 hrs., 15 min. All major credit cards. ●

TORCH SONG TRILOGY—International Stud, Fugue in a Nursery, and Widows and Children First, all by and with Harvey Fierstein, and with Court Miller. Mon.-Sat. at 8; Wed. & Sat. at 2; $15-$30. An amusing as well as moving trio of plays about the homosexual world. Little Theater, 240 W. 44th (944-9450). 3 hrs., 10 min. All major credit cards.

WOMAN OF THE YEAR—Raquel Welch stars in a musical based on the film of the same name, with book by Peter Stone, music by John Kander, lyrics by Fred Ebb; directed by Robert Moore. Jamie Ross is Raquel's co-star. There is brightness, shrewdness, and measured invention throughout. Tues.-Fri. at 8, Sat. at 2, Sun. at 3, $25-$35; Sat. at 8, $30-$40; Wed. at 2, $20-$30. Palace, 1564 Broadway (757-2626). 2 hrs., 30 min. All major credit cards. ●

YOUR ARMS TOO SHORT TO BOX WITH GOD—Patti LaBelle and Al Green star in a revival of Vinnette Carroll's gospel musical, with music and lyrics by Alex Bradford and Micki Grant, based on the Book of St. Matthew. Tues.-Fri. at 8, Sat. at 2 & 8, Sun. at 3. $18-$32; thru 10/3. Alvin Theater, 250 W. 52nd St. (757-8646). 1 hr., 50 mins.

Off Broadway

BILLY LIAR—Revival of the comedy by Keith Waterhouse and Willis Hall, starring Neal Jones. It's about a youth who is unable to distinguish between truth and fantasy. Mon.-Sun. at 8 (except 9/26, 27, 10/3-5); $6; 9/20-10/10. West Side Main Stage, 424 W. 49th (575-0076).

CHARLOTTE SWEET—Turn-of-the-century musical in which a soprano (Mara Beckerman) triumphs in the British music hall; libretto by Michael Colby; music by Gerald Jay Markoe; directed by Edward Stone with verve and apt attention to detail. Low-camp fun prevails. Tues.-Fri. at 8, Sat. at 7 & 10, Sun. at 3 & 7. Westside Arts, 407 W. 43rd (541-8394).

CLOUD NINE—Caryl Churchill's comedy about contrast in sexual mores of past and present is a bundle of merry mischief and absurdist slapstick, and is genuinely touching. Some male roles are played by women, and some of the female roles by men. With Caroline Lagerfelt, Cynthia Harris, Nicolas Surovy, Ivar Brogger, Caroline Kava, John Pankow, and Michael Jeter; directed by Tommy Tune, who has devel-

New York's most elegant auction rooms are right where they've always been.

Park Avenue is still the home of one of the finest blocks in the world... the auction block at Christie's.

Christie's has spent the summer making our galleries sparkle as much as the impressive Fall Season we've organized. The changes are subtle; everything from our polished brass entrance at 59th Street to the freshly painted and carpeted viewing rooms show off our clients' works of art to their best advantage.

Drop by for the exhibitions, one of our colorful and informative catalogues, free verbal appraisals and, of course, to bid.

For information about consignments for upcoming sales, call Customer Service at 212/546-1000. For a recorded announcement of our sales schedule, call Christie's Auction Line at 212/371-5438.

OTHER EVENTS

Happenings

LAST CALL, this weekend, for two annual favorites: 9/18-19, from midday to dark, the Washington Square Outdoor Art Show will still be up, starting at Fifth Ave. and 13th St., University Pl., south to 8th St., south of the park, to W. 3rd St. and Thompson Sts., south on La Guardia Pl. to Bleecker St., and then the crafts concentration south to Houston and the border of SoHo. The Feast of San Gennaro continues thru the 19th, too, in Little Italy, with most of the excitement after dark, when you can eat your way around the neighborhood.

HOW-TO, always a fascinating theme, is part of two events this weekend. Internationally known calligrapher Arthur Baker will head a one-day workshop in his art at the McBurney YMCA, 215 W. 23rd St. (741-9229), 9/19, noon-5. He'll talk about new developments, show new works, and work individually with each student. Each novice will complete an assignment and have it criticized. $25 includes materials and a book, and you must register in advance. Olden Photography Workshops offers field trips for lens-bugs, Sun. throughout the fall. 9/19, 10-5, the session is called "How to Photograph People," with Patt Blue taking the group to Coney Island. Techniques are practiced on the spot, and individual attention is given to each student. Learn how to approach a stranger for a photo and how to arrange a portrait composition. Advance registration is a must; phone 685-1234. Fee is $65, which includes the morning lecture/demonstration in the classroom, the field trip in the afternoon.

OPEN HOUSES—Sloane House YMCA, 356 W. 34th St. (760-8850), invites us to drop in, look around, and think about some of the many activities it offers through the year, from lunchtime exercise classes to apple-picking tours, a photography-class series, workshops, and a coffee house. Date is 9/16, 5-8 p.m. The New York Botanical Garden, in the Bronx, has a flourishing education department, with courses, workshops, tours, much more. To find out about any or all, visit the Garden's Watson Building, 9/15, 3-4:30 or 5:30-7. (220-8747). NYU's School of Continuing Education is staging some free career seminars, so people can find out more about the courses offered. Some this week: 9/13, Human Resources Development: Personnel and Training (598-2100); 9/14, Professional Writing (598-7064); 9/15, Marketing and Advertising (598-2100). They'll be glad to tell you where, the hour for each, and more.

OUT-OF-TOWN DIVERSIONS, perhaps with an autumn jaunt in view: In Peekskill, N.Y., on the riverfront, a Culinary Festival, in which the largest lasagna in the world will be the pièce de résistance. Date is 9/19, 10:30-6, with foods, crafts, baking contest, fun for kids, and entertainment. $2, children over 4 $1. And we can sample that lasagna. Power boats and sailboats are on display 9/16-19 at the Norwalk, Conn., International In-Water Boat Show. 475 boats, from luxury yachts to inflatables, at the Norwalk Cove Marina, 10-7 daily. $5; children under 12, $2. Works by marine artist John Stobart will be on view during the show. Old Westbury Gardens, Westbury, L.I. (516-333-0048), hosts an antique auto show, 9/19. $3, $1 for children 6-12.

SOME WORDS ON THE ARTS—Soprano Birgit Nilsson will be interviewed by Opera News editor Robert Jacobson, and we can listen in, 9/16 at 8, at a meeting of the Wagner Society, at CUNY Graduate Center Auditorium, 33 W. 42nd St. (666-3436). $3. Casting techniques is the papermaking topic of artist Lynn Forgach, in a demonstration-talk and meet-the-artist program, 9/14-16, noon-3, at American Craft Museum II, 77 W. 45th St. (397-0605). Free. Club Mid, the Municipal Art Society offshoot, at the Urban Center, Madison Ave and 51st St., will offer a talk on the New York Public Library, during its regular free 12:30 series. Date is 9/15, and architect Lewis Davis is the expert. Free. The 22nd: Carnegie Hall. Another eminent architect, Philip Johnson, talks with Barbralee Diamondstein in her conversational series at the New School, 66 W. 12th St. 9/15, 5-7; $8.

IN OTHER WORDS—The lecture season is hotting up, and one of the top series, at the 92nd Street Y, begins 9/20, when Isaac Bashevis Singer appears to read from his work. It's at 8 p.m., $7.50 for remaining tickets. Next in this series: Mary McCarthy, 10/4. "Taverns as the Center of American Life"—now there's a lively subject. Kym S. Rice has the perfect site for her talk—Frances Tavern, 54 Pearl St.

(425-1778), 9/16 at 12:30 noon. The old-time museum-restaurant will stage an exhibit on taverns as an American way of life in December, and this lecture is the first of a monthly series, lasting into next year. Free. More history in a talk by historian Oscar Israelowitz, on the synagogues of early New York. Date is 9/16 at 12:15, at the Mercantile Library, 17 E. 47th St. (755-6710), and it's free.

HAWK WATCH—Migrating "flights" of the beautiful birds will be in the vicinity soon, and we can watch for them 9/19 and 26, at 10 a.m., up at Wave Hill, Riverdale (549-2055). $1.

NEW YORK EXPERIENCE—Multi-screen spectacle of New York's past and present. Shown on the hour, Mon.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-7; Fri. and Sat. 11-8; Sun. noon-8. McGraw-Hill Bldg., Sixth Ave. near 48th St. (869-0345). $3.90; children, $2.

No one wakes up thinking, "Today I'm going to abuse my child."

Abuse is not something we think about. It's something we do.

Last year in America, an estimated one million children suffered from abuse and neglect, and at least 2,000 of them died needless, painful deaths.

The fact is, child abuse is a major epidemic in this country.

The solution? Part of it lies in your hands. With enough volunteers, local child abuse prevention programs could be formed to aid parents and children in their own communities. With your help, most abusers could be helped. Please write for more information on child abuse and what you can do.

What will you do today that's more important?

Abused children are helpless. Unless you help.

Write: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866, Chicago, Ill. 60690

This is a list of advertisers plus some of the city's most popular dining establishments.

Please check hours and prices in advance. Rising food and labor costs often force restaurateurs to alter prices on short notice. Also note that some deluxe restaurants with à la carte menus levy a cover (bread and butter) charge. Many restaurants can accommodate parties in private rooms or in sections of the main dining room—ask managers for information.

Bob Lape Program Restaurant Review

WABC Radio from 7/31/82

"My Opinion of Cafe San Martin"

1458 First Avenue at 76th Street
in New York City

Inch for inch this small restaurant is one of the busiest dinner locations in town because it's an excellent buy. Ramon San Martin, a gifted Spanish restaurateur, who appears to be somewhere in his teens, took a rather awkward space and opened it up with white walls, mirrors, a skylight and hanging plants. Then he filled it with well-dressed and hungry people, and treated them to a semi Spanish menu with strong continental overtones, and one of the best looking dessert arrays in town. A consistent kitchen has delivered sound value, and CAFE SAN MARTIN packs them in.

Soups range from the expected black bean or gazpacho at $2.50 to a king crab bisque at $5.00. Appetizers are all split; 5 of them hot, 5 cold, with my vote going to the garlic shrimps in a crock at $4.50. An ambitious treatment of Spanish sausages, "chorizos", found sealed in foil and cooked with pimientos and red wine is not my style at all, because the slices of sausage are much better just fried with a little lemon juice on top and the stewing in foil only emphasizes the fat in each piece of sausage. House salad was tops, with a zippy dressing of oil, Dijon mustard, vinegar and heavy cream. CAFE SAN MARTIN offers a substantial paella with lobster for two people for $24.00, or various seafood combinations zarzuela de mariscos, parrillada, or Mediterranean Delight, each of them priced at $13.95. The parrillada held a 1/2 dozen shrimps, some ocean scallops, lobster meat, striped bass, clams and mussels in a light saffron edged sauce. A grilled filet of sole was a picture of boned splendor with cross hatches burned into the tender and white meat.

San Martin opened his menu up for those who'd rather try veal cordon bleu, roast duck, lamb chops, or filet mignon in madeira wine and truffle sauce by adding 10 taste possibilities with a continental flair. Outside the steaks and chops, many main courses come for less than $10.00 and they come along with Spanish home fried potatoes and other fresh vegetables, carrots and zucchini, for instance, or with saffron laced rice in the paella preparations. It is a well designed and neatly served meal, although the waiters are sometimes called upon for a "fandango" between the tables and spaces too close for routine passage. You too will dance for joy when it is dessert time, for CAFE SAN MARTIN has a gang of gorgeous ones, a chocolate mousse cake that is particularly moist, much more like a pudding than anything else, but happily so. There were tarts of apple, blueberry, strawberry, black cherry, and kiwi fruits on display. Along with bread pudding, a flan, marinated oranges, fresh fruits, and more.

For all that, the check for two people's dinners came to $36.75, before tax, tip, and drinks. Given the setting, the service, and the food, CAFE SAN MARTIN at 1458 First Avenue in NY, at 76th Street, richly deserves the solid patronage it's getting. If you're curious and worried about getting in, check the reservations for lunch or weekend brunch. You will find Ramon San Martin both gracious and charming, and his restaurant a pleasure. For reservations call 288-0470.

If you would give a party elegant beyond words, memorize this word...

Hisae's

Our approach to parties is quite simple.
They must be grand, elegant, exceptional in every detail—whether in one of our beautiful restaurants or brought to you.
The food will be a deliciously subtle blend of Oriental delicacy and Continental savoir faire... the service impeccable... the experience uplifting. For a very special gathering of 50 to 500 people, call Mr. Mark at 753-6555.

NEW YORK MAGAZINE COMPETITION

COMPETITION NUMBER 454

BY MARY ANN MADDEN

We have taken a meeting with the enemy, and they are ours.

To die, to sleep; to sleep; hopefully to dream.

How do I love thee? Okay—let me count the ways.

It was the best of times; it was the worst-case scenario.

Above, updated and downgraded. Competitors are invited to select a familiar phrase, title, or what-you-will altered by the substitution or addition of a grotesque but trendy word or phrase.

Results of Competition 451, in which you were asked for the opening sentence of a bad novel.

Report: Many Muffies. Muffys? Anyway, just skillions of, like, you know, preppie stuff. Also, sunrise. Lots of sunrise. And nuclear things. Space flights. Hi-sci-fi. Really. And actresses coming to the Big City filled with suitcases and hope. And scary stuff. Like gothic. Grossed me out. Not that they weren't good or anything. I mean they were really good. Really.

First Prizes of two-year subscriptions to "New York" to:

It was, he thought, a civilized room, with its good post-impressionist art and mahogany walls; only the nurse stationed behind the Regency escriptorie reminded him that this was a doctor's office and that he had come here in hope of a miracle.

Larry Laiken, N.Y.C.

The bitch Daffodil had only one litter, and the litter had only three pups: the two timid ones and Odysseus the adventurer.

Anne Brett, Los Angeles, Calif.

Cannes was still busy cleaning up the debris from the film festival when I checked in at the stately old Carlton, where tomorrow I would kill François Remy.

Mark Wolfson, Spring Valley, N.Y.

Runner-up Prizes of one-year subscriptions to "New York" to:

It is raining at Merriman Park.

Peter S. Schwartz, Danbury, Conn.

The sandpipers crisscrossed the beach with great purpose, meticulously avoiding not only the tide but also what the tide brought in.

Jay M. Tischenkel, North Miami, Fla.

"Good heavens," said the great man lying in a Moroccan dressing gown under the table in his Chinese drawing room. "Who are you, and don't you know the public are admitted on alternate Wednesdays?"

Al Gasbarini, St. Catharines, Ont.

At the captain's table, Felicity noted that the count shifted his fork like an American.

Sarah Plowman, Allston, Mass.

And Honorable Mention to:

It started out like any other day in Mellonville, so ordinary that no one even noticed how strangely the insects were behaving.

Eileen Watkins, Elizabeth, N.J.

She was beautiful, all right, beautiful and dead—but what was she doing in my inversion boots?

E. L. Schlotter, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Not much of a town," said Bud Towley, leaving the train, "but it might be just the place for a new start."

Ted Berkelmann, Bronx

Irina Townsend walked into the boardroom the way a cat stalks its prey: long, lithe, and dangerously beautiful, her cold, green eyes casually surveying the men before her as if they were so many pawns in an offhand game of chess.

Francesca Ruemer, N.Y.C.

Randolph's long legs grazed against the gazebo wall as he pivoted to face her, allowing the last rays of light to reveal his crossword puzzle and the erasures that symbolized his uncertainty.

Amy Berg, Woodside, N.Y.

Although the plane was warm, Linda could almost sense the chill in the night air below as they began descending to land, and she shivered and snuggled deeper into the folds of her Blackglama coat.

Jean Lewis, Los Angeles, Calif.

Peter Myers settled into his seat on the executive flight to San Francisco and raised a strong, suntanned hand to signal the stewardess for his usual appetizer: a small shot of the very best bourbon—neat, no chaser—the perfect symbol of his terse, carefully ordered life.

F. Kelly, N.Y.C.

Although not fully skewered by Cupid's arrow when told, "I'm a flight attendant, not a stewardess," young Septimus nonetheless felt its accurate impact.

Lynn S. Ellner, Richland, Wash.

"I don't believe we've met," said the governor, but he was wrong.

Grace Frary, Dumont, N.J.

There were only two people in the world who could help me now, and, coincidentally, here came both of them, striding through the tall grass toward my carriage.

Robert K. Christenberry, Red Bank, N.J.

I know that I shall never forget that morning when I saw Millicent stretched out in her usual sunny spot by the pool but this time entirely unresponsive to an army of flies on her golden skin aswarm.

E. C. Pier, Whitingham, Vt.

She stared at the handsome customer's credit card and exclaimed: "That's amazing—my name is Lee Matthews, also."

Selma Ellis, Glenview, Ill.

It had been raining steadily all year.

Phyllis Katz, Los Angeles, Calif.

"Odd sort of pet," mused Cyril Mountjoy on rumour that rich Aunt Flora had fallen for a Texas wildcat.

John Mihnos, N.Y.C.

Throughout my father's funeral, my socks kept falling down.

Brick Tangiers, Somerville, Mass.

The one thing Jade Prescott knew for sure was that she hated Garvin Russo, with his cruelly carved lips and cold, condescending blue eyes, and she would never allow him to take over her father's international cosmetics company.

Bevlyn Kaukas, Fairfield, Conn.

"Okay so far," I smiled my last little joke to myself, as I hurtled past the eighteenth story of the skyscraper I had vowed never to build.

Edmund Conti, Summit, N.J.

New York may well be the loneliest city in the world.

Robert F. Skupien, N.Y.C.

"I walked into the Star's Delicatessen the way I do every morning to buy my iced coffee," she told him with a smile.

Linda Konner, N.Y.C.

"Magnus ab integro saeculorum nascitur ordo" didn't mean one damn thing to me.

David G. McAneny, Lansdowne, Pa.

On a steamy August morning in 1891, Sergei Yurachev rubbed his eyes and rolled off the old suitcase he was using as a pillow and scrambled up to the deck to see the famous statue that was to welcome him to America.

Miles Klein, East Brunswick, N.J.

My story, like most others, starts at the beginning.

Mike Eakin, Chicago, Ill.

Let's start at the beginning.

Jay McDonnell, N.Y.C.

Yvette was popping corn in the kitchen, and as I sat there the smell took me back—back to my first encounter with the "Matinee Movie Murderer."

J. David Felmet, Dayton, Ohio

"Et in Arcadia ego, likewise," I mused, looked back through the coach window at Poindexter Hall sitting deceptively peaceful and serene in the shimmering moonlight.

Ann Locke, Key West, Fla.

Where to begin?

Mark S. Schlossberg, Columbia, Md.

Thomas A. Burton was depressed on his thirtieth birthday—he realized he would now have to vote Republican, complain about taxes, and no longer trust himself.

Bob Kopac, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Chapter I: I am born again.

Louis G. Courie, Mobile, Ala.

On a moonless night, when the winds howl around the ruined castle at Balacwnygaj, the villagers still swear they hear Megan Fsterthorpe keening over the terrible evil visited upon her by her uncle, Sir Harry Lawghtergyll, 600 years ago.

Physics Bldg., S.U.N.Y., Albany, N.Y.

"I am Fyodor," he sneered loathingly, "Count Igor von Kalansky Turkevich, cousin to the Czarina, possessor of heroic bloodlines that began centuries before you ignoble peasants raised yourselves out of the mud and put boots on your feet."

Richard P. Monley, Birmingham, Mich.

Call me Mr. Accounts Payable.

Mary Youtz, Jackson Heights, N.Y.

Snowflakes waltzed in the February gloaming, aimlessly twirling about like dandruff with no shoulder to lean on.

Marlene Anderka, Somerville, Mass.

Where does one begin?

Soby, N.Y.C.

All of this has been told many times before...

Rita Brown, Potomac, Md.

All things considered, it was a morning he could have done without: a letter from his son saying he had been expelled from Choate, the $2-billion line of credit essential to fend off the takeover not forthcoming, and now his mistress had called to say she thought she was pregnant.

John Kasdan, N.Y.C.

Eroica, when a youth, had a dream that he flew the night sky with the Valkyries.

Andrew A. Feeney, South Dartmouth, Mass.

Her personality leaped out at me like a lizard's tongue snapping up flies.

Nancy Lopatin, N.Y.C.

She was a good-for-nothing who, before becoming a nobody in death, wanted one day to look back on having been queen of the silver screen or having been taken for queen of the silver screen.

Wendell Freeland, Tucson, Ariz.

I sat quietly counting the grains of stucco as they fell from the porch wall.

Sherman Martin, N.Y.C.

Dust-moted sunlight slatted through the unfamiliar blinds, causing me to awaken blinking, then focus on the bedside calendar in confusion and disbelief: printed in French? Avril? 1990?

J. B. Snyder, Los Angeles, Calif.

"Well," said the duchess.

Ronnie Nathan, N.Y.C.

Gurfyl Curfurfyl McMyrful was the littlest of Santa's helpers.

Gregory Greenberg, N.Y.C.

I knew that sooner or later my young bride would find out about my brother Clive—that Clive still occupied the upper floor of this house, and that he and I had been born Siamese twins.

Douglas Soderberg, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Today I took the boat out farther than before, out to the clear cold water over those vast oyster beds that had been, so recently, called Brooklyn.

Richard Helfer, N.Y.C.

All my life I've been waiting for the laughter to die down.

Mark W. Fenske, Chicago, Ill.

And on the seventh day, God did not rest; He created Melissa Osborne.

Tom Frenkel, Woodridge, Conn.

I had lived with the duck for more than a month before I realized that it could talk.

Sheila B. Blume, M.D., Albany, N.Y.

If there was any other way to avoid telling her that he didn't love her—had never loved her, that he felt more comfortable in the company of men, that the Barcalounger which was missing from the rumpus room had been stripped and sewn into a pair of chaps and a vest, that she could have the house and children (he would take the boys on weekends) and the dog—he would; he was lost and confused and trapped in a life he hated; all the while he unconsciously fingered a whetstone and his MacGregor fishing knife.

P. Cleary, N.Y.C.

Competition Rules: One entry only should be sent to Competition Number 454, New York Magazine, 755 Second Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017. It must be received by September 24. Editor's decisions are final, and all entries become the property of New York. First-prize winners will receive two-year subscriptions to New York, and runners-up will receive one-year subscriptions. Results and winners' names will appear in the October 18 issue. Out-of-town postmarks get three days' grace. Postcards only, please.

When Esther was 17, Myasthenia Gravis struck. There is no cure. But there is hope.

Myasthenia Gravis is a deadly neuromuscular disease. It can strike anyone. At any age. Its cause is unknown. And so is its cure. Symptoms are baffling, ranging from fatigue and loss of balance to slurred speech and difficulty in breathing, making early diagnosis difficult.

Until recently, MG brought death to 85% of its victims. Today, thanks to progress, 85% live... and like Esther are able to live relatively "normal" lives—most of the time.

The MG Foundation is giving hope to Esther and over 100,000 other myasthenics. And through the foundation's Weeb Ewbank/Lamar Lundy Fund for Research in MG, we may someday discover a cure.

Please help us with your tax deductible contribution. Your support will help give hope to all myasthenics.

EARTH'S FIRST SOFT DRINK.

When the earth was new, mountains rose and valleys were carved and there was created, in what is now called France, a spring that is now called Perrier.[®]

All the Perrier in the world is born in that spring.

Still clear, pure and sparkling, and minus all those additives that civilization has invented. There's no sugar. No artificial sweetener. No calories. There's no caffeine, no coloring. And Perrier is recommended for salt-free diets, as well.

In modern times, when most beverages are made with water that's been disinfected, softened, oxidated or chlorinated, it's nice also to know that Perrier is naturally filtered as it rises to the surface from its deep underground source.

And so our only concession to civilization is the green Perrier bottle. Because without it, you would never get to enjoy Perrier.

Perrier. Earth's first soft drink.[™] Not manufactured, but created by the earth when it was new.

THE COROLLA SR5 HARDTOP.

TOYOTA

HARD TO TOP

Do today's cars look like they all popped out of the same mold to you?

Maybe what you want is a Corolla SR5 Hardtop. It's hard to top that classic notchback roofline if you want to stand out from the crowd.

And it's hard to beat Corolla's list of standard equipment if you want to get away from the crowd. There's a peppy 1.8 liter 4-cylinder engine. 5-speed overdrive transmission. Or Toyota's optional 4-speed automatic overdrive that cuts engine noise and wear at highway speeds.

Inside, this Corolla is top-of-the-line. There's full instrumentation, including an electric tachometer. AM/FM/MPX stereo radio. Tinted glass. Even an optional sun/moon-roof, to top it all off.

So if you want to rise above the crowd, head straight for the top — the Corolla SR5 Hardtop!
